Italy Sending 24 Airplanes And 80 Fliers To Abyssinia

Military Might Massed for Attack

Populace Halts Report Mussolini May Visit Army in Africa.

By the United Press.

Rome, July 16.—Premier Benito Mussolini today mustered Italy's full military might for an assault on Emperor Haile Selassie's citadel high on the Addis Adaba plateau.

Ready to rain aerial bombs, never before dropped on Abyssinian soil, 24 combat planes and 80 aircraftmen sailed from Naples aboard the aircraft carrier Miraglia.

While Il Duce labored to mass his air, sea and land forces, his people rallied to a new high pitch of war spirit with reports he may visit his troops in East Africa in September.

They hailed reports Crown Prince Umberto may go to East Africa to assume command of an army division.

Italy has 860,000 men under arms. Of these 700,000 are in the metropolitan army maintained within the country. In addition to native troops in Eritrea and Italian Somaliland, 160,000 white soldiers are in East Africa or aboard transports en route.

Navy Mobilized.

The full force of the navy was mobilized to maintain communications between Italian ports and Africa.

Six steamers were loading troops and war materials at several ports of embarkation.

The War Office prepared to call from three to five classes of conscripts to the colors on a moment's notice. The class of 1912, already subject to call, and other waiting classes would add 200,000 men to Il Duce's fighting forces.

Mussolini has his Fascist militia of 400,000 men organized on practically the same basis as the American National Guard. Only 60,000 of the militia have been called. They are under arms and are among contingents awaiting transport to East Africa.

Militiamen 340,000 strong are ready for call.

Troops in the metropolitan area will not be employed in East Africa immediately. They will be used for Italy's grand army maneuvers in the Brennero region late in August.

Visit in September.

If Il Duce visits East Africa he would go in September. His schedule for July and August is complete. He will spend the summer inspecting various divisions scheduled for transport to East Africa and then will direct army maneuvers from headquarters at Bolzano.

If he goes to the Abyssinian frontier he will fly to reduce time of his absence from Italy, where his is the guiding hand in war preparations.

Italy's mood was reflected in a three-column wide first page editorial published in the official mouthpiece, Giornale d'Italia today. It demands complete satisfaction from Abyssinia for the Ualual attacks, denies the right of a third party to intervene, "least of all the League of Nations."

League principles are intended for civilized nations, the newspaper said.

"Italy refuses to discuss civilization and Abyssinia in the same breath," the newspaper said, reiterating demand for sweeping guarantees for the future.

"In view of Abyssinia's aggressive attitude during the last 25 years is any power willing to assume that still another treaty would make wild, black Ethiopia a white, polite lamb?" Giornale asked. "Certainly not Britain."

By the Associated Press.

The "people's lobby" yesterday petitioned the State Department to protest Italy's actions toward Ethiopia and Japan's moves in China.

A committee of the "people's lobby" called on William Phillips,

ChineseRuler's Son Will Marry American Girl

Clerk Returns Purse He Lost in Ohio Store; Romance Follows.

By the Associated Press.

Columbus, Ohio, July 16.—A dime store clerk who returned a lost purse to the son of China's President soon will become his bride. K. M. James Lin confirmed today that he had obtained a license to marry Miss Viola Brown, of Columbus. He said they would be married as soon as his father, Lin Sen, the President of China, sends approval.

Lin, a student at Ohio State University, and Miss Brown obtained the license at Ashland, Ky., Sunday, and the news got out today despite his efforts to keep it temporarily a secret.

"It's true, but I wish no publicity," chuckled Lin when asked for confirmation.

"Whatever Mr. Lin says is true," said the bride-elect. "If he said we got the marriage license, it's so. If he said we haven't been married yet, it's true."

Bought Fishing Pole.

Lin purchased a fishing pole at Miss Brown's counter last April, and after leaving, discovered his billfold was missing. He was told the pretty clerk who waited on him had turned it in.

"Such a lady should be rewarded," he told the management. "I should like to help her to get a better position. She is worthy of your best society."

A luncheon engagement followed. Then another. With them came romance.

Miss Brwn's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Louis Brown, were surprised by the plans for a wedding, but her father said:

"If they got a license Sunday, I don't know anything about it. They go out often, but I make it a point not to make it my business."

Lin said he was certain his parents would approve. "Many

Adjournment At Early Date Is Abandoned

Deen's Motion to Recess Tabled in House By Vote of 259-86.

By Robert C. Albright.

Congress settled down reluctantly yesterday to the Administration-imposed task of enacting the President's entire program, share-the-wealth taxes included, into statute this session, as the House in an unexpected test vote, cast early adjournment hopes to the winds.

A swift tabling maneuver by the House leadership nipped an adjournment stampede in the bud yesterday before a petition could be circulated to sound out the sentiment of members. An adjournment resolution by Representative Braswell Deen (Democrat), Georgia, was tabled, 259 to 86.

Almost immediately, "clarifying" statements were issued by leaders on both sides of the Capitol, pledging continuance of both Houses in session until the tax program is enacted. Adjurnment forecasts ranged all the way from August 10 to September 1.

Harrison Ultimatum.

"Whatever confusion may exist with respect to what Congress is going to do about taxes might as well be clarified now, because the President wants the tax bill enacted, and in my opinion it is going to be done before adjournment."

This, from Senator Pat Harrison, of Mississippi, chairman of the Senate Finance Committee, who said that group will have its own tax bill ready for the Senate by the time the House acts.

Chairman Robert L. Doughton, of the House Ways and Means Committee, said he "hopes" to have his committee's draft of the Administration measure ready for the House in "less than two weeks."

Allowing for a report to the House by August 1, another prominent Democratic leader insisted there was no chance of adjournment before September 1.

It was Senator Harrison who said Congress "ought to be ready to adjourn by August 10 or 15, unless there is undue delay."

Both Harrison and Doughton, who were in conference yesterday, agreed that the program ought to be confined to the taxes outlined in the President's message, namely, inheritance levies, taxes on high-bracket incomes, and corporation income taxes.

House leaders were ready for Deen when he offered his July 23 adjournment resolution yesterday. Chairman John J. O'Connor of the House Rules Committee, jumped up with a tabling motion. The O'Connor motion carried on a voice vote. On a division count it polled 111 to 48, and on a rollcall it was finally adopted, 259 to 86.

"Will Be Hotter at Home."

Only 16 Democrats lined up with 70 Republicans against tabling the Deen resolution, while 243 Democrats, 10 Republicans, 5 Progressives and 1 Farmer-Laborite voted to lay it aside. Even Democrats who had fervently pleaded with leaders for adjournment voted against the Georgian's proposal.

Deen later insisted it was not a "fair test" of sentiment. He may wait a week or two and try again.

The vote followed a plea from Representative Clifton A. Woodrum (Democrat), Virginia, an Administration wheelhorse.

"I want to say to you gentlemen," said Woodrum, "that to my mind it would be a major strategical blunder on our part to leave this Congress without settling one way or the other the question of the tax bill.

"You may think it is hot in Washington now, but if you don't settle this issue you'll find it is going to be an awful lot hotter at home than it is here."

Woodrum was greeted by a scattering of applause, compared with the three-minute demonstration that followed Deen's appeal for adjournment on the previous day.

"I agree 100 per cent with the very delightful optimism of the

The King's Poet.

THIRTY-EIGHT years ago during the diamond jubilee of Queen Victoria, the United Press writes, Rudyard Kipling, Britain's poet of empire, first published his world-famous poem, "Recessional." In honor of the silver jubilee of King George V, Kipling, now 69-years-old, released for publication "The King and the Sea." It was written to commemorate the review of the fleet by the King.

The King and the Sea.

AFTER his realms and states were moved
To bare their hearts to the king they loved,
Tendering themselves in homage and devotion,
The tide wave up the channel spoke
To all those eager, exultant folk:
"Hear now what man was given you by the ocean!
"There was no thought of orb or crown
"When the single, wooden chest went down
"To the steering-flat, and the careless gunroom haled him.

* * * *

"TO learn by ancient and bitter use,
"How neither favour nor excuse,
"Nor aught save his sheer self henceforth availed him.
"There was no talk of birth or rank
"By the slung hammock or scrubbed plank
"In the steel-grated prisons where I cast him;
"But niggard hours and a narrow space
"For rest—and the naked light on his face—
"While the ship's traffic flowed, unceasing, past him.

* * * *

"THUS I schooled him to go and come—
"To speak at the word—at a sign be dumb;
"To stand to his task, not seeking others to aid him;
"To share in honour what praise might fall
"For the task accomplished and—over all—
"To swallow rebuke in silence. Thus I made him.
"I loosened every mood of the deep
"On him, a child and sick for sleep,
"Through the long watches that no time can measure,
"When I drove him, deafened and choked and blind,
"At the wave-tops cut and spun by the wind;
"Lashing him, face and eyes, with my displeasure.

* * * *

"I OPENED him all the guile of the seas—
"Their sullen, swift-sprung treacheries,
"To be fought, or forestalled, or dared, or dismissed with laughter.
"I showed him worth by folly concealed,
"And the flaw in the soul that a chance revealed;
"(Lessons remembered—to bear fruit thereafter).

* * * *

"I DEALT him power beneath his hand,
"For trial and proof, with his first command—
"Himself alone, and no man to gainsay him.
"On him the end, the means, and the word,
"And the harsher judgment if he erred,
"And—outboard—ocean waiting to betray him.
"Wherefore, when he came to be crowned,
"Strength in duty held him bound,
"So that not power misled nor ease ensnared him
"Who had spared himself no more than his seas had spared him!"

* * * *

AFTER his lieges, in all his lands,
Had laid their hands between his hands
And his ships thundered service and devotion,
The tide wave ranging the planet spoke
On all our foreshores as it broke:
"Know now what man I gave you—I the ocean!"

Missing Midshipman Located in Norway

Oslo, Norway, July 16 (U.P.)—Midshipman Charles Kenneth Barr, of the United States Naval Academy, Annapolis, who disappeared from the U. S. S. Wyoming July 10, was located today in the town of Halden.

An appeal to locate Barr was broadcast throughout Norway, and the United States Consulate General was bombarded with telegraphic inquiries concerning his disappearance. On July 10 Barr had an engagement to meet a Norwegian girl at a tea dance aboard the Wyoming, but failed to appear. At 9 p. m. of the same day he went by automobile to Lake Gjersjoeen, 10 miles from Oslo. He told his chauffeur he intended to picnic in a forest but he failed to return to the car.

2 AAA Taxes Held Illegal In Court Test

$900,000,000 Already Collected Under Outlawed Program.

By the Associated Press.

Boston, July 16.—The processing tax and floor taxes of the agricultural adjustment act, under which the Federal Government had collected approximately $900,000,000 and expected to collect an additional $700,000,000, were declared unconstitutional today by the United States Circuit Court.

The court's ruling was based upon a test case brought by the Hoosac Mills Corporation, which sought to escape payment of $81,694.

The processing tax and the floor tax, the latter a levy upon finished goods on hand when the tax became effective, were considered the backbone of the AAA.

With funds thus derived the Secretary of Agriculture compensated farmers and growers for curtailing crops and live stock production.

Says Authority Lacking.

The circuit court found that Congress had no authority to regulate products which were in the control of the State; that the tax was an improper delegation of power and that if the charge was a tax it was a direct tax, not apportioned, and if an excise tax it was not uniform.

The circuit court's ruling was closely followed by announcement at Washington that the Government would take prompt appeal to the Supreme Court.

Attorney General Cummings said the Hoosac case probably would control more than 200 other suits on file in various Federal courts attacking the taxes and seeking refunds and injunctions against payments.

The Federal Government was moving to balk recovery of money already collected in the outlawed taxes.

Amendments to the AAA pending at the National Capital would throw pending suits out of court and prevent filing of new suits. The Government can not be sued without consent of Congress.

Approval of the circuit court's opinion was found in the New England textile industry. The National Association of Cotton Manufacturers isued a statement in which Dexter Stevens, chairman of the Northern Cotton Mills policy committee, said he hoped the court's decision would "go a long way toward halting the wave of liquidation among New England cotton mills, to which the processing tax was a big contributing factor."

Denies Congress' Power.

"Millions of dollars," he said, "have been drained from New England cotton mills to finance this vast program."

James Sinclair, president of the Fall River Cotton Manufacturing Association, said elimination of the tax would regulate prices, "and we will not have price cutting in the future."

Frank W. Dunham, secretary of Fall River Chamber of Commerce and chairman of the New England Committee on Industry, said the tax had been "an unfair burden to assist one group against another."

The court held that the power of Congress to regulate interstate commerce did not authorize it to do so by taxing agricultural or industrial products before they entered interstate commerce, or to control their production merely because their production indirectly affected interstate commerce.

"If Congress can take over the control of any intrastate business by a declaration of an economic emergency and a public interest in tis regulation," the court found, "it would be difficult to define the limits of the powers of Congress, or to foretell the future limitations of local self-government."

The court found that "Congress has attempted to invade a field over which it has no control."

The opinion was supported by two justices, Judge George F. Morris and Judge Scott Wilson. Judge George H. Bingham, senior justice, dissented.

Copyright, 1935, by the United Press.

New York, July 16.—Wall street tonight studied the decision of the United States Circuit Court of Appeals declaring the AAA unconstitutional.

The decision came in ample time for stocks to react, but only the baking group responded with gains. Packing issues were lethargic and little changed. Commodities likewise ignored the court's action in outlawing of processing taxes. Corn gained with the July position ahead of all wheat deliveries. Cotton reacted $1 a bale but regained part of the loss. Sugar futures broke sharply but they also got back part of the decline. Hogs, on which there is a heavy processing tax, hit a new top in Chicago since October, 1930.

So far as the financial community is concerned, elimination of processing taxes would be highly favorable in the long run, since it would take away another of the artificial props in commodity markets. However, there might be considerable confusion should the Supreme Court uphold today's decision and that might react unfavorably on stocks.

Wire Company Man Testifies on Pleas

By James D. Secrest.

Original copies of 1,300 telegrams, dictated for the most part by a bond salesman for the Associated Gas & Electric Co. and sent to Representative D. J. Driscoll (Democrat), of Pennsylvania, in the recent utilities campaign against the holding company death sentence, were mysteriously burned as Congress opened its investigation into lobbying against the Wheeler-Rayburn bill, a special Senate committee was told yesterday.

The testimony, which came like a bombshell into the Senate inquiry, was given by the white-haired Representative, who boasted that he was the only Democrat ever to be elected from the Twentieth Pennsylvania District, and from a slender and serious-looking youth, now suspended as Western Union general manager at Warren, Pa.

Startled by evidence that the utility-dictated telegrams were in many instances placed above the signatures of persons chosen in alphabetical order from the Warren city directory, Senator Hugo Black (Democrat), of Alabama, chairman of the committee, at once summoned other witnesses to appear when the hearing is resumed at 10 a. m. today.

Witnesses Today.

Among today's witnesses will be R. P. Herron, bond salesman, who dictated the 1,300-odd telegrams sent to Driscoll; Frank R. Veale, Western Union general manager for the Philadelphia area, and A. F. Christenson, Warren operator, who was suspended with Jack A. Fisher, the Warren manager and star witness, yesterday.

Fisher, nervously but without faltering, told a story that electrified the committee and a handful of newspapermen and spectators, after Senator Black had called a special hearing suddenly while awaiting replies to questionnaires sent to all holding companies regarding their lobbying expenditures.

Earlier in the day the House Rules Committee heard Senator Wheeler (Democrat), of Montana, and Representatives Maverick (Democrat), of Texas, and Ranking (Democrat), of Mississippi, state that they believed Representative Brewster (Republican), of Maine, was going to vote for the famed "death sentence" clause until he voted against it.

Wheeler also charged power companies with employing "lying propaganda" and said he knew several Senators who had switched their votes against the provision at the last minute.

Driscoll Explains.

As a prologue to Fisher's testimony before the Senate committee, Driscoll very quietly explained that he had received 816 telegrams urging him to vote against the Wheeler-Rayburn bill.

"The peculiar thing about them," he said, "was that I didn't know the names signed to most of them and I couldn't help noticing that their last names all began with the first letters of the alphabet, like 'T,' 'B,' 'C' and 'D.'"

Three of the names were familiar, however, and Driscoll replied immediately by letter explaining to those constituents why he would vote for the utility bill.

From John S. Bayer and John Driscoll (no relation) he received letters denying that they had sent telegrams asking him to vote against the measure. One A. M. Kirke, after some delay, replied from Oil City, Pa., that he had not been in Warren since April and had not sent the telegram.

Another batch of telegrams from Meadville, Pa., aroused his curiosity because in two instances two telegrams of confusing and contradicting text were received from the same persons apparently. After an

Vote in Senate Upholds Right To Fix Prices

First of Amendments to Strengthen AAA Law Wins by 40 to 38.

By the Associated Press.

A slim margin of two votes yesterday saved a major phase of the New Deal's farm program—price fixing—from destruction by the Senate. Almost at the same hour an adverse court decision brought it face to face with the Supreme Court.

Amid charges that it was "unworkable" and threatened "more suffering" upon the farmer, the Senate voted 40 to 38 to retain a provision permitting Secretary Wallace, with approval of 50 per cent of the handlers of any commodity covered by the bill, to fix a minimum price at which it would be bought from the producer and resold by the first handler.

It was the first real test on the AAA amendments designed to clinch the constitutionality of the farm law, which was challenged in the Boston circuit court decision yesterday.

High Court Ruling.

Joining in the majority to retain the price-fixing provision were 31 Democrats, seven Republicans, one Progressive and one Farmer-Labor. In the opposition were 27 Democrats and 11 Republicans.

Under attack both in the courts and Congress because of the AAA, the New Deal plainly indicated yesterday its program would be pressed until the Supreme Court has ruled on more of the fundamentals.

Should that tribunal agree with the Boston circuit court and toss the AAA into the discard alongside NRA, the Capital felt that likelihood of the predicted "Constitutional" issue in 1936 would be measurably increased.

The Boston blow, second in as many days, prompted an immediate demand in the Senate by the Democratic Tydings of Maryland for a "return to fundamentals."

He named these, in response to

Religious Bans In Mexico Hit By Roosevelt

U. S. Favors Free Worship Everywhere, He Says at Petitioners' Bequest.

In response to a petition from 250 members of Congress urging that the United States take steps to show its disapproval of religious persecution in Mexico, President Roosevelt yesterday authorized a statement to the effect that this Government and its people "believe in freedom of religious worship not only in the United States but also in all other nations."

This statement was made public by Representative John P. Higgins (Democrat), of Massachusetts, after he led a large congressional delegation into the President's office, laid before him a petition said to have been signed by about 250 members of the House, and read to him a lengthy statement urging this Government show its disapproval of what has happened in Mexico.

On leaving the President's office, Higgins and Representative Clare G. Fenerty (Republican), of Pennsylvania, co-chairman of the committee making the call, said the President had written out and authorized them to make the following statement:

Follows Earlier Comment.

"The President stated he is in entire sympathy with all people who make it clear that the American people and the Government believe in freedom of religious worship not only in the United States but also in all other nations."

The President previously had commented publicly on charges that the Mexican government was persecuting religious groups, especially the Catholics. The congressional committee, however, charged that Jews as well as all denominations of Christians were suffering from religious disabilities in Mexico.

The congressional petition laid before the President asserted that "at the present time it is reported that there are 14 States in the Republic of Mexico where no minister

35 Die as New Earthquake Rocks West Coast of Formosa

By the Associated Press.

Taihoku, Formosa, (Wednesday) July 17.—The Japanese empire's third death-dealing earthquake in three months and the second of the week heaved along the west coast of Formosa today.

It repeated on a smaller scale the havoc wrought April 21 when nearly 3,000 persons were killed in the same area. Communications were disrupted but early reports indicated 53 persons were killed and injured.

A police compilation of reports from Chikunan, Byoritsu and Taiko, in southern Shinchiku province where the temblor centered, estimated the total number of deaths at 35, with 131 persons injured.

The reports said 139 buildings were destroyed and 95 damaged.

The shocks caught hundreds of sleepers in collapsing homes. In Chikunan 37 buildings were destroyed and in Byoritsu 54 toppled to the ground.

Telephone and telegraph lines linking the area were disrupted and railway lines and bridges were damaged.

The destruction apparently was confined to the northern portion of the area stricken in April, in which today's was the fourth heavy temblor since April 21.

Lighter shocks were perceptible in Taichu and Tainan and ships at sea recorded tremors.

An alarming shock but one which did no damage shook four prefectures in southern Japan approximately an hour before the Formosan quake.

Seismologists declared the temblor belonged to a series of aftershocks of the April disaster. The apt-center was thought to be in the Koryu River valley.

Judge Flays Dealing in Titles As He Annuls Ryan's Marriage

By the Associated Press.

New York, July 16.—Coldly critical of international marriages in which foreign titles are swapped for hard American cash, Supreme Court Justice Salvatore A. Cotillo today annulled the loveless marriage of pretty Countess Marie Wurmbrad-Stuppach of Austria to Clendenin J. Ryan, jr., socially and financially eligible grandson of the late Thomas Fortune Ryan.

In confirming a special referee's findings, the court branded the marriage as an example of international "gold digging" by "so-called nobility," with the beautiful, 19-year-old countess as the pawn in a game to obtain a slice of the Ryan millions.

The court found that young Ryan and his mother were hoodwinked by large talk of the bride's social standing.

"The records of our courts and the public press," said Justice Cotillo, "afford ample proof that marriages between Americans of either sex with titled foreigners are fraught with peril and almost invariably end in disaster.

"It is not a source of satisfaction to see our marriage institutions and our courts made mere incidents to the purchase and sale of foreign titles."

The marriage was never consummated, the court found.

"It is undoubtedly true that the defendant was young in years, at least, and was used as a pawn in the game which originated in the minds of older and craftier schemers," said the court.

"She was successful so far as the desired marriage was concerned, but like most attempts it failed."

Action Is Sped On $40,000,000 Army Plane Bill

House Group to Press for Passage; Ban on Secret Arms Exports Asked.

By the Associated Press.

Backed by the Army high command, the House Military Committee yesterday set out to obtain $40,000,000 to expand the combat strength of the Army Air Corps.

That sum, which the committee hopes to tack onto the second deficiency appropriation bill, would buy an estimated 600 to 800 modern fighting planes.

Following a lengthy secret conference with Secretary Dern and high Army officers, a special subcommittee was appointed to bring pressure upon the House and Senate appropriations committees to add the extra millions to the appropriation measure. The bill already has been passed by the House and is pending in the Senate.

Press for Air Base Bill.

At the same time the War Department chieftains repeated a desire for speedy enactment of the Wilcox bill to set up a system of powerful air bases around the Nation's borders and in the interior.

The House whizzed the Wilcox measure to passage weeks ago. But with the Budget Bureau expressing disapproval of expenditures which might run up to $120,000,000, it has been held up in a Senate committee.

Meanwhile, legislation to strip away the "secrecy which surrounds all arms and munitions shipments from the United States" and lay the foundation for future arms embargo laws was urged upon Congress by the State Department.

Joseph C. Green, representing the department, indorsed the McReynolds bill pending before the House Foreign Affairs Committee.

Would Set Up Board.

The bill would set up a national munitions board with which exporters would be required to register and from which they would have to obtain licenses for individual shipments.

"Why shouldn't this act be amended so that in peace or war a definite embargo could be laid down against the shipment of arms or munitions to all belligerents?" asked Representative Tinkham (Republican), Massachusetts.

He agreed the bill's main effect would be to end "secrecy."

"Recently," he said, "there have been numerous newspaper reports of the shipment of war materials to Italy and Ethiopia. I don't know, the State Deparmtent doesn't know, nobody knows, the amount of those shipments, if any, or to whom they went."

Plane Force Held Inadequate.

From War Department experts the House Military Committee received figures to show that the Air Corps has only 1,088 planes and the National Guard another 130 that are good enough for every-day use. Of these, it was added, 405 are expected to become obsolete or lost through accidents this year.

The special sub-committee just appointed includes Chairman Hill (Democrat), Alabama, and Representatives Rogers, Harter (Democrat), Ohio; Plumley (Republican), Vermont, and McLean (Republican), New Jersey.

The War Department was represented at yesterday's conference by Dern, Assistant Secretary Harry Woodring, Gen. Douglas MacArthur, chief of staff; Brig. Gen. Oscar Westover, assistant Air Corps chief, and Brig. Gen. F. M. Andrews, head of the General Headquarters Air Force.

President Plays Own Hunches As Advisers Look On Aghast; Adjournment Would Help.

By Raymond Clapper

Mr. Roosevelt, whose early days in office were marked by such seeming political acumen that he was hailed as almost a genius, has drifted into that dangerous stage which comes in the history of most Presidents, when advisers are brushed aside and the Chief Executive strikes out largely on his own.

Long ago Mr. Roosevelt broke away from his congressional advisers. Time after time he has acted on hunches and in conflict with the best judgment of his House and Senate leaders, those long-suffering and remarkably loyal old dealers like Robinson, Harrison and Speaker Byrns. Unable to see the light, they nevertheless obediently followed the guiding voice. That situation long ago became thoroughly obvious.

Less obvious is the fact that Mr. Roosevelt also has moved on ahead of the survivors of his old brain trust and left them straggling in the rear. Those daring young men have let their flying trapezes come to rest and are looking on, slightly aghast, at their leader who goes on hurtling through the air, taxing the patience of the audience.

Among this group, as among the conservative Democratic leaders in Congress, is a strong feeling that Mr. Roosevelt should let up, give the country a rest, turn to the detailed task of consolidating the administrative agencies which Congress had given him, and seek to improve the operation of his various experiments.

* * *

The popular impression, widely held even in Washington, that Mr. Roosevelt is being prodded on by his old intellectual advisers, is found, upon inquiry, to be the reverse of the fact. The Brandeis philosophy of the curse of bigness appears to have taken hold of Mr. Roosevelt. But for the most part he is running on hunches, not on any carefully planned advice, even from his so-called brain trusters.

Mr. Roosevelt is out on his own. The utilities death sentence fight and the tax move are his own babies. So was his insistence that the Guffey coal bill be enacted regardless of constitutional doubts, "however reasonable."

* * *

Prof. Moley has stated publicly that the people are "developing a terrible thirst for a long, cool swig of political quiescence." As he no longer is in the Government, he can say such things publicly.

His views are echoed privately by some others of the old group. Some of them, still in the Government, can not say so publicly. They are expressing themselves privately to Mr. Roosevelt. Others, who are sadder but wiser, like Gen. Johnson, are saying it out loud.

* * *

If all of it were to be boiled down into a short speech, it would run something like this:

"Mr. President, this is only my own opinion, and I may be wrong about it, but it does seem to me that you have exposed yourself on too many fronts. You have attempted to do too many things, some of which should never have been tried and others which could as well have waited. For the sake of making your program a success, it would have been better to have concentrated on a few selected, important and carefully thought-out measures and to have concentrated upon the administration of them.

"Give public sentiment a chance to catch up, give public nerves an opportunity to quiet down. All of us have talked too much; we have thought out loud, turned from one theory to another, and we have frightened private industry and caused it to hold back from normal expansion because of uncertainties of the future.

"Many things have been tried that have failed. Pump priming through public works did not achieve the results hoped for. Price fixing failed. We have found, during more than two years of practical administration of Government business, that things can not be done overnight, that human inertia, prejudice, old habits, rigidities in the economic and social structure, do not yield to a new law. Sometimes passing a law only arouses greater resistance.

"We all want to see the individual have better living conditions. It does not matter much whether this be brought about through private ownership or public ownership. Theories mean nothing. In some businesses private initiative can do more than Government. In others, Government can do it better. It is a question of fact, and of what works best. We have about as much as we can handle for the time being. It is good time to take a breathing spell."

Not all of the group would subscribe to that speech exactly. Some will agree with one portion and some with another portion. But it is a fair composite.

Presidents become isolated. Life in the White House encourages it. Callers, dazzled by the prestige of the office, tend to tell the President the agreeable things and to hold back the disagreeable. He gets fan mail. The pan mail goes to Senators and Representatives, and to the administrators who are wrestling hand to hand with detail problems. They hear the criticism. Most of those who talk to the President tell him he is doing fine. Critical voices are so much in the minority that they are litle heeded.

Any President, even Harding, who was the humblest of them when he entered the White House, soon finds an insidious atmosphere enveloping him which gives him an illusion of omniscience. Mr. Roosevelt, more self-confident, more buoyant, more care-free by nature than most of them, and carried along for months on a wave of abnormal popularity, is a more ready victim of this White House atmosphere than the average President.

"The average person's mentality is literally fatigued to the point where it yearns for the end of argument and discord at any price. The small merchant knows more than you imagine about the various bills, but he is confused in the same way the Congressmen are confused as to their purpose. He needs time to make up his own mind about the various measures which, believe me, he does to a very much greater extent than the statesmen and the lobbyists imagine. He feels that he is being hurried in his decisions and he resents it bitterly.

"The result is not only resentment but fear and a deep sense of uneasiness which is summed up in a desire to oppose the Democrats rather than to see this kind of pell-mell Government go on any more. Therefore, it is clearly to the interest of the Democratic Administration to yield temporarily before this growing rebellion and to send Congress home as quickly as possible . . . What will it result in if it continues is an unfortunate and extreme swing to the right which can no more be helpful in solving our economic and social problems than is Roosevelt's uncritical swing to the left."

Each day Senator J. Hamilton Lewis, Democratic whip, rises solemnly in the Senate and announces the names of Senators who "are detained from the Senate on important public business."

One of them is Senator Thomas, of Utah. He breaks into the list every day. The important public business which is detaining him is out on the Pacific Coast, where he is spending several weeks lecturing at the University of California.

His Senate salary goes on and so does that of one of his children who is on the Senate pay roll as his clerk but who is out in California with father.

* * *

The Senate is more than two months behind. The calendar says it is mid-July but for the Senate it is still Monday, May 13, 1935. No wonder the Senate is tired, working as long a legislative day as that.

From a letter by Paul A. Best, president of the Young Democratic Clubs of America, District of Columbia Division, to his membership:

"Due to the fact that the constitution reads that all special meetings shall be called by a written notice, five days in advance of the date set for the meeting, it is my duty to declare the June 20 meeting of the division unconstitutional."

Now, Paul, you know it's not in the spirit of the New Deal to declare anything unconstitutional.

RFC Drops Aid To Banks; Owns Stock in 6,468

Preferred Holdings Total Fourth of Capital of Institutions Helped.

With the shutting down by the Reconstruction Finance Corporation on further applications of banks offering preferred stock, that wholly owned Government agency, it was revealed yesterday, holds an equity in almost one-half of the banks in the country for a total of more than one-fourth of the outstanding capital of these institutions.

The RFC set Monday as the deadline for banks wishing to sell that agency preferred stock, except in unusual or urgent cases. In the latter circumstances, Jesse H. Jones, RFC chairman said, his organization would give prompt consideration to such applications.

But the RFC directors here reached the conclusion that the banking structure of the country has been sufficiently strengthened to dispense with Government subscription to preferred stock and that steps should be taken toward winding up that type of emergency assistance.

Stock in 6,468 Banks.

At close of business Saturday the RFC had purchased preferred stock of 6,468 banks out of the 14,137 in the country. A total of $1,009,420,034 had been invested by the RFC in such stock. Approximately $100,000,000 of the sum invested has been repaid.

The capital stock and capital notes and debentures, as of December 31, last, of the 14,137 banks insured in the FDIC, totaled $3,348,341,000. Surplus, undivided profits and similar items brought the total capital funds of these banks up to $6,151,567,000, the last condition report of the FDIC showed.

Thus it will be seen that the Government, through the RFC, has a substantial investment in the banks of the country. The RFC declines to reveal how many banks it can control through the ownership of 50 per cent or more of capital stock. But a list of the banks in which it owns preferred stock is available and the answer could be obtained, but only after tedious work.

Control Used in One Case.

Attaches of the RFC, however, contend that in only one case has the RFC used its control of the capital stock to place an officer in a bank and that in all other cases RFC proxies have been voted with private groups in control.

In addition to the preferred stock holdings of the RFC, that agency since its creation has loaned to banks $1,879,018,868. Of this sum, $1,398,615,058 has been repaid, leaving outstanding $480,403,810.

Of the outstanding loans, approximately $320,000,000 were made to closed banks in order to provide distribution to depositors and are secured by collateral which daily is said to be increasing in value. This leaves open banks owing the RFC only about $180,000,000, 10 per cent of the sum originally advanced.

Profit Now $100,000,000.

From now on the banks will repay advances they received in exchange for their preferred stock, which bear 4 per cent interests. Most of the preferred stock agreements call for retirement on a 20-year amortized basis, or at the rate of 5 per cent annually. The ratio of promptitude in payment of dividends and retirement of the stock under this basis has been about 85 per cent, Jones explained.

Those who expected when the Reconstruction Finance Corporation was set up in February, 1932, that its operations would result in heavy losses for the Government may be surprised by a statement of Chairman Jones that "we have accumulated a surplus over operating expenses and interest paid of more than $100,000,000," which, he added, "should cover such losses as we must inevitably make, or most of them."

"Our operations have proven," he added, "that the Government can do business in a business-like way and with as good results as private business."

Soviet Fliers Set For Hop Over Pole

By the United Press.

Moscow, July 16.—Three Soviet aviators will take off in an attempt to fly across the North Pole to San Francisco as soon as weather permits, officials announced tonight.

The flight will be led by Pilot George Levanevsky, "hero of the Soviet Union." He was one of the pilots who rescued stranded members of the crew of the Soviet ice breaker Chelluskin last year.

The route to San Francisco will be by way of the North Pole, Wilkes Island, Port Simon and Vancouver.

The project will mark the first long-distance flight by any Soviet aviator since the plane, Land of the Soviets, encircled the globe in 1930.

Gen. Leach Rescued By Army Field Ship

By the Associated Press.

March Field, Riverside, Calif., July 16.—The War Department's newest member of the Caterpillar Club, Maj. Gen. George E. Leach, flew into March Field today and was more interested in a shave than treatment for an arm injury incurred when he parachuted from a blazing airplane in Arizona yesterday.

The chief of the Militia Bureau of the War Department landed at the field here at 10:15 a. m. from Seligman, in an Army training plane sent to his rescue by Brig. Gen. H. H. Arnold, G. H. Q. Air Force wing commander here.

Capt. Charles M. Cummings, Gen. Leach's pilot, flew the ship in. Gen. Arnold greeted Gen. Leach and accompanied him to the post hospital for treatment of the left arm injury. Gen. Leach suffered when his arm struck a rock as the parachute hit the ground.

Board to Offer Interest Slash On Work Loans

Lack of Applications Seen As Indicating Rate Is Too High.

By Franklyn Waltman, Jr.

Another move to force down interest rates was seen yesterday when the Allotment Board of the Works program, meeting with President Roosevelt, decided to name a subcommittee to recommend reductions in exceptional cases in the 4 percent charge previously fixed for the 55 per cent loans on non-Federal projects.

Under the original arrangement, the allotment group offered Federal funds to States, municipalities and their political subdivisions on a basis of 55 per cent as loans and 45 per cent as outright grants for approved projects. The loan part of the advance was to bear a 4 per cent interest rate.

In order to stretch the $4,000,000,000 Federal works fund as far as possible, Administration officials have urged States and municipalities to borrow 55 per cent of the cost of projects from banks, against which the Federal Government would match 45 per cent.

So far, not a single new application has been received from a municipality since the allotment board made this decision. Funds allocated and approved by the board had been applied for to the old PWA, prior to the adoption of the Works-Relief Act. It is contended that the interest rate attached to the loan part of the scheme has deterred such applications.

The allotment board spent most of its meeting yesterday discussing this situation. Mayor Fiorello LaGuardia of New York representative of municipalities on the board, is understood to have taken part in the discussion.

Following the meeting it was announced that Secretary of the Interior Harold L. Ickes, chairman of the advisory allotment group, had been authorized to name a subcommittee to make recommendations for the reduction of the 4 per cent rate "in certain instances of exceptional circumstances."

"This has in mind those exceptional instances where municipalities believe that the interest rate offered by banks or other lenders is unconscionably high," the statement added.

Apparently it is intended to make reductions in the 4 per cent Government rate in order to force banks which insist on that charge to adopt a 3½ per cent or lower rate on loans to municipalities with good credit ratings. Whether such action will stimulate public works by municipalities, however, remains to be seen.

In quarters other than the advisory allotment group it is contended that the municipalities have not filed applications for advances under the loan-grant arrangement because they do not wish—and in some cases can not legally—increase their indebtedness. They prefer to have the full cost of projects advanced by the Federal Government as outright grants under one or another relief plan.

Other action taken by the board at yesterday's meeting included recommending to the President allocation of $34,963,379 to the Work Progress Administration to finance State work programs in Arkansas, Florida, Indiana, Kentucky, Michigan, New Jersey, Ohio, Oklahoma and Pennsylvania. It was estimated that under these programs 52,000 persons would be transferred from relief rolls to work rolls for one year.

Social Security Measure Gets House Setback

Sent Back to Committee on Private Pension Controversy.

Congressional conferees on the President's broad social security program yesterday decided to send the bill back to the House for a test vote on the Clark amendment exempting private pension systems from tax provisions of the President's plan.

Conferees previously arrived at a complete agreement on every feature of the unemployment insurance, old age pensions and public health aid program, with the single exception of the controversial private pension exemption, approved by the Senate.

On that point, House conferees refused to yield. They will go back to their chamber with a report recommending approval of everything else. Then a motion will be offered to insist on exclusion of the Clark amendment. Indications were that the House will back up its conferees.

Validity Is Questioned.

These argue that exemption of companies operating their own pension systems from the Federal tax not only would lay the bill open to serious Constitutional question, but would entail a vastly larger administrative set-up, and open the way for discrimination against older employes.

Other differences between House and Senate measures were ironed out to the satisfaction of the conferees, with both chambers forced to yield on some points.

As mediated in conference, these compromised provisions call for:

A social security board to administer the act, independent of the Department of Labor, with the board itself, rather than the Children's Bureau, administering child labor provisions. This was contrary to recommendations of Secretary of Labor Perkins.

Leeway Given States.

Aid to States having constitutional barriers in the way of matching Federal old-age pension grants, providing they set up State agencies to administer the funds. Grants would be based on amounts expended by local communities for old-age assistance, rather than outright Federal gifts of $15 per beneficiary, as provided in the Senate bill.

Leeway for States to establish their own unemployment insurance plans, with a choice between the so-called "Wisconsin plan," Statewide pools, etc.

Pensions for the blind, with $15 Federal contributions on a matching basis; the State to have the right to determine whether only the "permanently" blind would benefit.

Provision that employes benefiting under the old-age assistance plan must retire on reaching 65, in order to receive Federal aid.

Stipulation that employers of eight of more persons for any 20 weeks in the year must be taxed under the unemployment plan.

2 Aged Home Inmates Strike New Oil Well

Marietta, Ohio, July 16 (AP).—Two residents of Washington County's Infirmary have struck oil again. John Hupp and Walter Yerian, aged oil men who entered the home during the depression, reported their third well "came in" with a 10-barrel flow.

Two smaller wells drilled last fall will be hooked with the third and will be pumped. The infirmary superintendent and the county commissioners, who have an interest in the wells, say the income may be enough to put Hupp and Yerian "on their feet."

Norway May Resign League Membership

Oslo, July 16 (U.P.).—Norway may denounce the League of Nations, resigning her membership, because of the Italo-Abyssinian situation, Foreign Minister K. Koht told a Labor Party meeting today. Koht said league membership could endanger Norway, since she might be summoned to participate in a military or economic way.

"We must revise our position in several respects, especially with regard to sanctions," he said. "The league is unable to control political interests."

Army Captain Drowned.

Announcement is made by the War Department of the death by accidental drowning, July 12, of Capt. Alvin K. Robinson, Twenty-first Infantry, near Honolulu, T. H. His body has been recovered and will be interred in the Hawaiian Islands. He is survived by his wife, Mrs. Gladys D. Robinson, of Paia, Island of Maui.

A Conference at House Lobby Investigation

Lobbying Evidence Burned, Senate Probe Witness Says

interchange of correspondence with Western Union, one of the persons whose name was signed to both the telegrams, Miss Ann Martin, could not be located, while the other was located only after considerable difficulty, and has not replied to Driscoll's inquiry.

Tells of Burning.

Fisher, who said he had been with Western Union 16 or 17 years, then unfolded the story of how he had accumulated some 1,300 telegrams, sent them to Driscoll and several Senators on June 26 and 27, and then on July 11 discovered that the entire file of telegrams for these two days had been burned in a stove in the Western Union office cellar.

Fisher, forewarned by the New York office that a deluge of telegrams from utility representatives to Congress might be expected, was not surprised when approached by Herron.

"He told me that he had to develop 1,000 telegrams to Driscoll and that his two assistants had been drowned," Fisher said.

First, Herron asked him to help gather signatures, the Western Union manager said, and Fisher refused. Then the bond salesman asked him to write the messages as Herron dictated.

Later in the hearing Fisher was asked if it were customary for Western Union offices to accept telegrams without protecting patrons from false use of their names.

"We have no authority to question a signature," he said. "As an employe of the company I was interested solely in the revenue to be derived from the telegrams."

Fisher said that Herron would spend an hour to two hours in the office daily prior to June 26 dictating telegrams.

"He took the signatures from the city directory or off a list," he explained.

"Where did he begin in the city directory?" Senator Black asked.

"With the 'A's," Fisher replied.

Says Herron Paid.

The telegrams were accumulated until the Wheeler-Rayburn bill was reported to the House and then released in batches. Fisher said Herron paid for all the wires sent to Driscoll in cash and Herron and a "Mr. Stevenson, representing some power company," paid for those sent to Senators. Only in three or four instances were telegrams charged to individual telephone accounts.

While it is customary for Western Union to destroy telegrams only a year after they are dispatched, Fisher on July 11 discovered that all files for June 25, 26 and 27 were missing after Driscoll had started his inquiry.

The night before Fisher had seen Herron talking with Christenson, the operator, who subsequently ordered the messenger boy to burn the files for June, 1934, as was customary, after a lapse of a year.

Herron also had told Fisher that the Erie office had advised him "to throw a barrel of kerosene in your cellar so as to destroy anything that might incriminate me," the witness said.

"I thought he was just joking," Fisher said, and paid no attention to the remark at the time.

After the records were missed the youthful Warren manager began an exchange of messages with his New York office and started an investigation which disclosed the discarded June 25 file in the cellar and crisply burnt remains of the Driscoll telegrams in the cellar stove.

Veale, the general manager for the area, and an executive from Erie aided in the investigation, but advised Fisher against calling in the police or resorting to any legal proceedings, he said.

The Warren chief of police, who was called upon by Fisher, said he could find no evidence of burglary. The messenger boy said that Christenson had started a fire in the cellar stove on the night of July 10, and when discovered had asked him to burn the June, 1934, files.

Fisher consulted an attorney and was advised to explain his position to the New York office of Western Union.

On the following Sunday, according to Fisher, Herron called on Fisher at his home and, after disclosing that he knew of the burning of the telegrams, though the information was still an office secret, advised Fisher to write to his superiors and accept the blame for burning the messages on the ground that he had written some of the dictated mesages on Western Union typewriters and feared reprisals.

Fisher said he indignantly rejected the suggestion.

Veale then informed Fisher that evidence indicated he had a part in the burning of the records and suspended him without pay until vindicated.

"He told me that, while suspended, I was still subject to the rules of the company," the Warren manager said.

"What did he mean by that?" Black inquired.

"I understood that he meant the rule against disclosing confidential information," Fisher replied.

"He also advised me against resorting to legal action and against doing anything that would lead to an investigation. He said the company wouldn't like it if I did and it would impair my chance at reinstatement.

"He said that he thought the suspension of me and Christenson would clear Western Union."

"What did you say to that?" asked Black.

"I said it looked like I was to be made the goat," replied Fisher.

Cross-examination by members of the committee brought out testimony that Herron had several forms from which he dictated all classes of wire messages to Driscoll and the Senators. On one occasion, it was said, he started to give Fisher a check in payment, thought better of it, and went to the bank for cash.

Fisher and his attorney called on Driscoll yesterday morning, and the Representative immediately got in touch with Senator Black. The abrupt hearing was the result.

"I was supposed to meet Mr. Veale in Erie this afternoon," Fisher concluded.

Instructed Corcoran.

At the House inquiry Wheeler and Rayburn testified that Thomas G. Corcoran, counsel of the RFC, had acted in all instances at their direction in trying to persuade Brewster to vote for the "death clause." Corcoran had been accused by Brewster of threatening to stop work on the Passamaquoddy tide project if he refused to vote for the clause.

Rankin also testified that Brewster had expressed the opinion that he could obtain 25 Republican votes for the provision in the House prior to the vote. The Mississippian said he was greatly surprised when he saw Brewster vote against the clause to abolish "unnecessary" holding companies after seven years.

Meanwhile, the Wheeler-Rayburn bill was still in conference, with the "death clause" in dispute. The conferees are scheduled to meet the latter part of the week, but Wheeler expressed the belief that an agreement will not be reached for some time, if at all.

Heat Up to 120 Kills 8 in Southwest U. S.

Los Angeles, July 16 (AP).—Searing heat today enveloped the Southwestern part of the United States, causing at least eight deaths and sending the temperature at one point to 120 degrees.

Four deaths occured in Arizona, one in Mexico close to the border, and three in southern California. From Death Valley came the report an unofficial thermometer registered 126 Saturday, with little or no abatement since then.

Wallace, Ickes Forestry Fight Moves to Floor

Committee Approves Bill to Concentrate All Conservation.

By the Associated Press.

A bitter controversy between Secretaries Wallace and Ickes was headed toward the Senate floor yesterday with committee approval of a bill seeking to transfer all Federal conservation activities to a newly named Interior Department.

Introduced by Senator Lewis (Democrat), Illinois, the bill would set up a department of conservation and works and authorize the President to concentrate all other departmental conservation activities there, with the transfers subject to Congressional approval within 110 days after executive orders are issued.

Ickes repeated his advocacy of the measure before the Public Lands Committee yesterday. He said the government had "never taken a statesmanlike attitude on conservation" and if any more bureaus were to be transferred from Interior to Agriculture, such as the Forest Service in Theodore Roosevelt's Administration, "you may as well wash up the whole department."

Wallace previously had registered strong objection to the bill through F. A. Silcox, chief forester. He said it implied a mandate to the President to transfer the Forest Service, the Soil Erosion Service and the Biological Survey to Ickes' control. All such activities should be left in Agriculture, he argued, because they were closely related to farming.

Backing up this contention yesterday were Harper Sibley, president of the Chamber of Commerce of the United States; Fred Brenckman, of the National Grange, and G. H. Collingwood, of the American Forestry Association.

"We believe one department should control the surface of the land," said Sibley.

A Feminine "400"

MORE THAN 60 years ago Mrs. Minna Moscherosch Schmidt finished making her first figurine . . . 16 inches high, beautifuly gowned, coifed and jeweled. And though in time Mrs. Schmidt became a successful teacher, research worker, dancer, play and pageant director and lawyer, it was that figurine . . . and the hundreds of others that followed it . . . that finally brought fame to this kindly, unassuming woman.

HUNDREDS OF thousands of persons admired her extraordinary exhibit at the Century of Progress. This display, representing "400 outstanding women of the world" from Eve to the present, now has a permanent home in the art gallery of Trinity College here in Washington. Every woman will want to read the story of Mrs. Schmidt and her figurines. Hope Ridings Miller tells it . . .

DIAMOND JUBILEE YEAR 7th, 8th & E

$823,500 Work Grant Is Asked By Alexandria

THE WASHINGTON POST BUREAU,
807 Prince St., Alexandria, Va.
Phone Alexandria 523.

The city council last night instructed the city attorney to prepare a resolution providing for an issue of $150,000 funding bonds, to reimburse the general fund for construction projects.

The city manager was instructed to apply to the PWA for a total of $823,500, of which 45 per cent, or $370,575, would be a grant and 55 per cent, or $452,925, would be covered by a bond issue. The amount is divided as follows: Street and road projects, $272,500; storm and combined sewers, $376,000; sanitary sewers, $50,000; buildings, including offices in the city hall; a new fire engine house and an incinerator, $100,000; school grounds, $25,000, and curb and gutter program, $100,000.

An appropriation of $2,000 for the DeWitt and Monroe avenue sewer was approved, as were appropriations of $500 for expenses of the Citizens Band to attend the Virginia State firemen's convention; $8,000 for construction of sewers to accommodate property chiefly on the square bounded by West, Payne, Madison and Wythe streets; $7,500 for Hume Spring sewers, and $1,500 additional for extension of a sewer on Glendale avenue.

The report of the jail commissioners, which was made public several days ago, caused considerable comment. V. Ward Boswell, declared the jail a disgrace to Alexandria and a fire trap. He said that he had made a careful inspection of the building recently, in company with the chief of the fire department.

Mayor Davison paid tribute to City Sergt. R. H. Cox, in charge of the jail, as one of the most efficient officers in Virginia. The mayor said the report was based "largely on sentiment," and he is not in favor of making the jail so attractive Alexandrians would rather be there than at work. Councilman Ashton said he was not in favor of turning it into "an air-conditioned hotel," and that while some of the recommendations, such as refrigeration and medical inspection of prisoners, should be given careful consideration, he considered other recommendations unnecessary. The report was referred to the city manager.

The Alexandria branch of the American Mission to Lepers is preparing a box of supplies for these unfortunates, and Mrs. W. M. Reardon, local chairman, has issued an appeal for contributions of soft bandages, vaseline, scarfs and infants' wear. The box will be sent on Friday to the New York headquarters, to be forwarded overseas to the leper colony.

Announcement has been made that the following members of Potomac Truck and Engine Company No. 2 and Rescue Squad are eligible for a split in the State convention fund as far as attendance at meetings is concerned:

A. V. Brown, H. G. Graver, S. L. Dameron, R. A. Edmonson, L. S. Evans, J. W. Gladden, E. L. Hedrick, R. W. Lloyd, M. B. Miller, W. T. Sheffield, L. P. Stroble, J. E. Cobean, J. H. Dabney, S. B. DeVaughan, J. R. Elliott, C. Foote, J. L. Gordon, L. A. Huff, C. Lucas, R. A. Roseberry, A. J. Simpson, E. M. Studds, T. J. Cockrell, J. W. Dameron, L. W. Devers, A. L. Evans, W. H. Foote, S. J. Hammersley, jr., C. I. Langford, T. J. McCaleb, A. J. Sheffield and L. A. Stroble.

The Alexandria Police Department is now running a lost and found department, and states that anyone having misplaced one alligator may obtain same by applying to police headquarters.

A. C. Uhl, of 305 North St. Asaph street, found a 24-inch alligator in good condition in his yard engaged in consuming June bugs, and is willing to turn his find over to a claimant.

Wilbur Peyton, in his third suit against Melvin Barnett for $25,000 damages for injuries sustained in an automobile accident last November 27 again lost. A jury in the Corporation Court of Judge William P. Woolls, after 5 minutes deliberation, returned a verdict for the defendant. Juries in the two previous trials had been unable to agree.

Mrs. Helen Virginia Ramey, 68, widow of James F. Ramey, died yesterday at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Joseph Starry, on the Franconia road. The funeral will be held tomorrow at the residence, conducted by the Rev. Ryland T. Dodge, pastor of the Temple Baptist Church. Burial will be in Sharon Cemetery, Fairfax.

Miss Florence R. Trumpower, 23, died yesterday at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. John T. Trumpower, 1104 Wilkes street. The funeral will be held tomorrow at the Cunningham funeral home, 809 Cameron street, conducted by the Rev. Ryland T. Dodge, pastor of the Temple Baptist Church. Burial will be in Beulah Cemetery, Fairfax County.

County Asked to Reconsider Petition for Aspen Cemetery

Montgomery Board Denies Plea to Rezone Van Ness Property.

Montgomery County Bureau of The Post, 1111 Oak Ave., Silver Spring, Md. Telephone Shepherd 2363.

Reconsideration of the petition to establish a cemetery at Aspen, Md., on Brookville pike was asked yesterday by the new Mount Olivet Cemetery at a meeting of the Montgomery County Commissioners in Rockville, Md.

The petition for reconsideration was filed with the commissioners by Attorney Robert B. Peter, jr., and Kenneth Lyddane. The commissioners said they would refer the matter to Edward Peter, counsel to the board, before taking any definite action.

The original petition for a cemetery on a 200-acre tract at Aspen met considerable opposition from residents of the community, who charged it would ruin their property values even if the cemetery company carried out its announced plan of screening the cemetery with shrubbery and other landscaping features. The previous board of county commissioners rejected the petition.

The commissioners appointed Edward C. Boswell, of Glen Echo, as watchman for the Bethesda Liquor Dispensary at $75 a month. He replaces Harry Ardinger, also of Glen Echo, who resigned because he said the job interfered with his sleep.

William Van Ness' application for rezoning of his property at East avenue and Leland street, Chevy Chase, from residential to commercial, was rejected.

The $578,000 realized from sale of refunding bonds to the John Nuveen & Co. was placed to the credit of the county in the various banks holding maturing bonds yesterday.

A resolution asking State's Attorney James H. Pugh to allow churches, civic organizations and benefit associations to continue to hold bingo parties and to sponsor other similar games of chance as a means of raising revenue, was adopted last night at a meeting of the Germantown Grange. The committee drawing the resolution also was instructed to present it at the meeting of the Pomona Grange July 25.

The grange appropriated funds to pay the expenses of two 4-H Club members, a boy and a girl, to the annual club week at the University of Maryland, August 8 to 13. The resolution specifies that the club members be selected from Germantown neighborhood. Albert A. Ady, assistant county agent, who is in charge of club work in Montgomery County, was named chairman of the committee to select the representatives. Other members of this committee are: Mrs. Ethel Browning and Miss Margaret Hargett, both of Germantown.

The seven sergeants of the Montgomery County Police Force will attend a meeting of the Montgomery County Commissioners Tuesday to explain why members of the force refused to sign an agreement to refrain from drinking either on or off duty.

Only one policeman has signed the agreement, it is understood. The rest of the force holding that it would be invasion of their personal rights to force them to sign the agreement.

George Rogers, 18, of Glen Echo, Md., suffered a compound fracture of the arm and two broken fingers yesterday when the truck he was cranking backfired.

Road tax refunds totaling $1,659.51 will be demanded of the Montgomery County Commissioners by Takoma Park, following announcement by the Maryland State Roads Commission that the State will not allow the refund because of the overdraft of Montgomery County road funds.

Town Treasurer J. Wilson Dodd has been instructed by the mayor and council of Takoma Park to present a bill for this amount to the county commissioners, indicating that town authorities will hold the county government responsible for the refunds.

Ratings have been given to 79 milk producers in Montgomery County and adjacent territories serving Montgomery County customers, Dr. V. L. Ellicott, county health officer, announced yesterday.

Especial attention has been given to retailers operating through the Farm-to-home Cooperative Market in Bethesda, and the Farm Woman's markets in Bethesda, Silver Spring and Takoma Park.

Ratings also have been given to Washington dairies subject to inspection by the District of Columbia Health Department.

The Montgomery County 4-H Senior Council will meet tonight in the Izaak Walton League Cabin at Violets Lock, near Darnestown. Albert A. Ady, assistant county agent, and Ulysses Griffith, member of the council, will be in charge.

All are college graduates, many have had military training, courses in law and have completed a course in pistol, submachine gun and rifle practice.

Hereafter, revenue agents will be transferred from State to State to keep bootleggers and distributors from becoming too familiar with agents' faces.

Office Seekers Make Appeals In County Race

ARLINGTON COUNTY BUREAU OF THE POST.
Tel. Clar. 900. Clarendon, Va.

Addressing a mass meeting yesterday afternoon in the Community Methodist Church at Aurora Heights, Harry A. Fellows, Democratic candidate for county treasurer, opposing Charles T. Jesse, incumbent, declared Jesse obtained the office by being appointed to fill the unexpired term of E. Wade Ball. "You should consider both myself and Mr. Jesse as candidates for the office for the first time," he asserted.

"Those who are opposing my election are the real estate operators and the other big taxpayers, because if I am elected they will be forced to pay their taxes," Fellows said.

"I have examined the delinquent tax list and find thousands of dollars in taxes that should be collected from persons well able to pay their taxes when due," he said.

Fellows said he would give consideration at all times to the small taxpayer "because they are the ones who are bearing the burden."

If all taxes were collected there could be a material reduction in the tax rate, he added.

Jesse said the vacancy was filled in accordance with the law and could have been filled in no other way.

"My opponent in speaking of his qualifications often has mentioned that he has served many years in the United States Internal Revenue Bureau," Jesse continued. "If I knew all there is in books relating to the Internal Revenue Bureau, it would be worthless to me as county treasurer.

"My opponent continues to say that I do not collect the delinquent taxes from large taxpayers. It is impossible to answer him because he fails to mention names.

"As far as I am able to learn Mr. Fellows is the only person who has found fault with the manner in which I have run my office and that has only been since he started to try and get my job."

Jesse said a modern accounting system was established with the cooperation of the State auditor who was investigating shortages in the treasurer and clerks office soon after he took office and that since he has held the office the books balance before the office is closed for the day.

C. B. Laycock, candidate for county clerk said he was running on his record of 14½ years as deputy commissioner of revenue.

Ralph E. Remmington, one of his three opponents, declared that having filled the office of deputy clerk for a period of 14 years made him well qualified.

Chance Buchanan, appealed for support "solely on my qualifications."

"Having served the Federal Government in the War Department for many years and worked in the clerk's office of Tazewell County, Va., where my father was clerk," he declared, "I am well qualified to take over the duties immediately.

"Of the three candidates opposing me two were appointed, one for 14 years and the other for 15. I have never served in any office which leaves me with no political obligations."

He emphasized that he is "not the candidate of any group or organization" and that no one is "contributing to his campaign expenses."

Lyman M. Kelley, former member of the county board said he was running for the office as a business man.

"Any man who has been in business in Arlington County for 17 years and weathered the depression is well qualified to handle the business of the county," he added.

During the first year as member of the county board, he asserted that he aided in saving the taxpayers of the county more than $1,250,000, which he claimed would have gone as special favors.

Reporting a total enrollment of 1,400 in the playgrounds in the county, William A. Richardson, director in charge of boys' activities, announces competition of plans for a tennis tournament.

The requirements follow:

All persons must be residents of Arlington County.

The junior classes will be for those under the age of 15.

Seniors between the ages of 15 and 18 and unlimited more than 18 years of age.

All persons planning to enter the tournament must file their application on or before July 25.

The tuornament will open August 1 with all games being played on the courts at the Washington-Lee High School.

The tournament will be open to both boys and girls. There will be singles and doubles, and prizes will be offered to winners in each class.

The woman, in charge of Mrs. Mae E. Jacobs, superintendent of public welfare, and Officer Norman Carson, was removed to the State institution at Petersburg, Va.

Arlington Chapter, No. 39, Order of the Eastern Star, will sponsor a lawn party Friday evening on the lawn of the home of Mrs. Mildred Rees, Hurst road, Livingstone Heights.

A political mass meeting will be held tomorrow night in the Odd Fellows Hall at Clarendon, under the auspices of the county Democratic organizations. Charles R. Fenwick, chairman of the county executive committee, will preside. The speakers will be candidates for the county board.

Ballston Klan, No. 6, opened its annual carnival last night on the lawn of the Old Red House, Wilson boulevard and North Stafford street in Ballston. The event will continue throughout the week, with special attractions each night.

"That the United States Government declare that it will be its policy under the Kellogg pact to prohibit the export of arms and munitions as defined in the treaty of 1925, and the extending of credit or loans to any State engaged in armed hostilities in violation of the Kellogg pact, or obviously preparing to violate the pact; and that the President be urged to propose a multi-lateral treaty to all signatories of the pact to this effect.

"That the Secretary of State ask the major nations of the world to permit their diplomatic representatives in Washington to confer on a plan for such changes in their imperialistic policies, and fiscal policies, for submission to their respective governments, as will justify those governments and our Government in protesting the proposed course of Italy in Abyssinia, and the recent course of Japan."

The delegation included Benjamin C. Marsh, executive secretary of the "Lobby;" Mrs. M. C. H. Davis, of the Women's International League for Peace and Freedom, and Miss Jeanette Rankin, former Representative from Montana.

D.C. Recruiting For Abyssinian Army Is Denied

'Only Listing Friends,' Says Officer, but Volunteer Has Own Version.

Despite a rushing business, the "recruiting officer" at 1337 U street northwest announced yesterday that he is not signing up men for military service in Ethiopia, but merely taking the names of sympathizers who resent Mussolini's hostile gestures against Emperor Haile Selassie.

"We are not enlisting soldiers; we don't offer $1,000 worth of insurance to each one who registers and we don't guarantee transportation to Abyssinia and back."

Thus did James Y. Eaton, the erstwhile recruiting officer, sum up what the Universal Multitechnic Association is not doing. On Monday, however, one signed-up volunteer stated he agreed to take up arms for Ethiopia in exchange for the association's promise to ship him there and provide a $1,000 policy. He is Charles H. Simmons, 1135 Eighth street northwest.

Eaton, who is colored and the vice president of the U. M. A., declined to say what use will be made of the "sympathizers." About 150 of them had enrolled at the close of office hours at 2:30 p. m. yesterday.

The office, which consists of two desks, several chairs and a telephone, will be kept open daily from 10 a. m. to 2:30 p. m., Eaton declared. He refused to say whether the possibility of Federal action against recruiting of mercenaries prompted his statement that sympathizers, rather than soldiers, are being signed up.

A stack of handbills on one of the office desks proclaimed a speaking program tomorrow night at which the following questions will be answered:

"What royal family has the longest unbroken lineage?"

"Why are Ethiopia and Italy on the verge of war?"

"What star twinkles for you?"

The program, presented by the Universal Multitechnic Association, will be held at Kingdom Mission, 1418 Q street northwest.

Fight for Place In Man's World, Women Urged

Fair Sex Must Make Own Way, Club Leaders Say.

By the Associated Press.

Seattle, July 16.—Women have a future in business and the professional world—whether it's plumbing or prescribing medicines—speakers told delegates to the National Federation of Business and Professional Women's Clubs convention today.

How to take advantage of that future was the theme of round table discussions for the 2,000 delegates, representing a membership of 60,000.

"Any woman who chooses the profession of medicine must be a better physician than her brothers," declared Dr. Evelyn F. Frisbie, M. D., of Albuquerque, N. Mex.

Miss Marjorie Shuler, New York City special correspondent, said there are jobs on newspapers for women.

"But the jobs have to be made, they no longer fall into one's hands like toys off a Christmas tree.

Anne C. Rivers, R. N., Savannah, Ga., said nursing needs legislation to insure good nurses in the future; it may be that out of this depression will come public health nursing founded on the basic individual needs.

Miss Jennie Rae Hersch, Portland, Ind., men's clothier, said retailers today must take a closer interest in governmental affairs, for economics and business are closely allied.

Miss Charl O. Williams, field secretary of the National Education Association, Washington, declared the general economic depression has operated to supplant women teachers in the higher paid levels with those of the opposite sex.

Health Officers Hold D. C. Safe From Paralysis

Dr. Cumming Says Cases Have No Relation to Virginia Epidemic.

Although District health officers yesterday saw slight connection between three new cases of infantile paralysis reported here last week and the general epidemic which is sweeping North Carolina and Virginia, Dr. C. R. Williams, assistant surgeon general, painted a less optimistic picture of things.

"Without doubt the disease spread into Virginia from North Carolina," Dr. Williams said. "It follows traffic. With three new cases recently reported to me, it appears that the malady is moving into the District."

On the other hand, Dr. James G. Cumming, assistant health officer in charge of the communicable diseases, asserted yesterday that there was "little cause for alarm."

"I don't mean the disease isn't coming here," said Dr. Cumming, "but there is little cause for alarm. Only eight cases of infantile paralysis have been reported since the first of the year."

This, Dr. Cumming said, is about the normal average. One of the cases reported last week, which proved fatal, may or may not have been infantile paralysis, Dr. Cumming said.

More Heroics.

To any one who remembers that in the early days of his dictatorship Mussolini used to enter a lion's cage in order to demonstrate his prowess to an awe-struck populace, it is not surprising to hear the rumor that Il Duce intends once more to cash in on Italian emotionalism by exhibiting himself at the head of his Italian troops in Ethiopia. This time he probably sees himself in the role of Scipio Africanus leading his victorious army toward Carthage. The only thing that mars the comparison with the ancient condition is that a modern general sits safely ensconced miles from the scene of action and directs his troops by radio, airplane and telephone.

Since the Ethiopians are completely outmatched by the Italians in such modern contrivances, Mussolini, if he is to be logical in carrying out his imperator complex, should suggest that both armies be drawn in serried ranks on opposite sides of the Ethiopian plain while Il Duce and Haile Selassie fight out their difficulties in hand-to-hand combat before the eyes of their faithful followers.

Of course, it would not do to invite the other European nations, much less the United States, to occupy ring-side seats, for in that case even Mussolini might sense the apprehension and the supreme contempt which the whole civilized world entertains for his latest demonstration of Fascist principles.

John Joy Edson.

In the death of John Joy Edson there passes a man whose career was cut to the American pattern with a nicety rarely equaled. Born on a small provincial farm, he ran away as a boy to enlist as a volunteer in the Union Army. On receiving an honorable discharge, he made his way to Washington, wearing his uniform, with an apple, so it is recorded, as his only asset. Fortunately he was able to obtain a place as messenger in the Treasury, where he first attracted the attention of the then Secretary by saluting him by name. Demonstrating a talent for concentration and hard work, he became a protege of the Secretary, who instilled in him the principles of industry, thrift and conservatism that marked his subsequent steady advancement to a topmost position of Washington banking.

But neither his high success nor his enthusiasm for copybook fundamentals marked him as the ideal American so much as the manner in which he maintained a kindliness and simplicity so often forgotten by men of high achievement. He was known as one of the community's most generous benefactors. The list of philanthropic institutions for which he served and to which he contributed runs long. A testimony to the affection with which he was held by men of all stations was to be seen in the multitude of sympathetic expressions for his quick recovery at the time of his serious injury in an accident a few years ago.

In addition to the duties of his personal business and those arising from his philanthropic interests, Mr. Edson carried a vast number of other responsibilities, each suggestive of the respect commanded by his integrity and vision. Outstanding among these were his positions as trustee of George Washington University, as director of the Chamber of Commerce of the United States and as treasurer of the National Geographic Society.

Washington, as well as the entire Nation, loses in him a sage adviser and an inspiring leader the equal of which will not easily be found.

"Mighty Good News."

"Mighty good news" was the comment of the District health officer when informed that $59,000 of the $300,000,000 included by a Senate committee in a second deficiency bill will be marked for his use in the drive to improve Washington's subnormal health conditions. "Mighty good news," the entire community will echo.

The funds will make possible the establishment of a separate nursing bureau and the employment of a director, three supervisors and 10 field nurses to supplement the 32 nurses now on duty. In addition, the appropriation will provide another assistant health officer, a full-time tuberculosis director, an assistant director in the school inspection service and extra clerks and stenographers.

The District has Senator King to thank for these important reinforcements in its campaign against infection and death. As chairman of the Senate District committee, he recommended to the Appropriations Committee that the sum be included in the bill. It is reassuring to the District that the committee accepted the suggestion so readily. At least some of the District's stepfathers on the Hill are attempting to supply its most acute needs.

A Blow To AAA.

Invalidation of the agricultural adjustment program was forecast by the Supreme Court decision in the Schechter case. In drafting the so-called AAA amendments Administration leaders recognized the precarious legal foundation upon which the agricultural experiment now rests. It is not surprising, therefore, that the United States Circuit Court of Appeals should find the act unconstitutional.

The interesting thing about the current decision is that it strikes a blow at the proposed amendments as well as the existing act. Officials are trying to induce Congress to write the processing tax levies into law instead of leaving them to the discretion of the Secretary of Agriculture. But the Court of Appeals says:

> The power of Congress to regulate interstate commerce does not authorize it to do so by taxing products either of agriculture or industry before they enter interstate commerce, or otherwise to control their production merely because their production may indirectly affect interstate commerce.

If this interpretation of the fundamental law should be upheld by the Supreme Court, enactment of the new AAA bill would be a waste of effort.

The courts have long since recognized the constitutionality of delegating powers to executive officials if "intelligible and reasonably definite standards" are set up for their guidance. But it finds no such standard in the adjustment act to determine when benefit payments should be made or production reduced. The Secretary of Agriculture is required to use his own judgment as to "what will effectuate the purpose of the act." In the new bill this discretion is not only retained; it is also magnified. Mr. Wallace would be directed to guess what trend farm commodity prices might take during the coming year and to invoke the varied provisions of the act accordingly. Approval of such an extreme grant of authority in face of the recent court decisions would be a serious reflection upon the intelligence or the sincerity of our lawmakers.

It is well to remember, of course, that this decision must yet be reviewed by the Supreme Court. Unfortunately a final decision can not be expected for several months. In the meantime Administration leaders are driving toward enactment an amazing new bill which seems to be calculated to continue the agricultural experiment regardless of constitutional inhibitions. If Congress took a realistic view of its own powers, the whole question of modifying the AAA would be dropped until the legal issues have been clarified.

A Common Sense Decision.

The United States Court of Appeals for the Sixth District has upheld the decision of a lower court denying the right of the Federal Government to condemn property for slum clearance purposes. The Court maintains that the power of eminent domain can be exercised only when property is taken for public use. That power, it is held, does not extend to private functions such as low-cost housing construction to relieve unemployment and improve living conditions. Objection also is raised to the wide discretionary powers conferred upon the President and his Administrator under the law, which does not define what constitutes low-cost housing projects and fails to impose limitations upon the spending of money.

The legal implications of this decision, which brought a dissenting opinion from one of the three judges, are of course extremely important. If permitted to stand, it will provide another safeguard against Federal experimental activities previously regarded as falling strictly within the province of local governments or private enterprise. From a practical, common sense point of view, moreover, the decision is altogether commendable. Its first effect may be to retard the housing program, since property will either have to be bought outright or the Federal Government will have to rely upon local authorities to secure suitable sites. In the long run, however, the necessity of close cooperation with representatives of the communities in which Federal funds are to be spent should insure better planning, more careful execution of projects and fewer costly mistakes.

It is generally conceded that slum clearance affords one of the most promising openings for governmental construction outlays of a socially beneficial nature. With careful planning, unsightly and insanitary slum areas can be eliminated and modern housing accommodation provided for the underprivileged without discouraging private construction. But if work of this sort is to be done properly, it can not be executed hastily by officials unfamiliar with local conditions.

Not only has the right of the Federal Government to exercise the power of eminent domain been denied, but its power to carry out a housing program under any conditions is open to challenge on constitutional grounds. These legal uncertainties, together with the practical objections to a direct Federal housing program emphasize the desirability of relying largely upon local authorities to execute the work of slum clearance. Federal activities may be properly confined to supervision to prevent waste or dishonesty in the utilization of housing advances.

In any event, it is extremely important that neither local nor Federal authorities should undertake to construct housing facilities that private capital is ready to provide if protected against unfair competition from subsidized enterprises.

Time To Adjourn.

The House vote against the Deen resolution to force adjournment next Tuesday is patently no test of the strength of the sentiment in favor of bringing the present session of Congress to a close after completing legislation now in conference. Nor is Senator Harrison's assurance that Congress will remain in session to pass the Administration's tax bill entirely convincing. The leaders of both houses undoubtedly would like to conform to the President's wishes. But among the rank and file of Congressmen the prospect of being held in Washington for the rest of the summer while a tax bill is being drafted, debated, and acted upon has given rise to an incipient rebellion against presidential dictation of "must" legislation. That disaffection will not be easily quelled.

Congressmen favoring a soundly based, adequate tax bill to obtain revenue instead of for political effect know that such a measure would require weeks, indeed months, to be perfected. They realize, too, that there is no emergency which calls for breath-taking haste in voting taxes that will not be collected until next year and in any case will not make a perceptible dent in the deficit, if the President's program is followed.

Controversial measures such as the holding company bill, the TVA amendments, and the social security bill which have already reached the conference stage, to say nothing of the AAA amendments, will give Congress quite enough to do for the remainder of the session. Efforts to "iron out" the major differences between the House and Senate versions of the banking bill should it reach the conference stage, would probably consume a great deal of time. Final action on that bill and the dubiously constitutional Guffey coal bill could be deferred with great advantage, allowing more time for careful study and deliberate consideration. The only excuse for urging passage of the latter measure at this time is that the Administration averted a strike in the bituminous coal fields by holding out hopes that it would be enacted at once. Congress, however, is not under obligation to satisfy expectations thus created. To do so, in fact, would savor strongly of weak yielding to the pressure of special interests backed by threats.

Apart from the fact that the President's "must" program lacks the excuse of urgency, there are other important reasons for hastening adjournment. The country as well as Congress is greatly in need of a rest from the bombardment of new proposals which have kept business in a state of unrest for many weeks. A breathing spell would not provide any guarantee of immunity against future legislation of an experimental character. But it would give Congressmen time in which to learn the sentiment of the country and to decide upon their future course of conduct in an atmosphere less highly charged.

Poems And Trees.

Although not exactly parallel, the sentiment against cutting down an historic old tree in Larchmont, N. Y., is similar to that felt in Woodstock, Va., last month when a woman balked destruction of a maple by making its branches her temporary abode. The Southern tree had no particular aura surrounding it save the attachment that invariably sets apart a familiar landmark. But in the case of the New York tree, its owner feels a sense of desecration at its felling since this is said to be the one which inspired Joyce Kilmer's poem "Trees."

The Larchmont tree is doomed because it is the victim of the blight known as "Dutch elm disease." In the opinion of those seeking to curb this disease the tree more lovely than a poem has become a menace. Since news of its removal has become known, scores of persons are visiting the spot from miles around to see the venerable elm for the last time. Obviously the tree has become famous, not for its own beauty, but because of the beautiful lines written about it. And despite the late Mr. Kilmer's modesty in writing that "Poems are made by fools like me," it appears that the charm of his verse will continue to live long after the tree which inspired it has been cut down and forgotten.

Reform In Radio.

From the Richmond Times-Dispatch.

We should like to thank the Columbia Broadcasting System for its new set of rules limiting the percentage of advertising time on radio programs, and providing scientific control of children's programs. William S. Paley, president of the C. B. S., says the restriction of advertising time is the first in the history of radio.

The radio could not exist at all in this country, except for the commercial programs, but it is satisfying to know that one of the two great chains has recognized that the public is heartily sick of the tremendous percentage of blah which has been going on the air, and is desirous of correcting the tendency in some measure.

C. B. S. announces that all children's programs must be passed on henceforth by "an eminent child psychologist." At the same time it will specifically bar from such programs anything which exalts gangsters and racketeers as heroes, which encourages disrespect for parental authority, which makes dishonesty or deceit attractive, or which identifies recklessness and abandon with a healthy spirit of adventure.

We trust that these specifications, together with the restrictions on advertising, will be followed out to the letter. If they are, at least one of the two major radio chains will have inaugurated an important and significant reform. We hardly see how the National Broadcasting Co. can fail to follow suit.

Hitler's Better Home Plan.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: I do not agree with Hitler's social philosophy, but his avowed policy of building better German homes is very progressive. Toward this end he has gone to the extreme of prohibiting women from holding positions which men can hold in order that more men may have the means to be head of the household and rear a family. But without any discrimination against women whatsoever this policy of encouraging marriage is a socially desirable policy.

To be supremely happy each family should have at least one child, and most families would have a child and the wife would be contented at home if the husband had a fair degree of security. There are many people who have reason to think that this policy of married women working and neglecting their home duties is undermining our national happiness. I venture the opinion that most women, after a few years of business experience, would much prefer the home life to the office if their husbands were relatively secure in their employment and receive sufficient income with which to rear the family.

Would it not be a good and timely investment for our Government to encourage the building of more and better homes as a part of the social planning? Would not more security for husbands tend to offset the results of the current perversion of the birth-control philosophy; namely, to get ahead financially rather than to preserve the health of the mothers?

Would not a policy for encouraging a fuller home life head off and prevent many of the social problems of the future; the turning loose of a great mass of youngsters upon society because their parents are not financially able to keep them longer? Would it not be better to care for the parents and keep the youngsters home a while longer and in school than to have to care for them away from home? A good home builds character of a much finer quality than any rough-and-tumble mass methods to such an end.

Name For P Street Bridge.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: May I mention a fact of history for publication, and thereby suggest a name for P street bridge, which has not been selected according to report? This bridge is to be dedicated July 22, with appropriate ceremonies, and this reminds me that the Battle of Atlanta was fought July 22, 1864.

It was in this battle that Gen. McPherson, a distinguished officer of the Union Army, was killed, so date and tragedy suggest a name for the new bridge. Why not call it McPherson Bridge?

A Milk Fund Campaign?

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Doubtless many welfare workers have realized the great need of milk in families where there are undernourished children or where there are tubercular tendencies.

The Starmont Aid for Consumptives, an organization founded in 1906 for the purpose of assisting in various ways those suffering from tuberculosis, during the past year has provided more than 30,000 quarts of milk in the homes of the needy, but because of its many activities and limited funds is never able to meet all the requests, which come from various sources.

When, some months ago, an appeal was made through the press and in other ways for contributions to a fund to supply "smokes" to the unemployed a very generous response was noted, and it is hoped that when the very great need of milk is emphasized the public will be equally generous.

Such a movement would necessarily require reliable sponsorship and places provided where small contributions could be received, as was the case when cigarettes and tobacco were contributed.

Many people unable to write a check for even $1 would presumably be glad to spare a nickel, dime or quarter toward such a helpful movement if convenient opportunity were offered, and thus there might be established a continuous fund upon which welfare workers could count.

The need of milk is great and undeniable and might be met in the way suggested without taxing anyone heavily. Surely a generous and sympathetic public will respond if someone with proper authority will inaugurate the movement.

MRS. A. P. CLARK, Jr.
Vice president, Starmont Aid for Consumptives.

System Of Ethics Needed.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: As I saw the picture of a courthouse, erected at the cost of $1,000,000, in Washington, Pa., could not help but understand why the whole Nation is now suffering from economic slavery, crime, want of incentive to be or to do, etc.

The editor writes in The Post of July 14 that "What the people really want is recovery from the depression." But, dear sir, who do they want this from; who is going to give it to them? Are they willing to pay, each and every town like this little one in Pennsylvania, toward the recovery and sustenance of great minds as they do pay for building courthouses?

In a democracy, the relative ability of the individuals to appreciate unselfish, prophetic leadership creates a demand for minds with commensurate worth and capacities to lead the people in the wilderness of modern camping. For, we are all camping more or less. Few are settled because few are sure of their work and their homes.

I say, this economic depression is only one phase or form of inharmony now harassing the people, with crime, degeneracy, aimlessness as its concomitants. But the people should be told, first, of what they need, before they can be promised the grant of what they want. It seems to me we all need a radical change of ethics and psychology, a complete reversal of our ways, of our mental attitude and dealings with each other. Since this would be expecting too much under present circumstances, the alternative is, for the few able thinkers—patriotic souls—to formulate a system of ethics and start a battle for victory on all fronts. C. PHILLIPS.

Opposes Transfer Of Forest Authority.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: I appeal to you because the national forests are again in serious danger.

Another attempt is under way to get the national forests and the forest work of the Government transferred from the Agricultural Department, where the forests are safe and the work well done, back to the Department of the Interior, from which they were taken because of wretched management.

The present attempt is made under cover of an effort (Senate Bill 2665) to change the name of the Interior Department to the Department of Conservation and Public Works. The transfer of the national forests and the Forest Service is not mentioned in the bill, but is planned for later on.

Conservation is too broad a subject to be confined to any one department. Nearly all of them deal with it in one form or another. A department of conservation would be almost as illogical as a department of typewriting or a department of wastebaskets, which everybody has to use.

The conservation policy itself, and about every important conservation movement for the past 30 years, originated in the Department of Agriculture. It has shown practical horse sense in dealing with natural resources intelligently, uprightly, and without fraud or loss.

In contrast, the record of the Interior Department is far and away the worst in Washington. Every natural resource, without exception, that has been held for disposal by the Interior Department—public lands, Indian lands, coal, oil, water power and timber—has been wasted and squandered at one time or another. It is one long story of fraud in public lands, theft in Indian lands, and throwing the people's property away.

Most of the fights for conservation have been made to save natural resources belonging to the people which the Interior Department was throwing away. The national forests must not go the same road.

Secretary of the Interior Ickes is sincere and honest, but he can not live forever. Secretary Garfield was honest, but Secretary Ballinger, his successor, tried to give away the people's water powers and the coal lands in Alaska. The resulting scandal cost Taft his re-election And everybody remembers Tea Pot Dome, when Secretary Fall handed the Navy's oil lands over to the despoilers. Fall tried hard to get his hands on the national forests.

Ickes is my friend. Wallace is my friend. But the national forests could not be better handled in the Interior Department than in the Department of Agriculture, where they have been safe for 30 years. What is the use of rocking the boat?

The Forest Service is completely free from politics where it is. Ickes himself is straight, but the whole history of the Interior Department is reeking with politics. The tradition of the Interior Department is to put private interests first. The tradition of the Agricultural Department is to put public interests first.

Wood is a crop. Forestry is tree farming. It belongs in the Department of Agriculture with all other farming and production from the soil.

Undoubtedly if Secretary Ickes got the national forests he would do his level best. But he has more work now than any other Cabinet officer in Washington. The national forests are bigger than all the Atlantic States from Maine to Virginia, inclusive. Why put this additional load on a man who has too much to do already? Let the national forests stay where they are.

Everyday Life

SHALL I tell you of a few of my interruptions today, interruptions peculiar to the Eastern Shore? The church which I attend is planning an old-fashioned children's day, and I have cut and pulled and tacked miles of crepe paper to make flower costumes that freckled faced, long-legged, skinny little girls may look like flowers in a garden.

Whatever the reason for a reversion to the customs of 20 years ago we, the parents, will go to church Sunday evening, stick to the varnished pews, and hear our children describe themselves as rosebuds, violets or daisies. I am thankful mine is a boy and has not been assigned a flower role. After the children's pageant is over we will see our seedy little minister with a too large collar rise and launch a subject totally foreign to children's day, and finally, with a sigh of relief, we will gather our wilted offspring to us wondering why our child is more intelligent than our neighbors', and wend our way home to forage for ice cold ginger ale and the electric fan before wandering to our sleeping quarters. May you never know the joy of an Eastern Shore children's day!

"Missis, does yu' want to b'y a twart ob bwerries?" A barefoot pickaninny flattened his already flat nose against the screen door. I had been called from my desk to buy huckleberries, big, luscious, blue huckleberries, to be made into pie. Through carelessness due to small fires our woods are no longer rich in large huckleberry bushes; only the small new growth of high bush berries are left. From these the Negroes—some of them left stranded here from potato season and some natives who subsist on labor in the fields—gather the huckleberries and sell them among the "white folks" and make the price of a few more loaves of bread they would otherwise not eat.

Huckleberries are one crop the ownership of which is not disputed by the man who owns the woods, possibly because the dollars this crop brings in are so few. The Richmond Times Dispatch reports Page County mountaineers expect their huckleberry crop to bring in as much as $50,000 this year, where the average realized in past years has been around $30,000.

Have you ever heard the call of the fish peddler's horn? Early each morning from March until November the housekeepers of the Eastern Shore are apprised of the fact that last night's catch of fish is ready for the consumer by screechy, noisy, wailing horns, horns like the children receive for Christmas, horns of every pitch and of no particular pitch.

The drivers range from the farm boy who has been fishing and caught more than his family can use and is peddling them in the family flivver, on to the old man who drives a truck and sells fish daily, has sold them since the days when he drove a wagon and weighed ocean trout and Chesapeake blue fish. Some gentlemen with a depleted bank account and insufficient funds to start any other business take their worn out car and attempt to make a living peddling fish while others seem born fish peddlers.

One evening last week I found an important letter on my desk after the mail had closed. I resolved to put it on the 4:30 train, consequently I arose before the sun. Through my 15-minute walk I noticed a constant stream of cars and trucks passing me even though the dawn had not turned to day. Finally I noticed a car with a box built in where the rear cushion had been. I realized it was the morning parade of the fishmen on their way to meet the fishing boats coming in with their morning catch.

The method of catching fish here is to take the nets out on low tide and set them; they remain through the high or incoming tide, and on the next low tide are emptied into fishing scows and towed to the piers by motor launches. Some of the fish are packed and iced and shipped by truck or train to the Northern markets, the remainder are sold to the local fish peddlers. Thus we find topless Fords of the vintage of 1920 vying in strength or tone of horn with 1935 model streamline cars for, no matter what style of car a fish peddler has, it is his rolling fish market.

Many other methods of fishing are used, from the fish pounds set in the ocean, through the small gill net stretched across some small creek, on to hand line or tight line fishing. In our country rod and reel fishing is practically unknown, as in few places it would be practical.

Hats and Elevators.

From the Louisville Courier-Journal.

Boston is worried, according to the Transcript, over whether men should wear their hats on or off in public elevators on which women are fellow-passengers. The Transcript thinks there's a difference between the office building elevator and that in a hotel. In a public elevator, it is a matter of practicality and convenience. There isn't room for your hat anywhere but on your head in the average crowded lift. There is another distinction, too. In an office building elevator, where thousands ride daily, it is no more a demand of politeness for a man to remove his hat in the presence of women than when he enters a street car or bus under the same conditions. And why should one remove his hat in an elevator when he keeps it on in the hall of the same building?

Investigation Or Propaganda?

WHEN the Administration's lobbying activities became widely known, the old line boys, that is to say, the lobbyists for the interests—clapped their hands with joy and said it was the greatest break they had ever had. The Administration's entrance into the game had legitimatized it, they said, and no longer would they have to appear abjectly before congressional committees and listen to denunciation and the reading of their intimate letters.

No sir, in the future, they said, should a committee be so unwise as to call them they would take a high and lofty attitude and lifting their pince nez glasses would say: "Why, really, Senators you are asking me about lobbying—why you are quite absurd. Of course, we have to lobby to offset the Administration's activities. And really you can learn much more about the game from them than you can from us. They are such experts as we never expect to be."

This attitude, they said, would prove a boomerang and make the Senators look very silly, indeed.

• • • •

Their attitude is unquestionably logical. The only question is why they do not carry it out. After having professed to be very happy over the new situation and vowing how cocky they would be before a committee, the first crowd to be haled before one, the utility fellows, went up with hat in hand as of old.

If there is anything clearly apparent, it is that the Black committee's hasty jump at the utilities lobby is not with any view whatsoever of eliciting information, but for the purpose of creating sufficient propaganda to snatch their "death" clause in the utility bill from defeat. The Administration and the "death" clause proponents took a bad licking in the House. The measure is now in conference. The purpose of the Black committee is to fill the air with suoh charges of lobbying on the utilities' part as to make the opponents of the "death" clause take to flight. This is the reason the committee would not wait for the more orderly inquiry by the House committee. It had to spring to its guns quick.

• • • •

Yet with this situation so perfectly clear the utility fellows have been utterly helpless before the Black committee. They haven't been able to open their mouths, or rather not to the extent of catching the headlines. The committee grabbed them the first day with the "exposure" that the utilities had spent more than $300,000 in their campaign against the bill. It seems, under the circumstances, that all the utility fellows had to say to make the committee look ridiculous was:

"Gentlemen of the committee, you can bet your boots we spent every nickel we could rake and scrape and did everything under the sun to defeat this bill. We must admit that we are so perverse that when a government tries to destroy us we get panicky and try to prevent its doing so."

Scattsered through their testimony did run this vein of defense. But it was so lost in their apologetic attitude as to make no impression upon the public at all. The $300,000 expenditure held the headlines, and throughout the testimony ran Black's demands, "Do you deny——?" that's an old prosecuting attorney's trick.

The reason, one imagines, these lobbyists never make a better showing regardless of the justification for their work is that they must remain on friendly or courteous terms with the Senators. They can't insult one or even talk up to him, because then that Senator's doors would be closed to them in the future. They would cease to be "close to big men."

• • • •

What would be really funny around here would be for some lobbying committee to call the aviation interests and ask them why they employ Elliott Roosevelt. It would be funny to hear them trying to answer, because it's something they don't know. They employed him at $12,000 a year as vice president of their Aeronautical Chamber of Commerce at a time when the Administration was cancelling the air-mail contracts. After some months, when they were complaining they had been stuck, a motion was made, with Elliott present, that his salary be increased to $15,000. There were many unspoken epithets but no dissenting votes.

Now Elliott has gone off to live in Texas, and they certainly don't need any "vice president" there. They've been beefing about the situation for months, but they are afraid to let him go.

Japan's Army Victorious

Success In Buffer State Of North China Indicates Tokyo's Military Leaders Have Regained Whip Hand And Overrule Civilian Faction Seeking Peaceful Rapprochement.

By Mark J. Ginsbourg.
Special Correspondence of The Post.

Shanghai (By Mail).

WITH no casualties, save political, and with very little ado the Japanese Kwantung Army has in three weeks created a semi-autonomous buffer state in North China, extending from the Great Wall to the Yellow River.

In executing this daring coup the army gained a victory not only over the impotent Chinese, but also over the civilian faction in the Japanese government which advocated a rapprochement with the Nanking administration. For the second time in four years the army has thwarted the foreign ministry's efforts to effect an agreement with China.

The plan to include North China within the Japanese sphere of influence has been nurtured by the military for many years. Recently this plan found its realization in the Tangku truce agreement of May 31, 1933, which put an end to the acrimonious Sino-Japanese feud over Manchuria. The agreement was signed on board of a Japanese vessel anchored off Tangku, a little town a few miles east of Tientsin, with Japanese bayonets adding weight to Nippon's arguments.

The exact terms of the document have never been revealed. According to the Chinese version it provided for the demilitarization of a large strip of land between Peiping and the Great Wall, and its administration by Special Chinese police. The Japanese army was given the right to use airplane reconnaissance and other means to see that the terms of the agreement were faithfully carried out.

• • • •

THE Japanese version has never been put down in black and white, but new provisions have kept appearing in statements made by the war office's loquacious officials. During its latest venture in North China the Kwantung army maintained that the treaty forbade ony anti-Japanese or anti-Manchoukuo activities, and that the violation of this provision forced the army to take steps in self-protection.

This paragraph was interpreted by the Tokyo generals very liberally, for an assassination of two reportedly pro-Japanese Chinese editors in Tientsin was considered by the military to be "provocative act directed against the army."

In the name of the Tangku agreement the army has already brought about the resumption of postal, telegraph, telephone and railway communications between China and Manchoukuo. Moreover, a high Kwantung army official recently intimated that the inauguration of air services between North China and the new Empire was also provided for in the treaty.

• • • •

WHEN Marshal Chang Hsueh-liang's forces were driven out of Manchuria in 1931 they moved to North China and settled there to live off the fat of the land. Marshal Chang himself took a "health" trip abroad, and on his return was appointed to a post in Hupeh province, 600 miles up the Yangtze River. Because of his troops, however, he remained a power in North China affairs, much to the disgust of the Japanese. To clear the area of the "young marshal's" troops and officials has become a major obsession with the Kwantung army.

Another obsession was the conviction that the wily Chinese were leading the foreign office by the nose, talking of friendship and international amity at the same time they were sponsoring anti-Japanese movements. The mailed fist, in the opinion of the Kwantung army, was the sole diplomatic device capable of testing China's sincerity.

The third great yearning of the army's "brain trusters" was to demilitarize the entire North China, as far south as the Yellow River, with the administration being as pro-Japanese as it could be without an outright annexation of the area by Nippon's soldiers. Plans for the Manchoukuozation of the north were reportedly abandoned only because of the feared storm of foreign protests.

• • • •

THE immediate casus belli was the incursion of a small band of irregulars from Manchoukuo into the demilitarized zone. Why the Japanese army had to wait for the band's entry into North China before embarking on a punitive expedition has been the subject of many a caustic comment in the local press. Kwantung army detachments crossed the Great Wall, crushed the rebels, and then, asserting that certain Chinese officials were aiding the band, demanded their dismissal.

The ultimatum was practically simultaneous with Foreign Minister Hirota's announcement of the appointment of Mr. Ariyoshi as Japan's first Ambassador to China—the culmination of Mr. Hirota's policy of rapprochement. The disfavor with which the War Office greated the exchange of ambassadors was not kept secret from the outside world, War Minister Hayoshi declaring in effect that the step was ill-considered and taken without sufficient consultation with the military authorities. When the army drew its sword the Foreign Office was forced to follow in the wake of the marching troops, trying to explain to the bewildered world armed hostilities in terms of olive branches, international amity and Oriental cooperation.

The army's demands were as sweeping as the famous 21 demands of 1915. They insisted on the removal of Marshal Chang's chief vassal, Gen. Yu Hsueh-chung, and his troops from North China, the dissolution of the Civil and Military Councils of the Nanking Government, the disbandment of the North China Kuomintang (this country's ruling party) offices, the cessation of all anti-Japanese and anti-Manchoukuo activities and the closure of all unfriendly organizations, removal of the Hopei provincial government from Tientsin to Pootingfu, to diminish its influence, and the dismissal of various officials.

• • • •

ALL the efforts of the Chinese politicos to gain time proving fruitless, they accepted the Japanese demands in toto. The only hitch in the otherwise delightfully smooth procedure occurred when Gen. Ho Ying-chin, chairman of the military council and Nanking's highest official in the North, suddenly and secretly left Peiping for Nanking. Foreign sources indicated that the flight was caused by his reluctance to sign his acceptance of the Japanese demands, which would place the annexation of North China on legal legs. At the time of writing the riddle—"to sign or not to sign," is sill unsolved, but Nanking will probably comply with Japan's wishes.

With Hopei Province in its hands the Japanese army began to round up its new acquisitions. As a result of an overnight detention in Chahar of four Japanese, who were officially denoted as employes of the Kwantung army, but of whom in reality one was a secret service man and three others employes of the Mitsubishi concern, surveying the possibilities for economic development, another ultimatum was presented to the Chinese.

Again it was hurriedly complied with, the objectionable governor removed, a pro-Japanese official appointed in his stead, unfriendly Chinese troops removed into another province, all anti-Japanese and anti-Manchoukuo movements suppressed, and a strip of land along the border of Manchoukuo demilitarized.

• • • •

ALTHOUGH the Kwantung army has cleared North China of all traces of the Nanking Government's authority it has not yet apparently decided with what form of government to endow the Chinese populus. All the political brigands of former days, who will forever remain in China's history books if only because of their phenomenal rapacity and greed, have been rumored as likely candidates to head the new administration.

It is likely that the present organization, headed by men acceptable to the Kwantung army, will be maintained for some time, with the actual political power parcelled out between the warlords of Shansi and Shantung—Generals Yen Hsi-shan, the "model governor," and Han Fu-chu. Both possess large armies in provinces flanking Japan's new sphere of influence, and both are persona grata with Japan.

The Nanking Government has been definitely shorn of all vestiges of power it has ever had in the north. Its appointees received marching orders from the Kwantung army, its troops had to be withdrawn south and west, its main support—the Kuomintang—was put underground. The new officials in the North, although ostensibly appointed by Nanking, will at all times be so acutely aware of what Japan calls her "special interests" that their usefulness from China's point of view will probably be negligible.

* * *

THE whole dispute is bound to have inestimable effects both on the policies of the central government and the Sino-Japanese relations. There is little doubt that China will submit to all past, present and future demands of the army. The latter has already indicated its desire to see the country cleared of anti-Japanese and anti-Manchukuo activities. The Nanking government has partially complied with this wish, having just issued an ordinance prohibiting any activity prejudicial to "any foreign country." The army is also pressing for the inauguration of air services between north China and Manchukuo and China and Japan. It will probably have little difficulty in overcoming Nanking's shyness.

The north China dispute has retarded the Sino-Japanese rapprochement, at least as Mr. Ariyoshi visualized it. However, in the words of the London Times, the Foreign Office "will not disdain the fruits of the soldiers' incursions into diplomacy." With Nanking in a more submissive mood than ever before, Nippon's diplomats will find their task none too difficult.

It is easy to foretell that the foreign enterprises in north China will now experience the fate of those in Manchukuo. The effects of this situation are also bound to be felt in the rest of China. And at this moment it seems that nothing Washington or London can do, inclusive of the mission here of financial experts like Sir F. Leith-Ross, will obstruct the Nippon-ward trend in Chinese politics.

Mr. Pepys In Bed.

UP BETIMES, and the wench making the bed, I dash cold water over my horrendously yellow phiz while trying to remember how in the hospitals they can put a bed to rights while the sick man still lies there. Very puzzling, with my wits none too agile.

Then back to bed, feeling as weak as a kitten lost in Ludlow lane, which state is trifling redeemed by my morning repast of one sip of orange juice—or so it seems—and two sips of milk and one piece of toast so dry a man could blot a letter with it. I can not think this jaundice is so amusing as did the merry gentleman who came into my chamber and inquired: "And how would you like a brave dish of sea lobster tossed in hot butter, with a heap of sparrow grass beside it well doused in Holland sauce, and a tankard of ale to wash it down?" I was in no mood for such merriment, and I replied to him bitterly.

• • • •

SO A BOOK beside me, and I pick it up with all the will in the world to escape from my saffron skin. Can not but remember with a smile how astonished the lending library was at my sending for a package of books—but all I can manage to nibble at without acute discomfort is a story of mystery, and everything of that ilk under the roof has long since been perused.

Went through two of my honored R. Austin Freeman's tales—"Dr. Thorndyke Intervenes" and "Dr. Thorndyke to the Rescue." No quivers in this emaciated frame, but a fine admiration for the doctor's cool logics through a Chinese puzzle box. In the bloom of health, nothing pleases me more than these so-called scientific detective stories, filled with medical knowledge and legal lore.

But what I craved now was the active and bizarre, the shots by night and the headlong escapes down the dark road. And I got it in Leslie Charteris, to wit: "The Saint and Mr. Teal" and "The Saint in New York"—filled with the incredible adventures of the impossibly strong, swift, clever and lucky "Saint," a gentleman who made crime his hobby in order to relieve the distressed and the jeopardized. Would like to have amnesia and read them over again.

Then something called "The Hangover Murder" was too silly to endure, and I moved on into Mr. Oppenheim's "General Besserley's Puzzle Box," which I read as one mops a plate with a piece of bread—less for the enjoyment than the economy. Half a score of little plots of intrigue in one book turned out as bright and shiny as a Sheffield meat knife, and that was all. Mr. Oppenheim sells by the yard like a draper.

• • • •

TRUE to my sworn love, went through David Hume's "They Called Him Death" like a hot knife through butter. A criminal ring directed by a man called Mr. Death (and not pronounced "De-ATH," either, as the current English name has it), night attacks on a foggy road, a sanatarium full of dope addicts disappearing overnight, and that was enough. Just as choicely strenuous was Martin J. Freeman's "The Case of the Blind Mouse"—two radio singers in Chicago, one curiously murdered and the other kidnaped to the strangest hide-out on record. Were we having hot weather round about? I wouldn't know.

And great praise for Miss Dorothy Sayers' "Murder Must Advertise," telling how death and fouler crime lurk in a London advertising agency, so as to please me with the truth of the characters and yet to make my skin prickle. Her third "Omnibus of Crime" is out with an introduction, which is not to forget the fine and learned preface she gave her first one. Yet my most real and prize discovery was Miss Alice Campbell's "Keep Away From Water", which is toasted and served to perfection—a story of old English ladies and the decadent French on the Riviera and three murders occurring—bless the bond of hypochondria!—from perforated stomach ulcers which pass all understanding until the end. Granted days enough, shall read all the rest of Miss Campbell's mysteries.

Thus wise can an infirmity in the spleen be met and even relished. And so to bed—which is a proper redundancy, seeing as I haven't left it for ten days.

Vote in Senate Upholds Right To Fix Prices

Amendment to Strengthen Farm Law Wins by Margin of Two.

an inquiry from Senator Barkley (Democrat), Kentucky, as a balanced budget and the end of attempts to raise prices and restrict production. Senator Norris (Republican), upheld the AAA.

Most official and congressional quarters were disinclined to comment on the decision against processing taxes, and the one in Cincinnati on Monday adverse to slum clearance plans, pending study of the opinions.

Want Early Decision.

However, the AAA publicity section last night issued the following statement by Solicitor Seth Thomas:

"The decision in the Hoosac Mills case was not unanimous. There are other circuit courts of appeals, and decisions at variance with that handed down today by the Circuit Court in the First Judicial Circuit may be rendered in one or more of these circuits.

"We have felt and still feel that there are strong legal grounds for the contention that the processing tax sections of the agricultural adjustment act are constitutional. The final verdict will not be written until the Supreme Court has spoken. We are hopeful of an early decision from the highest tribunal."

Senators Tydings (Democrat), of Maryland, and Byrd (Democrat), of Virginia, led the fight against the price-fixing provision, assisted by Senator Dickinson (Republican), of Iowa, who spread his attack to the whole bill by citing the Boston Circuit Court decision against AAA processing taxes.

"The fundamental law is the same in this bill as in the AAA," Dickinson said, "and if it is held unconstitutional, so would be these amendments.

"I think it would be a good thing if it were sent back to committee for reconsideration."

Answered By Smith.

Chairman Smith (Democrat), of South Carolina, of the Agriculture Committee fought back furiously at attacks on the bill. At one time he became so heated that when a colleague sought to interrupt, he refused to yield, saying "I'm in a weeping mood."

"Anyone studying this bill," he said, "will see that the price fixing is predicated upon an agreement of the producers, not only of the handlers."

Byrd challenged him to show where the producers had any voice in the price fixing by handlers. Smith agreed it was not entirely as clear as he would like it and offered to accept an amendment making any price-fixing provision subject to sanction of a majority of the growers.

The Senate thundered down a proposal by Senator Copeland (Democrat), New York, to require approval of three-fourths instead of two-thirds of the handlers of a commodity before the handlers could be compelled to accept a marketing agreement.

Tydings opened the attack on the price fixing provisions in the bill, but under questioning by Senator Barkley (Democrat), Kentucky, quickly joined with Senator Ashhurst (Democrat), Arizona, in assailing much New Deal philosophy.

"We are proposing seriously to tax the citizen," Ashurst said, "and not let him go into court to test the validity of the tax."

Criticizing the whole AAA program, Tydings said:

"I would rather create wealth and feed the people on plenty than create scarcity and feed them on something else."

Nationalism As a Religion

By

Wm. Lyon Phelps.

THE exaltation of nationalism as a religion, which has become so prevalent in various European countries during these last few years, has bought out a spirited debate in the London newspapers, in which prominent clergymen and others have taken part. There have been many interesting letters, and there has appeared one letter, from Mr. Athelstan Riley, which seems to suggest that there may one general cause for these manifestations. His letter is so interesting and so challenging that I think some quotations from it will interest my readers. After expressing his admiration for the excellence of various contributions, he says:

"Have they sufficiently covered the ground on which the phenomena appears? Take countries: Russia is, of course, the most conspicuous, but look at Turkey: the forcible repression of religion there is not so ruthlessly cruel or so bloody as in Russia, but it is of the same nature. Secondly, religions: it is not only Christianity and Judaism that are attacked, for in Turkey what those of us who know that country would have thought impossible has been accomplished, the successful attack on Mohammedanism and the conversion of St. Sophia into a museum.

"While in Mexico a vigorous persecution of the church has been going on for some time; in China, on the other side of the world, an ancient religion, or at least an ancient morality, is being steadily sapped * * * Why, when socialism gets the upper hand, as lately in Spain, are churches and convents the first biuldings to be burned? What is behind the world-wide assault of materialism, this revolt against all authority, this attack on the majesty of God? * * * But, further, what is the cause of the modern cult of ugliness in aesthetics, in architecture, painting, sculpture, music Whence comes that incessant sex-appeal, shouting at us from press, poster, and cinema? * * * Are not all these manifestations of some centrally controlling cause? * * *

What is this spirit that seems to be brooding over the globe, for 'we may almost hear the beating of its wings'?"

Mr. Riley has asked some pertinent questions; let us remember what Dean Inge said—that the reason Communists hate Christianity is not because they don't understand it, but because they do.

Offers Resolution for Adjournment

gentleman from Georgia (Deen), that Congress ought speedily to adjourn," said Woodrum. "But if I interpret your applause correctly it is an expression of sympathy with the sentiment rather than an expression of your intention."

There was no debate on the O'Connor tabling motion, although Deen tried vainly for recognition to make a point of order.

Postmaster General James A. Farley was at the Capitol yesterday, and Harrison, before his conference with Doughton, is said to have talked with both Farley and Vice President Garner.

No Change in Tax Plan.

Harrison several weeks ago gave Senator Robert M. La Follette, jr. (Progressive), Wisconsin, assurances that the tax bill would be enacted this session, in exchange for La Follette's promise not to attempt to amend the nuisance tax measure. He did so after similar assurances from the Ways and Means Committee.

Yesterday, the Mississipian recalled that promise, and said he "intended to keep faith."

"There has been no change in that plan," he told newspapermen. "Nothing has been intimated to me, nor has anything come from any Administration quarter that there is any change in the program.

"It is the Administration's desire that the tax recommendations be considered at this session, and that Congress not adjourn until it has an opportunity to pass on these proposals."

Doughton's Ways and Means Committee will not actually commence to draft the tax bill until next Monday, due to a heavy legislative slate. The committee meanwhile reported the FACA bill yesterday, creating a new Treasury agency for Federal alcohol control. Late this week it expects to act on the Guffey coal bill, which the President wants enacted this session as a constitutional test of Federal regulatory powers.

Berlin Police Strive to Halt Anti-Jew Riots

American Midshipman Who Defended Woman Spends Night in Jail.

By the Associated Press.

Berlin, July 16. — Reinforced police, warned against allowing renewal of last night's anti-Jewish rioting, kept crowds moving along Berlin boulevards tonight, but the Reichsbund, organization of Jewish War Veterans, warned members to be "ready for an emergency."

Cooling showers dampened unruly spirits, however, and there was not the slightest hint of impending trouble evident in the big crowds of curious promenaders.

Patrol cars moved back and forth, policemen in threes were vigilant along the sidewalks and police officers were stationed at the movie theater where last night's rioting began. The theater had signed posters saying "House Sold Out." Nazis and Jews alike have made strenuous efforts to prevent recurrence of the disorders in connection with which an American midshipman was arrested.

Pays 50-Mark Fine.

E. W. Wood, of New York, midshipman aboard the battleship Wyoming, returned to his hotel, after spending the night in jail and paying 50 marks (about $20) fine for fist fighting, to describe vividly the disorders raging in Berlin.

A woman was knocked down before his eyes, Wood said, and another woman who protested also was felled. The man who hit her, the midshipman said, asked him:

"What do you think of that?"

After he expressed disapproval, the man asked him:

"What are you going to do about it?"

That started the fight which police stopped, arresting Wood. He said he did not know whether his adversary was jailed.

Several hundred other American middies along Berlin's great white way, the Kurfurstendamm, watched last evening's anti-Jewish demonstration which lasted until the early hours of morning. One Jew was knocked unconscious, several show windows broken and Jews generally sent scurrying homeward from public places.

Today's efforts to return peace to the city came, on the one hand, from the Nazi-controled state police and on the other from leading members of the Jewish community and Jewish organizations.

The police warned "elements inimical to the state" that they could not pursue their "anti-governmental purposes and, through tumults, bring the state and the (Nazi) movement into disfavor."

Students Push New Plans for Mexican Revolt

By the Associated Press.

Mexico City, July 16.—Mexican students today mourned five comrades who died for their opposition to Tomas Garrido Canabal, strong man of Tabasco State, and said stoutly they would "never cease the battle" until his overthrow.

A powerful students' organization to enter the Tabasco State elections in August is being formed, the students said. They insisted their intention was to fight with ballots, not bullets.

"If we are attacked, however," leaders stated, "we will know how to defend ourselves."

Advices from Villa Hermosa, Tabasco, said quiet had been restored after last night's gun battle and was under the protection of federal troops.

An expedition to Villa Hermosa to "force Garrido to leave the country" was reported forming here.

A dispatch from Vera Cruz, Mexico, reported Tabasquenos were preparing to leave in boats for Villa Hermosa to oppose Garrido. More than 200 were reported ready to enlist.

Leaders of the anti-Garrido movement said nearly 2,000 oil workers now employed in Vera Cruz fields would constitute the backbone of their forces.

These workers, organized in unions, will enter Tabasco in groups to visit villages and organize the voters against the anti-church leader.

of religion, be he Christian or Jewish, is permitted to exercise his sacred functions."

British Queries Cited.

"Taking cognizance of this condition," the petition continued, "the British Secretary of State for Foreign Affairs, Sir John Simon, has promised the members of the House of Commons that he would interest the British minister at Mexico City as well as the British consular officials throughout the aforesaid 14 States of Mexico to institute an inquiry as to the facilities for divine worship available to British citizens resident in or visiting those communities.

"In view of the fact that there are more American citizens of all denominations than there are British citizens, both resident in and visiting the 14 States where no minister of religion is permitted, the question naturally arises whether a similar inquiry might not be made in the Republic of Mexico through the American embassy and the American consular officials.

"The undersigned members of Congress together with the full membership of the committee believe that some simple and constructive measure ought to be taken in order to ascertain the facts on this situation evidencing an affirmative interest in the religious rights of American citizens of all faiths and creeds."

Opposed to Intervention.

Higgins pointed out to the President that while the members of the committee calling on him were convinced that "numerous, sincere and salutary efforts" had been made by the American Government to bring the Mexican govenment to a realization of the gravity of the problem, they nevertheless felt obligated to voice their concern that absolutely nothing of an official public character has been put on record to show American concern for the traditional American principles of religious liberty, particularly where the rights of American citizens were concerned."

He contended that the committee was "unalterably opposed to any semblance of interference or intervention in Mexico," but that there had been "intervention of an undesirable character in the sense that an attempt has been made to block the efforts of those interested in this campaign for human rights."

Hits Opposition to Protests.

The Massachusetts Democrat said it had been charged, and not denied, that the Administration had given orders that no hearings should be held on the Borah or other resolutions dealing with the Mexican situation. This, he added, would not be neutrality, but active espousal of one side, if it were true.

The President was reminded that recently Secretary of State Cordell Hull had raised his voice in disapproval over the threatened Italo-Ethiopian war, but that none had called that intervention, nor was "a single voice raised against this act of diplomatic procedure."

Similar action could be taken with regard to the religious situation in Mexico, the group told the President, because in a treaty of recognition with this country Mexico promised full religious liberty.

Gondola Lends Romantic Note At Nearby Club

By Chanticleer.

Well, we've found a gondola in the region . . . operating as any well-behaved gondola would in a crystal-clear, cool pool.

And high above the shimmering waters is a maid who sings to her sweetheart in the gondola below . . . Sherry Louise's lovely voice is carried to us as we sit on the Maryland Club Gardens terrace with one of Maryland's choicest chickens, fried to perfection, before us and a julep at the left elbow.

• • • •

Just in case you've put off making that first trip for one of those chicken dinners, you should know that a new note in floor shows is in store for you. In the first place the floor is across the pool from the diners on the porch and terrace.

• • • •

Charlie Mayer, who has been master of ceremonies for more than a year, which shows how Master Mayer has fared at the hands of the customers, swings a microphone out over the abbreviated floor over the pool and advises that Leyla has ready a paradox in terpsichore—a modern-primitive number.

And Leyla does a sinuous dance that is the more primitive of the two. And then Master Mayer sings a new tune and Leyla reappears in a Persian girl's interpretation of Ravel's great "Bolero."

• • • •

Nothing is lacking in voices, for Sherry Louise's "Estrellita" from the gondola is beautifully done and radio audiences up and down these Eastern States know Charlie Mayer's barytonings.

It's really a full day's program at Maryland Gardens, for the pool opens at 9 in the morning and the terrace at 11.

It happened at the Shoreham Terrace. Barnee had left the orchestra stand, diners were busy in conversation and waiters were hurrying about. Suddenly a familiar tune was wafted on the night breeze. We recognized Ida's accordion.

At the next table conversation ceased and heads began to turn in almost reverential silence. And then we heard the melody quite distinctly and saw Ida at a table close by playing very softly for a boy who was listening with rapt attention, "Jesus Loves Me, That I Know."

• • • •

Find a man, no matter what degree of sophisticate he may have become, and if he went to a Sunday School as a boy, out in a little Indiana town he will remember that song. . . . Ah, there's Ruthenia and Malcolm . . . hope they do that swell burlesque on the ballroom waltz . . . and they do! . . . with that great finale . . . Ruthenia throwing the big awkward lug over her shoulder and carrying him off.

Out Dude Ranch way the folks at the ringside are pleased. With the cool countryside contributing that much sought for relief and Dolly Dare, the little hostess and songstress; Jean DeVille, of the modernistic dance DeVilles, and Vera Miller, of the twinkling toes stirring the red corpuscles right into action again. You'll like it.

Add cigarette girl notes: Hi-Hat's Hazel Sykes has gone away for a vacation . . . and Head Man McKay sent 'way to Alexandria, Va., for a pinch-hitter, Laura Fones, to you . . . For Saturday nights a seven-piece dance orchestra is specially added.

Hangar Club announces a new deal for night prowlers . . . From now on the closing hour is 6 a. m. . . . Two weeks ago Ramon, of the Powhatan Roof, was host to the members of Hal Kemp's Band . . . while they idled four days between engagements . . . and last week he was host to little Marie Fowler who was resting preparatory to making her bow to audiences of Jack Denny and his band . . . And we also learned that Jimmy Harris, of Pete Macias' Band, is of the good old Noblesville Harrises . . . Noblesville being a Hoosier village, in case it makes any difference to any one except another hipp . . . or rather Hoosier.

• • • •

Another Al Norton floor show employing the service of Bill Strickland's Capitolians is on tap at the Lotus this week . . . entitled "Frankie and Johnnie." . . . Topplining the floor show are Doryce and Freddy Drew, dance team held over from last week . . . and a fast tumbling and acrobatic trio whose names, we regret to report, we failed to learn . . . And for those who wish to dine and dance without a floor show . . . Gay Paree, with orchestra at luncheon, dinner and supper.

This is a typical nightly picture atop the Arlington Roof when the heat-oppressed gather. None other than Moe Baer, leader of the Club Habana's Orchestra, is first to the left at the open-faced bar. To the right is Frank McNey, Ambassadorial Hi-Hat's manager, who has gone to Long Beach, on the Bay, for a vacation.

2 Held for Grand Jury On Charges of Robbery

Two men were held for the grand jury yesterday when they were arraigned before Police Court Judge Robert E. Mattingly. They had been charged with robbery following their arrest by Detective Sergeant Frank O. Brass. The defendants, James F. Cole and Arthur J. Council were placed under bonds of $2,000 and $1,000 respectively.

Cole was identified by Miss Louise Kenny, manager of a branch laundry office in the 3500 block of Fourteenth street northwest, as the man who held her up in the laundry May 2, robbing her of $57 in cash. The other man, a cab driver, was charged with snatching the pocket book of Margaret Brown at Sixteenth and O streets northwest, July 13.

An Open Letter To Johnny Dundee.

New York, July 16.

Dear John: In the last two important fights, you've picked the winners—you picked Braddock over Max Baer, and you picked Joe Louis to flatten Carnera. In the last Ross-McLarnin fight, you said that it would be the closest fight of the three, and that if it was a decision, Ross would get it. Now, Johnno, I represent a $5 betting syndicate. The members include Marvin Schenck, Anatole Friedland, Dave Marx, Tom Patricola, Lou Marx, Bugs Baer, Walter Shirley and Elmer Leterman. As you can figure out for yourself, at $5 a head, this means that close to $50 must be placed on the Joe Louis-Max Schmeling fight. It is preferable, of course, for us to bet the right way, as the club members like to win. So John, old boy, will you peek into the crystal ball, put on the rajah robes, visit both camps and pick one for us. Awaiting a speedy reply, though the speed should not be permitted to interfere with accuracy, I am,

Your palsy-walsie sure-thing bettor, Ed.

An Open Letter to Mary Ellis.

Dear Miss Ellis: I saw you in "Paris in Spring" at the Paramount Theater, a few nights ago, and as an old bandwaggon-rusher, let me be one of the first to get up on the bandwaggon with you and shout your praises. You were amazingly swell in the flicker. Honey, you've got what it takes to be a screen star—charm, feminine appeal, looks, acting ability and voice. I think that you could trim off a few pounds here and there, as Grace Moore did, but the rigors of a diet aren't so tough to take in view of the money it will make possible. To those of us who remember you from the Broadway smash hit, "Rose Marie," your screen competence was not startling. You had a solid background of training on the stage. Stay right in there, keep your chin up—and you can't miss—the whole town's talking about you. Best regards, E. S.

An Open Letter From Gummo Marx.

Dear Ed: Your confession that you got burned, using your own sunburn lotion, has saved you an enemy for life. I used the recipe, and even wired it to Groucho and Harpo. Now I don't mind smelling like the salad on a 40-cent dinner, but I object to looking like a lobster on a blue-plate luncheon. After a few days of this astonishing redness, the skin began to peel, and I began to scratch and curse Ed Sullivan. I scratched and cursed until I didn't know whether I was scratching myself and cursing you, or scratching you and cursing myself. Tonight let us both lay down and curse Lee Shubert, who fathered the recipe.

Kindest regards, Gummo Marx.

An Open Letter To Jimmy Blakeley.

Dear Jimmy: I remember when you used to hang around the swanky El Morocco night after night with Woolworth Donahue, Buddy Adler, Dan Topping and the rest of them. You were anxious, even then, to become an actor, and I remember how the crowd giggled at the thought of a Park avenue lad earning a living in Hollywood. Then you went out there, and our only link with your career was an occasional note of a coast-romance in which you were involved. The other night, to my amazement, I caught you playing opposite Tullio Carminati and Ida Lupino, and you were grand. Most of the society crowd who essay the movies, are, in the words of Bob Rubins: "Amateurs in a professional game." The more credit therefore belongs to you for a highly professional performance. The El Morocco loafers are proud of you.

Best, Ed. S.

To Adolf Hitler.

Dear Ad: I see by the papers that you have chucked a fellow into the Bastile because he publicly imitated the way you eat asparagus. Instead of cutting it, you pick it between thumb and forefinger and eat right up the stalk. Now there are a lot of things you do with which I'm in complete disagreement, but congratulations on your asparagus treatment. That is the best way to eat them. Be careful, however, not to foul the asparagus in your mustache. This is an offside play and carries a five-yard penalty. In addition, it is very messy.

Very truly, E.S.

To St. Swithin.

Dear Mr. Swithin: Well, how about it? Things are going from bad to worse, from hot to hotter. We understand that you are in charge of the thunderstorm department, that you're a rain hoarder. Come on, Toots—get generous. This is one time that the whole country wants somebody to throw cold water on a proposition. Get hot, Mr. Swithin, so we can get cool.

Perspiringly yours, E. S.

D. C. Friends Hail Philip's Promotion

Diplomat to Succeed Hal Sevier as Ambassador to Chile.

By Evelyn Peyton Gordon.

The news that Mr. Hoffman Philip, popular member of the United States Foreign Service, now representing this country at Oslo, Norway, has been appointed United States Ambassador to Chile, to succeed Mr. Hal Sevier, who recently resigned because of illness, has been received with much gratification by his many friends in Washington.

Mr. Philip is a native Washingtonian and has been in the foreign service since 1901, when he entered the consular service. Since then he has served as Minister to Colombia, Uruguay and Persia as well as Norway.

Mr. Philip and his charming wife usually spend their vacations in the Capital. Several years ago they bought and remodeled a handsome house on Massachusetts avenue. However, the house has been leased for the last two years to the Counselor of the Netherlands Legation and Baroness van Breugel Douglas, so when Mr. and Mrs. Philip come to Washington next month they will probably stay at the Anchorage.

Collect Interesting Objects.

Members of the foreign service, although they travel far and wide, often return to Washington to establish a permanent residence. And that is just what the Philips did. During a long leave of absence, before they proceeded to their then new post, Oslo, Mrs. Philip had a busy time planning and buying furniture and draperies not only for her new Washington home but for the American Legation in Norway.

The house was charming when they bought it, but with interesting ideas of their own, Mr. and Mrs. Philip went about the decorations, finding places for the handsome and charming things they had collected on their travels. Mr. Philip's post, previous to his appointment to Oslo, was in Teheran, Persia, or Iran, as it now is called, and in the Massachusetts avenue house there are many interesting things collected in the Near East. While serving in Teheran, Mr. Philip acted as personal representative for President Coolidge at the coronation of the Shah of Persia in April, 1926.

Portrait by Noted Artist.

To the interesting collection of things which Mr. and Mrs. Philip had placed in their home, the Baron and Baroness van Breugel Douglas added some things of their own from the Dutch East Indies and from the Near East, where the Baron had served his country diplomatically before coming here. The Baroness van Breugel Douglas, who is Rumanian by birth, also had many things from her own country which add to the beauty of the house. An outstanding feature of the drawing room, which runs across the front of the house, and is lighted by long French windows, is a portrait of Baroness van Breugel Douglas painted by Senor Don Cesar Bernaldo Quiros, famous Argentine painter who spent several winters in the Capital.

The picture accentuates the baroness' black hair. She is seated gracefully on a marble bench, wearing a gown of opalescent white velvet. The background of the picture is a soft gray-green, and the frame of silver and green carries out the colors of the portrait.

Baron and Baroness van Breugal Douglas have leased a house at Bluemont, Va., for the summer, where they are established with their small daughter, Vera. Baron van Breugel Douglas spends a part of each week in the Capital, and later in the summer, when the Minister of the Netherlands, Jonkheer van Haersma de With, sails for a vacation in Europe, where he will join his family, the baron will be charge d'affaires.

The dining room which opens on a small garden, is filled with lovely pieces of antique furniture, Turkish rugs and portraits of members of the family. One of the outstanding features is the handsome walnut sideboard with from 40 to 50 silver cups won by Col. Cootes for his riding prowess.

Many friends of Col. and Mrs. Cootes, who have enjoyed their hospitality in this charming house, probably will continue to do so as Col. Cootes will entertain at informal parties during the absence of his family.

The opening last evening of the Roadside Theater's third production of the summer season, "To Die at Dawn," an old melodrama of life in the Kentucky mountains, drew many prominent Washingtonians.

The Commissioner of the Interstate Commerce Commission and Mrs. Carroll have reservations for Wednesday night. Mr. F. George Clendaniel will entertain a large party Thursday.

"To Die at Dawn" has all the thrills of the typical melodrama. In the cast are Gail Dennis, Ralph Fowler, Harold Stepler, John Edwards, Lavina Merrick, Charles A. Bell, Thomas Cahill, Elinor Cox Karsten, Kenn Romney and William Phillips. The production will run two weeks at the Rockville Pike Barn Playhouse, near the Georgetown Prep School. Oil Preparation Protects Hair From the Sun

Internationally Known Firm Puts Special Formula On Market.

By Dudley Harmon.

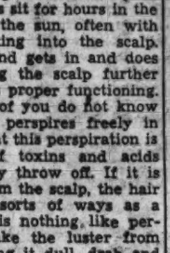
Pinch-Hitting for Ruth Anne Davis.

THE SUN! We all love it, and use it, for the vigor, health and beauty which it gives us. But, as most of us have learned from painful experience, we must use certain common sense protective measures along with our sun baths. Most of us go to great length to protect our skin from burning to a crisp, yet how many of you sun worshipers apply the same care and thoughtfulness to your hair? Most of us sit for hours in the direct rays of the sun, often with salt water caking into the scalp. Often gritty sand gets in and does its best to clog the scalp further and prevent its proper functioning. Perhaps many of you do not know that the scalp perspires freely in summer and that this perspiration is usually full of toxins and acids which the body throw off. If it is not cleaned from the scalp, the hair suffers in all sorts of ways as a result. There is nothing like perspiration to take the luster from the hair, leaving it dull, drab and colorless and dry as a result.

But here is good news for those who follow the sun around. An internationally known house of hair specialists has discovered a special formula for keeping the hair soft and glossy. It is a preparation of oils and balms with all the exotic scent of the Orient. You apply it to the entire length of the hair, although it does not need to go to the scalp, as it is merely an external protective fluid. It may also be sprayed on with an atomizer. Do not worry about looking greasy with this oil, for it dries off quickly in the sun and your hair will look so fluffy and light that no one will ever suspect that it is saturated with oil. And at the end of the season, the hair the sun shines on will be glossy and silky instead of dry, brittle and faded. The bottle costs only $1, and is for sale at an F street department store.

An Oil for Cracked Nails.

UNSIGHTLY HANGNAILS—nails which are split and cracked—even the most carefully cared for hands cannot be attractive under these conditions. And furthermore, summer sun, exercise, and the frequent use of liquid nail polish often result in a breaking and splitting of the nail. Therefore you will be glad to know that at last some one has invented an oil which absolutely does away with cracked nails, and keeps the cuticle in good condition. The important factor about this polish is that it restores to the nail the valuable oils which have been lost through frequent use of liquid nail polish. Both nail and cuticle will gain new health and vigor under this treatment. You put it on at night, massage into the skin, and let it remain until the next morning. Put out by a well-known cosmetics house, and on sale at a downtown drug store, this oil costs only 50 cents for a generously filled bottle.



A Bargain in Bead Bags.

THOUSANDS of little seed pearls and crystal beads went into the making of the attractive evening bags displayed in a downtown store. These will be worth your while to see. They are, for the time being, selling at the special price of $1. And they're unique in the way they're designed. Not one among them falls into the category of "same as other bags." They do have this in common, though—they fasten with a zipper, a firm sturdy zipper that's proof against things falling out.

In the same group of bags you'll also find some quaint, dainty little sequin purses, delicately flesh colored. These are the same price.

Sleeplessness Can Be Avoided By Set Routine

Harmless Hypnotic Advised When Worry Causes Insomnia.

By Dr. Irving S. Cutter.

SLEEPLESSNESS is a fairly common symptom and the condition arises frequently because the individual has established a vicious cycle which began with the query, "Will I sleep tonight?" If one will concentrate on this question hard enough and long enough daylight will appear and the answer will be "No." Midnight arrives without sleep, then 1 o'clock, with the thoughts still foaming. How rotten I will feel tomorrow," says the insomniac. By this time he is desparate. He wanders about, tries to read, or counts sheep. Fears and apprehensions race through his mind. "What's that—only a bird twittering; it's getting light outside," then full chorus of bird calls, the rattle of the milk wagon, and another day has dawned. Perhaps exhaustion has finally brought an hour or two or sleep, but far too little for the tasks of a new day.

Some time ago an inquiry came in asking for remedies for insomnia; suggestions were invited and hundreds were received. They ran all the way from a nightcap [liquid or flannel] to delectable onion stew taken at bedtime. When advised of the proposed remedies one unfeeling correspondent replied that he preferred to keep his insomnia.

If one can secure 8 hours of sleep—fine; but if only six or seven come naturally this amount may be adequate. Thomas A. Edison, who was a notorious poor sleeper, lived to be over 80.

Sleeplessness is not a disease, although it may be a symptom of some underlying condition, such as arteriosclerosis accompanied by high blood pressure, as was described in yesterday's article. More often than not it is a nervous reflex that has upset the physiology of the brain in the region of the hypothalamus. There is some evidence that disturbances in this area, particularly the potassium-calcium balance, prevent sleep.

Self-training is the remedy for the individual who is convinced that he can not sleep. He should follow a specific plan, which includes a light evening meal followed by a quiet, restful period. The half-hour before retiring should be spent in light exercise, walking in the open air preferred.

Century of Progress Exhibit Displayed at Trinity College

Mrs. Minna Schmidt Began Making Dolls at Age of 6; She Has Won Success in Variety of Pursuits.

By Hope Ridings Miller.

AT 54 SHE BEGAN to study law. At 63 she finished the course. But in the meantime Mrs. Minna Moscherosch Schmidt had conquered more worlds than the average woman glimpses in a lifetime.

She had been a successful teacher, research worker, dancer, play and pageant director and writer. She owned the first building in this country wholly devoted to the costume business, and she had begun lecturing on costumology at the University of Chicago. Furthermore, she had started making the figurines, representing "400 outstanding women of the world," that were eventually one of the most popular exhibits at the Century of Progress.

Those figurines now have a permanent home in the art gallery at Trinity College where, spacious cases arranged in the center of the room contain representations of the noted women of 40 countries.

Yesterday, Mrs. Schmidt told something of how she came to make the figurines and how the huge display grew from modest beginnings. A tall woman of generous proportions, she was attired in a frock of figured silk. Her gray hair, parted in the middle, was waved and pulled back to a high, fan-shaped knot. A native of Germany, she still speaks with a decided accent, but her pleasant voice, extensive vocabulary and marked enthusiasm for whatever she discusses soon make you forget everything but what she is talking about.

Tribute to Womanhood.

"This," she said, waving her hand toward the exhibit, "is my tribute to womanhood. If it shows history in a new light, with that light illuminating to any extent the role great women have played in the past, I shall be satisfied."

Mrs. Schmidt's first group of figurines modeled outstanding Illinois women of the last century and was exhibited first in Chicago at the Historical Museum and later in Springfield at the Centennial Museum. The success of these showings led her to create the larger group for the Century of Progress. The result was a miniature hall of fame, a monument to motherhood and sisterhood, fashioned with figurines—16 inches high and beautifully gowned, coiffed and jeweled.

"I should be good at making them now," said Mrs. Schmidt, her blue, brown-flecked eyes twinkling. "I made my first doll more than 60 years ago."

Then a child of 6, living in Sindelfinger, Germany, she wanted more than anything in the world two dolls to represent Snow White and the dwarf.

"That wish might never have come true but for my grandmother's imagination and resourcefulness," she said, her eyes narrowing ever so slightly—as if she were looking back through the years to the time when tiny Minna Moscherosch was disconsolate because there was no Snow White among her dolls. "But grandmother came to the rescue and made the suggestions. I made the dolls. And such dolls they were, with chestnut heads, lacquered potatoes for bodies, and sticks for legs set in shoes of wood. The dwarf's beard and the wigs were of wool. Brown flannel clothed the dwarf and Snow White was appropriately dressed in a muslin frock. When I took them to school, my classmates were thrilled beyond measure. That settled it. I would make figurines all my life."

Conferred With Leaders.

But ambitious though she was, the little German girl hardly dreamed she would one day be responsible for an exhibit that presents history in a new light, with that light and serves for young and old as a visual education on worthy women.

Each figurine in the collection was designed and gowned according to portraits of the women represented. In compiling her list of women from other nations, Mrs. Schmidt conferred with ambassadors, ministers and consuls about the outstanding women of their respective countries. Mrs. Rufus Dawes, official hostess for the Century of Progress, assisted her in deciding which American women should be represented.

The American group is the first in view as one enters the art gallery at Trinity College. It contains figurines of 25 white women (including Abigail Adams, Susan B. Anthony, Mary Todd Lincoln and Ada Rehan), 2 Indians and 5 colored women.

"Of course, I had to be a little partial to the Americans," Mrs. Schmidt said. "That's why there are more Americans than other women in my feminine hall of fame."

In the Biblical group one finds Eve occuping a prominent place, because, as Mrs. Schmidt explained, "I had to go back to the Beginning if I included great women of all times. Besides, Eve deserves to be represented, not only because she was the first woman, but the first dressmaker. A clever one, too—with only leaves for cloth and thorns for both needle and thread."

Noted Women Nurses.

Another particularly interesting case is devoted to figurines "Under the Red Cross Emblem," representing noted women nurses from all countries in all ages.

Since she is an authority on costumology, Mrs. Schmidt is much in demand as a lecturer. Much of the material she has given from the platform has been collected in her book, "Four Hundred Outstanding Women of the World and the Costumology of Their Time," published in 1933.

In addition to Mrs. Schmidt's work, she is an active member of numerous clubs, including the Chicago Branch of the League of American Pen Women.

"Keeping busy, even when you aren't 'at work,' is one way to stay young and happy," she said. "You see, I still remember what my grandmother told me many, many years ago—'You have a right to be happy, but you must earn it.' If you do earn it, you won't have time to worry about growing old."

Ostrich Tips Adorn Toques Seen at Longchamps Races

By the Associated Press.

Longchamps, July 16.—Fine feathers made fashionable plumage for many of the women who thronged the track here during the big racing season.

Peaked toques covered with tiny navy blue ostrich tips, low-crowned black velvet postillon hats tipped with black ostrich, wide-brimmed black straw models with birds of paradise swooping across the front and big berets covered with black osprey were seen on chic heads.

Several white frocks had neck-lines and belts marked by swirls of navy blue or black coque feathers, while yellow frocks were topped by brown ostrich capes and black dresses by green coque feather capes.

Veils were used in new ways on the fall toques, which made their debut with the gala racing season. They were drawn entirely over the face, under the chin and fastened in the back "gay nineties" fashion.

White was a favorite costume shade with many of the smartest women. White crepe talleurs were accented with black patent leather revers and toques; white crepe redingotes worn with frilly, flower-patterned white mousseline blouses; white crepe afternoon frocks were accented by a garland of orange and green or red and black chiffon poppies across the front of the neckline and waistline. Other white crepe frocks appeared with wide-brimmed straw hats, gloves, shoes and bag in such tones as black, navy blue or violet.

Soft, subtle colors marked many of the dresses which the smartest women chose in afternoon length rather than the ground-sweeping effect preferred by numerous mannequins. Gray blue, powder blue, gray green or chamois yellow crepe frocks were worn with brown gloves and shoes. Their hats were in the same color, generally being wide-brimmed models of straw or felt, sometimes designed to shade the eyes, again rolling back from the forehead.

Mrs. Longworth's Pompadour Stays Against Her Will

By the Associated Press.

A POMPADOUR she hasn't worn since the World War has risen up to pester Alice Roosevelt Longworth.

A society writer penned a piece saying Mrs. Longworth ought to change her hair from its old-fashioned pompadour. This caused people to peer at her, even more than they usually do.

As a matter of fact, she did cling to the pompadour longer than most. But in 1917, her friends recall, Mrs. Longworth decided to do her hair differently.

She now wears it parted on the left side, and drawn back from the face into a knot behind. It isn't her fault that it's curly and fluffs out. She does her best to control it. As witness, at the rear of the ear, an old-fashioned amber side-comb!

Hot Weather Suggestion: Grapes in Melon Rings

Brownies or Butterscotch Pecan Squares Favored for Dessert.

By Dorothea Duncan.

IT IS UP to the housewife to turn off the heat wave three times a day. Morning, noon and night—breakfast, luncheon and dinner to you, so let's select our weapons. If it is something to chill the very spine, choose melons—watermelon, cantaloupe, or honey dew. Chilled they are as refreshing as a long icy drink, or combined with other fruits they are a perfect foil for the most sizzling day.

To start the day off right or to complete the evening meal with a grand flourish try sugar frosted grapes in chilled melon rings. It sounds like a pretty ritzy order, so just to prove how simple it really is, do it this way. Cut a chilled and washed cantaloupe into rings about ½-inch thick. Don't remove the rind, because it is prettier when left on. Place the rings on dessert plates and fill the centers with grapes, preferably seedless. Squeeze orange juice over the grapes, then, to give that cool, frosted look, sprinkle with fine powdered sugar. Serve very chilly.

These same rings, or ones cut from honeydew balls are perfection itself when filled with crisp watermelon balls. Again fine sugar can be sprinkled over the balls for the frosty effect. Use lemon juice this time instead of the orange juice, for it will add a piquance to both watermelon and honeydew.

If you are serving a melon ball cocktail in combination with other fresh fruit, add this lemon sugar sirup to the fruit while it is chilling. Use ⅓ cup of sugar to ¾ cup of water. Bring sugar and water to a boil, cool, add 2 tablespoons of lemon juice. Pink melon balls and white grapes make a tantalizing combination, as do orange slices and honeydew melon.

Don't forget that old favorite, Boston cooler, just luscious pink melon halves chilled and filled with scoops of vanilla ice cream. Or perhaps you would prefer orange, pineapple or lemon sherbet in the heart of your cantaloupe, or a honeydew ball filled with a mound of chilly raspberry ice.

When we start off our meal with fresh fruit we face the problem of a fruitless dessert. What then? Serve a neat little confection that can be washed down the throat in perfect harmony by a tall glass of iced tea, coffee or milk. Brownie for first choice and second butterscotch pecan squares. Make them this way.

Brownies.

2 eggs
1½ cups brown sugar
½ cup flour
½ teaspoon vanilla
2 squares melted chocolate, unsweetened
½ cup walnut meats, cut in pieces
2 tablespoons butter, melted

Beat eggs slightly and add the remaining ingredients. Spread evenly in buttered 7-inch square shallow pan and bake 20 minutes in moderately slow oven (325 degrees F.). Cut in squares.

Butterscotch Pecan Squares.

¼ cup butter
1 cup old-fashioned brown sugar
1 egg
1 cup flour
1 teaspoon baking powder
¼ teaspoon salt
½ cup pecan meats

Melt the butter and blend with the sugar. Add the egg, mix and let stand a few minutes until thoroughly cool. Add dry ingredients, which have been sifted together, then stir in nutmeats. Spread in a greased pan (8x8 inches) and bake 30 minutes in a moderate oven (350 degrees F.). Cut into squares and let cool in the pan.

DINNER MENU FOR TODAY.

Frosted grapes in chilled melon rings
Roast lamb with orange mint sauce
Buttered green peas Parslied carrots
Garden lettuce with sour cream mayonnaise
Butterscotch pecan squares
Iced tea Milk (for children)

Pattern No. 838

HERE IS A DRESS and jacket ensemble frankly designed for the larger woman—but designed so cleverly that it looks neither matronly nor large. The inset vest in the blouse section minimizes the full bosom. The simple but not tight sleeves are comfortable. The paneled skirt makes hips look narrower. And the jacket has enough "fit" to be becoming and smart.

For these warm days a triple-sheer crepe or cotton voile is the suggested fabric. Larger sizes will choose soft or dark colors. The pattern is accurately cut in sizes 36 to 50. Size 40 requires 6⅛ yards of 39-inch fabric, ⅝ yards for the vest.

What TODAY Means

"Cancer."

IF JULY 17 is your birthday, the best hours for you on this date are from 9:15 to 11:15 a. m., from 2:15 to 4:15 p. m. and from 8:15 to 10:15 p. m. The danger periods are from 7:15 to 9:15 a. m., from 11:15 a. m. to 1:15 p. m. and from 4:15 to 6:15 p. m.

Energetic measures may be needed to obtain satisfactory results this day. Influences conducive to delays probably will be at work, so must be guarded against. Traveling facilities may be subjected to interrupted schedules, so ample allowance for the distance to be covered must be made if engagements are to be kept. The marts of trade will be busily engaged in negotiating deals. Unless prices can be satisfactorily adjusted, comparatively few deals may be closed. Sellers and buyers should try to get together.

This is a favorable day for arranging social engagements, extending, as well as accepting invitations, and writing letters of a personal nature. Married and engaged couples, and those trying to get someone to share their future, must be careful not to misinterpret some comment which, if they are not on their guard, may be construed as offensive.

If a woman and July 17 is your birthday, you are not easily aroused, but should the occasion warrant, you are capable of expressing yourself in no uncertain terms. Your innate honesty makes deceit in others very repugnant to you. You may be much happier if you do not take the shortcomings of other people too much to heart. It might be well to remember that if we try to correct our own weaknesses, we will be kept pretty busy. A home atmosphere, combined with the love of a husband, probably will bring you your greatest happiness.

If depending on your own efforts for a satisfactory income, one of the following vocational activities might prove the right source from which to get the best results: Journalism, stenography, secretarial work, radio broadcasting, the moving pictures, or acting as a saleslady.

The child born on July 17 is likely, when it reaches high school age, to evince far greater interest in its studies than it has previously, so that its progress will be gratifying.

If a man and July 17 is your natal day, you are probably very good natured. It will be a great mistake to allow yourself to be dominated by a feeling of reluctance to push yourself forward. If you wish to succeed, never be willing to take a back seat. Law, publishing, printing, merchandising and medicine are among the mediums through which you may establish a foundation for a successful career.

Successful people born on July 17: Samuel Wood, publisher; John J. Astor, merchant; John Wilbur, Quaker preacher and writer; Horatio N. Spencer, physician; George Gibbs, antiquarian; Alexander B. Meek, jurist and author.

U. S. Children Lead In Science Survey

American children are more scientific in their thinking than are those of any other country, Science Service reports.

This conclusion has been reached as the result of an experiment conducted by Miss Jean L. Marquis, of the Institute of Child Welfare, University of Minnesota. Miss Marquis asked 700 children such questions as "What makes the wind blow?" "What causes thunder?" Why do airplanes stay up in the air?"

Investigators in other countries have found that children usually think of such matters as governed by some spirit or force, and do not make any attempt at scientific explanation. Yet Miss Marquis found that even the 8-year olds usually attempted a scientific explanation of such phenomena. She believes the scientific tradition in this country is largely responsible for this attitude.

This BUSINESS of LIVING

By Mary Haworth.

DEAR MISS HAWORTH: I am a daily reader of your column and admire your ability to solve problems and give advice. Everyone has problems, and mine is not peculiar. It is probably shared by a host of women.

I am no longer young, being in the grandmother class. However, I have good health and am far from decrepit. I have led a more than usually busy life but now, with children gone and outside interests somewhat abated, I am in serious need of new interests and activity. At first, when released from the press of daily duties, the quiet and rest was much appreciated. But now, for my own sake as well as for the sake of those with whom I come in contact, I must find something stimulating to occupy my time.

* * * *

Besides rearing a family, I have been a teacher, a business woman, a missionary and a busy pastor's wife and assistant. I am very fond of people—all sorts of people. At one time I had a list of persons whom I visited weekly. They were all shut-ins and although not poor in this world's goods, yet all were in need of the cheer I tried to give.

* * * *

With radios in nearly every home the need of outside entertainment is not so general as it was then. To me, the present need of many shut-ins and elderly persons is the sole opportunity for helpful self-expression. They can listen to the radio, yes, but they can not talk back. They may long to discuss a book or music, or tell of their experiences in life or describe their travels.

* * * *

I am fond of books, music and worth-while things and have had more than the average amount of travel. I feel I could be an appreciative listener. I wonder if there is a demand? AURIS.

Work to Be Done.

DEAR AURIS: I don't happen to know if there is any demand for "an appreciative listener" to relieve the tedium of life for elderly invalids and other shut-ins. Perhaps our readers will be good enough to let us know if there is such a demand, and if there is, provide us with the names and addresses of those who might appreciate your kindly services.

However, I do know the Volunteer Bureau of the Washington Council of Social Agencies has real use for the services of physically strong, thoroughly responsible women between the ages of, 30 and 50 or 55.

* * * *

For instance, just now the Volunteer Bureau could place five such women in a local hospital, doing volunteer clerical work, such as recording physicians' diagnoses and keeping files in order, and in doing follow-up case work on clinic patients after they are returned to their homes. Another hospital has need of two such volunteer follow-up case workers.

* * * *

Also, a "delinquency survey" conducted under the auspices of a local university, and now nearly completed, was handled in its latter stages largely by volunteer social workers, who stepped in after university classes were dismissed and student workers had returned home. This work consisted in copying material from police blotters, to afford material for study which may establish a corrollary between juvenile delinquency and inadequate housing.

* * * *

There is always filing, typing, chauffeuring and errand-running to be done by volunteer workers in behalf of the Council of Social Agencies. If you would be interested in occupying your time with such worthwhile work, I suggest you make application to Mrs. Ruth Montgomery, director of the volunteer bureau of the council, for assignment to duty. Telephone her office, Metropolitan 2284, for appointment. She is in her office one day a week, the remainder of her time being spent in the field.

* * * *

Talking with Mrs. Montgomery about your ambition to be socially useful, I asked her to name those qualifications which characterize the valuable volunteer social worker. She said: "Physical energy, a mature sense of responsibility toward agency and client such as guarantees reliability in the matter of keeping appointments punctually, or notifying us in advance that it is impossible; respect for the work one undertakes to do and a willingness to look upon it as a real, if unpaid, job."

* * * *

"Not that the job is really unpaid," Mrs. Montgomery added. "Volunteer social workers are repaid for their efforts in terms of the satisfaction they feel in helping deserving others. Also, the volunteer worker who really qualifies finds herself in constant contact with stimulating and often great personalities among her co-workers; and she has opportunity for daily growth in character and understanding."

If you have the qualifications for and the desire to accept such work on such terms, I suggest, again, that you telephone Mrs. Montgomery.

Pessimist or Optimist?

IN BRIDGE the pessimist's definition of an optimist is a player who bids too much, while the pessimist, according to the optimist, is an opponent who never makes the most of his opportunities. There are points in favor of each of these definitions and surely it does not pay in bridge to be either overly optimistic or unduly pessimistic.

Certainly a pessimist would probably not have reached game in today's hand, but then if the pessimist had reached game, probably he would have given up without a trial the only hope he had of making it.

West, Dealer.
East-West vulnerable.

West	North	East	South
Pass	Pass	Pass	1♡
1♠	Pass	Pass	Dbl.(1)
2♠(2)	Pass	Pass	4♡(3)
Pass	Pass	Dbl.(4)	Pass
Pass	Pass

1—This double is informatory, of course. While South probably will insist on playing the hand in hearts, he is anxious to show he has a very strong hand.

2—With a seven-card suit, West's rebid is sound, even though he is vulnerable.

3—Somewhat optimistic, but a sound gamble because one King or a combination of unbiddable cards such as Jack-ten and two small diamonds and a trump entry may produce a game.

4—East's high-card strength, West's repeated vulnerable overcalls and South's strong bidding have positively marked North with a bust hand, making a set extremely likely.

The Play.

West opened the ten of diamonds and when dummy and East played low, South won with the Queen. On East's double the possibility of dropping the King of hearts was extremely remote and unless declarer could find two entries to dummy and East holding both the King and Queen of clubs, the contract was hopeless. Being an optimist, however, South made the correct play of the Queen of hearts. East could not refuse to win the trick, or he would lose his King, and so when he took it, the nine and six of hearts became entries to the North hand for two club leads that enabled Mr. Optimist to make his doubled contract.

Comment.

Mr. Pessimist probably would have laid down the heart Ace, assuming his only hope was to drop the King, and when this failed would have lost the hand, despite tthe favorable location of the club honors, because he could then have gained entry to dummy only once.

The Federal Diary

Registered in U. S. Patent Office.

By Morgan Baker.

(This is the eleventh in a series on foreign civil service and the first on France.)

CERTAIN factors in the French civil service problem show a striking resemblence to the American system. These similarities include the growing difficulties of recruitment, development of classification and compensation policies, efforts to eliminate patronage, emergence of employe unions and plans for correlating the educational system with the requirements of the public service to provide better career opportunities.

BAKER.

Beyond those elements, however, the resemblence fades to the other extreme in the pronounced difference between American and French national culture, temperament, traditions, political and economic organization.

With more than a tenth of the entire electorate identified as full-time Government employes, France has the highest ratio of any western nation, or 267 per 10,000 of population. This compares with 225 for Great Britain; 202 for America; 200 for Germany, and 182 for Italy.

Accompanying the Doumergue emergency decrees of last year, which called for a 10 per cent reduction in the national service, Le Temps gave the number of full-time civil employes of the central government as more than 785,000. It was roughly estimated that the addition of the full-time employes of local governmental units raised the total to more than 1,100,000. With the further addition of all those thousands of part-time beneficiaries of the central and local treasuries who derive fees, etc., "there is no end to it," as one authority said.

While there is no main clearing office on personnel statistics, such as the American Civil Service Commission, it is estimated that the 785,000 central government employes are divided as follows:

1. Postal, telegraph and telephone services, 192,000.
2. State railway and other "industrial" enterprises, 158,000.
3. Public education, health and welfare services, 170,000.
4. All other services (fiscal, judiciary, statistical, diplomatic, etc., 265,000.

Extent of public service in France and phases of control will be discussed tomorrow.

"In Search of New Frontiers" will be the subject of an address by Secretary of Agriculture Henry A. Wallace at the biennial convention of the National Federation of Business and Professional Women's Clubs at Seattle, Wash., tonight.

ANOTHER telegraphic bombardment of Congress is due. This time it is on the leave bills now pending in the House. The American Federation of Government Employes has sent the following instructions to all members of its 206 lodges throughout the country:

"* * * Please wire your Congressman to get in touch with the Speaker of the House and ask that he recognize the chairman of the House Civil Service Committee for suspension of the rules to pass the bills."

In addition, the A. F. G. E. is circulating petitions as "the crucial hour" approaches with respect to the leave bills. The petitions read simply:

"We, Government employes, again pledging allegiance to the Government of the United States, respectfully petition the Congress of the United States for the restoration of our leave."

Obelisk to Honor Pioneers Proposed

Congress Approval Sought for Ellipse Plan.

The 15 early settlers who, in the seventeenth century, held land grants embracing the present site of the Federal City will be honored with an obelisk to be erected in the Ellipse if Congress approves, according to plans announced yesterday by Miss M. B. Morris, secretary of the Columbia Historical Society.

The National Society, Daughters of the American Colonists, is sponsoring the project, and hopes to unveil the marker at its congress here next April. Several monuments of the same character have been erected in various States by the patriotic organization.

Delos H. Smith, Washington architect, has prepared a tentative design, which has been submitted to the Fine Arts Commission. It provides for a granite shaft about seven feet tall. The site, which has been given the most serious consideration, is the southern extremity of the Ellipse, directly opposite the Zero Milestone.

Discovering America
With Maxine Davis

Maxine Davis, magazine and feature writer, has gone forth to discover the America of 1935. She is writing of her experiences for The Post. Her eighth article appears today.

By Maxine Davis.

Little Rock, Ark., July —Big cotton planters down here are not enjoying their renewed prosperity as heartily as they might. At least, not the thoughtful ones.

I discovered this talking to a great plantation owner. His fortune comes from cotton, grown from the same endless acres that bought pure-bred hackneys for his father, and Paris crinolines for his grandmother. A new friend took me to dine at his home, and as he doesn't want to criticize publicly, or frighten his own people, we'll call him Mr. Smith.

The Smiths live luxuriously, more English country style than in the storied plantation manner. Their heir is at the University of Virginia, one daughter at Vassar, the other at Foxcroft. As their ancestral home burned down shortly before the depression, it has been replaced with a gracious Georgian house of mellow brick, with wide inviting doors and high sunny rooms. Their stables are grand enough to house a derby winner—or a duke—and their beagles have pedigrees even longer than the Smith's.

Quite a Distance to Cabins.

You have to go quite a way from this luxury of space and order and beauty before you come to the squalid cabins of the tenants, the share-croppers who do the work of the plantation, where apparently countless children live in a few filthy rooms. And, I must say, quite happily. They seemed to me serenely unaware of social inequalities, or economic maldistribution. They were taking life as they found it, and on the whole finding it pleasant. Which is strange to a northerner like myself . . .

I spoke of this.

"You know," said my host, "you reformers up there in Washington are agitated by the way these people are living and working.

Installation Forecast.

"What is going to happen to them when the mechanical cotton picker is in common use? It's been tried out already, and found successful.

"The time will come, and it isn't far away, when the big growers will have to install it. Then what will happen to our people? We're worried. We're not," he smiled somewhat ruefully, "quite as ruthless about them as you'd think.

"There's yet another Sword of Damocles suspended over the big producers: the loss of our foreign markets.

"The crop reduction program is all very well for the moment," Mr. Smith confessed. "We're enjoying it. But what about the future?

"And what about the cotton I understand the Government has stored? What happens when that's dumped on the market?"

Mr. Smith seemed to be making a personal matter of these problems, so I pass them on to the experts I left on Constitution avenue, far, far behind me!

Shoplifter Is Sent To Jail for 180 Days

"Don't try to dive through the iron bars," was Judge Robert E. Mattingly's warning to Willie Jones, colored, 38, 613 M street northwest, as he sentenced him to serve 180 days in jail.

Willie was arraigned in Police Court on charges of destroying private property and petit larceny yesterday after he had leaped through a plate-glass window in the Palais Royal department store Monday. Jones made the plunge after he was caught by store detectives shoplifting.

Strikers Cut Potato Price; Sales Slow

FERA Purchases Allay Some Fears; Picketing Ends, Is Report.

By the Associated Press.

Pocomoke City, Md., July 16.—Growing anxiety developed among Eastern Shore potato growers tonight after a reduction to $1.60 in the "demanded price" for potatoes failed to bring many orders.

Observers here said as few as 20 carloads of potatoes moved during the day and that only a few trucks moved out. It was estimated that more than 1,000 carloads were on the sidings here and that several thousands of carloads were in the fields, harvested but not yet loaded on cars.

It was reported here tonight that all Maryland growers who had been picketing the roads to keep the potatoes from moving until the demanded price had been met were withdrawn today. There was a general feeling of uneasiness among growers, who had felt that the reduction in the demanded price from $2.10 to $1.60 would result in large shipments immediately.

Snow Hill also reported that very few potatoes were shipped today.

The decision of FERA officials to allot $350,000 from funds of the Emergency Surplus Corporation to buy potatoes encouraged Maryland growers somewhat. The Government is expected to start buying at once and continue until July 27.

Hope to Stimulate Demand.

That sum would be sufficient to buy approximately a fifth of the crop now awaiting marketing and growers were hopeful the purchases would stimulate the market.

Many growers felt that farmers in other sections had sold their crops while Maryland and Virginia planters held theirs off the market. That also was the observation of W. E. Harrison, Baltimore representative of the U. S. Market News Service.

Harrison said he felt growers of other sections sold their crops and benefited most from the "market strike." He added that reduction of the demanded price to $1.60 a barrel was "the only thing" Eastern Shore growers could do in face of the situation and that they "probably would have fared better if they had done it earlier."

Reduction Called Wise Move.

Commission merchants in Baltimore also expressed the view that the reduction was a wise move. They said they felt the reduction would increase "consumer demand" by 25 per cent and enable merchants to dispose of more of the Eastern Shore crop.

Several dealers also pointed out that Long Island growers already had started digging their potatoes and that the New Jersey harvest starts this week with Pennsylvania following soon. The threat of competition from these and other potato-growing areas necessitated quick action by the Maryland and Virginia groups.

Pickets still were stationed today on main highways of the shore to maintain the reduced price but some pickets stationed in the upper end of Worcester County were withdrawn.

Another factor inducing the reduction was the fact that heavy rains of the past few days had greatly increased the danger that potatoes left in the fields would spoil.

Virginia Moves To Check Wave Of Paralysis

By the Associated Press.

Richmond, Va., July 16.—The State Department of Education today sent letters to ten Virginia cities urgently advising that nursery schools operating under the FERA emergency education program be closed at once because of the danger of infantile paralysis.

Of the 15 schools affected, three are in Roanoke, two in Bristol, two in Hopewell, two in Suffolk, and one each in Pulaski, Farmville, Lynchburg, South Boston, Hampton and Tangier. While the education department "urgently advised" closing the schools, it emphasized the final decision rested with local authorities.

Five cases reported today, one each from Richmond City, Campbell County, Shenandoah County, Northampton County and Mecklenburg County, ran the total to 127 since June 1.

A resolution prohibiting shows or carnivals from outside the county was adopted by the Alleghany County Board of Health, meeting at Covington. The board also banned congregations of children under 16 and prohibited children under 16 coming into the county. The regulations take effect immediately and will remain in force until rescinded by health authorities.

The Fairfax County 4-H Club Camp at Jamestown, due to have opened yesterday, was postponed indefinitely to guard against spread of the disease.

Dr. J. C. Sleet, Norfolk health commissioner, pointed out that the situation there was not alarming. Norfolk has three cases compared with none in 1934 and four in 1933.

Dr. J. P. Leake, of the U. S. Public Health Service, conferred here yesterday with Dr. I. C. Riggin, State health commissioner.

State health authorities said it would be several weeks before official reports could be made on recoveries or fatalities from cases reported in Virignia.

Worker Sleeps Under Tractor, Is Mangled by Harrowing Disc

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Martinsburg, W. Va., July 16.—Neal Hare, driver of a big caterpillar tractor at Consolidation Orchard Co. plant in Morgan County, near here, was working the 8 p. m. to 4 a. m. trick because the tractor was being operated day and night under an intensive cultivation program. Yesterday it began to rain while Hare was at work by floodlights. He suspended work, left the motor running and crawled under the machine in the narrow space between the tractor "wheels." He fitted into the space snugly; the motor warmed him and he fell asleep.

The rain stopped but Hare slept on. The relief driver arrived at 4 a. m. saw the tractor standing with motor running, concluded Hare had left it ready for him, hopped on the seat and threw in the clutch. The big machine and its following disk harrow were off with a roar.

The front half of the double disk harrow passed over Hare before the driver saw him and stopped the machine. The 1,000-pound disk harrow ordinarily used in the operation had broken during the night and a lighter harrow had been substituted The heavier harrow would have chopped Hare to pieces. As it is, he is a mass of bruises, but without serious cuts or internal injuries so far as was learned at the hospital, to which he was rushed by Henry W. Miller, jr., manager of the company.

Decision Due On W.B.&A. Line Shortly

Three Proposals Up to Operate Parts of Railway.

Bondholders Plan New Corporation If Court Gives Consent.

By the Associated Press.

Baltimore, July 16.—Future railroad connections with Annapolis will be decided before the end of the week, United States Judge William C. Coleman said today after hearing three proposals to operate parts of the Washington, Baltimore & Annapolis Electric Railroad.

The proposals are:

To operate the old short line between Annapolis and the Baltimore & Ohio's Camden street station;

To operate the south shore division between Odenton and Annapolis;

To operate the whole system with small bus-trains powered by internal-combustion engines.

The alternate plans were placed before Judge Coleman after an auction sale of part of the properties several weeks ago. This sale must be ratified by the court.

After the sale, the Pennsylvania Railroad offered to buy the south shore division at a price $15,250 more than the bid at the sale. They proposed to operate the line as a link between Annapolis and their main line at Odenton for at least three years.

The Pennsylvania's proposal was strenuously opposed at the hearing by Edgar Allan Poe, attorney for the bondholders of the Short Line. Poe maintained that the Short Line would give better service to the territory between Baltimore and Annapolis because the North Shore area is more built up. He also pointed out that the Short Line has direct connections with the Naval Academy.

The Short Line bondholders are ready to organize a new corporation to operate the line if the court approves their plan, Poe told Judge Coleman. They hope to borrow $300,000 from the Reconstruction Finance Corporation for repair work.

The competition of the Pennsylvania would make it impossible for the bondholders to reorganize the Short Line and salvage any of the $1,600,000 invested in the company's bonds, Poe declared.

T. Corbell, Leesburg, and Howard Armfield, Middleburg.

Hagerstown Aid Asked For Road Improvement

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Hagerstown, Md., July 16.—The Hagerstown Chamber of Commerce has been asked by West Virginians to join with them in requesting the Maryland State roads commission to improve the Boonsboro-Sharpsburg highway.

With the completion of Route 45, between Shepherdstown and Martinsburg, West Virginia persons are planning to use this route because of the cheaper bridge-toll rates, instead of the Williamsport Bridge and they also expect early action on a toll-free bridge across the Potomac at Shepherdstown. The proposed improved highway would connect with Route 40 at Boonsboro.

Staunton, Va., July 16.—Forty-eight Augusta County clubwomen will attend the homemakers' meeting at Virginia Polytechnic Institute, Blacksburg, opening July 29 and continuing through August 2.

Among the representatives from this county will be Mrs. E. L. Wampler, of Mount Sidney, and Mrs. C. E. Campbell, of Mint Spring, winners in the county dress contest. Miss Ruth Jamison, county home demonstration agent and club leader, will conduct a course in "Standardization of Products for Market."

Father of 2 Asks 40 Lashes In Lieu of Jail Term; Is Denied

Woman Police Judge Rules Penniless Man Must Serve Out Fine.

By the Associated Press.

Baltimore, July 16.—A request for 40 lashes instead of a $25 fine was refused by Police Magistrate Lulu E. Powell today in sending the penniless father of two small children to jail to serve out a fine for disorderly conduct.

The unusual request was made by the defendant, Henry Hickman, 28, through his wife, Mrs. Emma Hickman. After visiting her husband in his cell, Mrs. Hickman addressed the woman magistrate:

"My husband has asked me if you will change his sentence from a fine to 40 lashes at the city jail.

"We have no money and if the fine stands he will have to go to jail and our babies will suffer.

"He is their only provider. One of them is 5 months old and the other 16 months."

After considering the request, the magistrate refused to comply. Hickman was arrested after a fight at his home Sunday night. His father-in-law and brother-in-law were each fined $10 and costs.

West Point Couple Adopt 'Car' Baby

By the Associated Press.

West Point, Va., July 16.—A blue-eyed baby boy, abandoned in a car at a wedding rehearsal here, has been adopted by a West Point couple as a brother for their little girl.

The infant, who is about 6 weeks old, has been the object of great interest since he was left in a parked automobile before the West Point Methodist Church while a wedding rehearsal was in progress. A member of the wedding party found the child when she entered the car.

Appeals Court To Rule in Bank Liability Case

Decisions in Central Trust Demurrers by Circuit Judges Appealed.

Frederick, Md., July 16.—The Maryland Court of Appeals will be called upon to decide whether a group of Carroll and Howard County residents must pay the statutory liability on stock they held in the defunct Central Trust Co., which closed in 1931, with its 11 branch banks.

Appeals to the highest tribunal in the State were filed in the Circuit Court yesterday from a decision of Chief Judge Hammond Uarner and Judge Arthur D. Willard, who had previously overruled demurrers entered by the defendants attacking the rights of John J. Ghingher, State bank commissioner and receiver of the trust company, to enforce liability payments on stock.

The appeals were filed by James H. Allender, Westminster; Herbert H. Cross and Evers C. Hoffman, West Friendship; Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Gerwig, Sarah E. Jones, Louis H. Brown, Charles H. Cook and Elizabeth W. Cook, Ellicott City. Demurrers to the payment were heard by Judges Urner and Willard some time ago and an opinion was handed down June 29 which read in part that "the court being of the opinion that the bill of Mr. Ghingher is maintainable as against the jurisdictional objection urged by the demurring stockholders and that the demurrers are not sustainable on any other ground, it is adjudged and ordered that the demrrers be, and they are hereby, overruled."

All of the demurrers were based upon the same objection. Allender contended that the suit failed to show that the court had jurisditcion in his case as he was not a resident of the county. He also alleged that collection of the liability was barred by limitation and for other reasons. Three Frederick County residents, John H. Cline, Helen R. Cline and Frank W. Kline, who demurred to the liability collection, did not enter an appeal to the higher court.

More than 300 stockholders have been made defendants in suits to collect the stockholders' liability. One group was sued last year and three thus far this year, the last a group of about 70 being filed about one week ago. Subpenas are being issued in the latter cases. More suits will follow, the receiver said, until all of the stockholders who have not paid their liability assessment, ordered by the court, are made defendants.

Captive Admits Link to Murder In Chestertown

Maryland Officials on Way to Seattle to Get Suspect in Terry Slaying.

By the Associated Press.

Chestertown, Md., July 16.—State's Attorney Stephen R. Collins said today that John Ellis, now being held in Seattle, Wash., had confessed he was "the man Chestertown authorities want" in connection with the killing of Kelly C. Terry.

Collins did not elaborate on the statement, other than to say word to that effect had been received from Seattle.

Terry was knifed to death in a Kent County dance hall some weeks ago. The search for Ellis became Nation-wide before he was arrested in Seattle after officers had traced him through a letter he mailed to his home in Chester, Pa.

Sheriff John Bennett and his son, Deputy John Bennett, jr., are en route to Seattle now by automobile to bring Ellis back to Maryland.

Deputy Sheriff Archie Lesage said that Alvin, Newton and Woodrow Downs are being held in jail here on charges of having been accessories after the fact. A brother, Luther Downs, has been released under his own recognizance. The four men are alleged to have been involved in the escape from Kent County of a man linked in the slaying.

Tomato Growers Hit As Packing Is Halted

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Heathsville, Va., July 16.—Northumberland County farmers are depressed by the slump in the early tomato market. The green tomato packing houses have closed. With 2,000 acres of early tomatoes in cultivation in the county, the season was cut short by low prices, and approximately only 100,000 lugs of fruit reached the market. Half of the crop is still in the field waiting for the local canneries to open.

The highest prices paid by packers for green fruit was 55 cents a basket and the price finally dropped to 10 cents a basket, when the packing houses closed. Some of the growers report they have paid expenses, but most of them are still "in the red."

Auto Injures Pedestrian.

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Waynesboro, Pa., July 16.—David Kauffman, of Mont Alto, was injured yesterday when struck by an automobile as he was walking along the highway near his home. The car was driven by Paul Barkdoll, 27, of Waynesboro. Kauffman was taken to his home by Barkdoll, and then to the Waynesboro Hospital, where an examination revealed a broken hip and lacerations about the face and arms.

Five States Seek to End Truck War

Motor Vehicle Commissioners Fail to Come to Agreement.

West Virginia's Non-Reciprocal Law Stirs Officials.

By the Associated Press.

Ocean City, Md., July 16.—Motor vehicle commissioners of five States conferred here today, seeking an end to the West Virginia "truck war," but reached no agreement.

James P. Tierney, supervisor of transportation for West Virginia, said following the conference that the officials planned to return to their home States and take the matter up with their respective governments. He said he presented the West Virginia case in detail and explained the new law which brought on the "war."

The conference was called by the Automobile Traders Association of Maryland in an attempt to ease the situation, which arose when West Virginia began enforcement of a new statute requiring that commercial "for hire" trucks from other States must display West Virginia tags. Neighboring States countered by requiring that West Virginia trucks must show tags of those States.

John E. Raine, general manager of the association, warned the motor vehicle commissioners that all "States attempting to pass nonreciprocal motor laws in the past have met with trouble."

Before the commissioners went into executive session, Commissioner Walter R. Rudy of Maryland told them that "Maryland will cooperate with any other State" in solving the problem.

Present for the conference were Commissioner Rudy, Tierney, Fred Fred B. Lager, secretary of the West Virginia Automobile Dealers Association; John Q. Rhodes, jr., director of the division of motor vehicles for Virginia; Frank West, registrar of motor vehicles for Ohio; Herbert Baker, superintendent of transportation for Ohio; W. A. Van Duzer, director of vehicles and traffic for the District of Columbia, and L. S. Harris, director of the motor vehicle bureau of North Carolina.

8-Day Strike Ends As Workers Return

Efforts to Unionize Shirt Plant Anticipated.

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Fredericksburg, Va., July 16.—Efforts to unionize employes of the Fredericksburg Shirt Co. were anticipated here today as the eight-day strike at the plant broke and virtually all the 50 women and girl hands who walked out on July 8 in protest against a second wage slash of 10 per cent agreed to return to work tomorrow under the reduced scale. A woman representative of the Amalgamated Clothing Workers of America, an affiliate of the American Federation of Labor, was here yesterday and interviewed a number of shirt workers. The organizer said several men organizers would come here Wednesday or Thursday.

Morris Weinman, jr., son of the head of the company and its secretary and treasurer, said there would be no further pay cut. Two 10 per cent cuts already have been made by the firm since the NRA was ruled unconstitutional.

Women Lose Grip as Dominant Factor in Wide Popularity of Motion Pictures

Even Feminine Stars Are Now Film Minority

(Reprinted from Yesterday's Last Edition.)

By Nelson B. Bell.

It may not have come directly to the attention of the casual picture-goer, and probably has not impressed itself upon him otherwise, but the fact is that male stars have largely supplanted women as the "big names" of the cinema.

Whereas in the old days of the silent films, beauty of feature and form was a prime asset for movie stardom, and the demand was principally for lovely young women, that era seems definitely to have passed and given way to the period in the pictures' development when ability to do something besides look pretty is the screen's foremost requirement.

So it comes about that outside of possibly a dozen stellar names among the feminine players, the really big attractions in the films are men. Check over the list yourself and see how it adds up.

Among the women who, of course, must be looked upon as the exceptions, it would be impossible not to name Joan Crawford, Shirley Temple, Jeanette MacDonald, Greta Garbo, Norma Shearer, Katharine Hepburn, Ann Harding, Janet Gaynor, Grace Moore, Claudette Colbert, Mae West, Marlene Dietrich, and perhaps one or two more.

Long Line of Males.

The list of the male stars who are packing them in all over the country, however, may be said to begin with the veteran Will Rogers and run down a long line to the juvenile and extremely precocious Master Freddie Bartholomew, who made his name in "David Copperfield" and is appearing with Garbo in Tolstoy's "Anna Karenina," in which she is starring for the second time before the cameras.

It has been estimated by West Coast experts that there are at least 60 male stars of prime importance currently kept busy in the celluloids.

The defection of the feminine luminaries seems to be paralleled by the steady decrease in the number of women engaged in the other branches of picture production.

Dorothy Arzner, best established among women directors—since the passing from the scene of Lois Weber, foremost in her day—has made no more than three pictures in the last two years, one of them being "Nana," initial starring vehicle for Anna Sten under the Sam Goldwyn banner—and not too hot, as the saying goes.

No Longer Lead Writers.

There was a time, not so long ago, when women had the screen writing field just about to themselves. A woman writer and a man director for a time was looked upon as the ideal combination to produce the best results in gelatin entertainment. Those days seem to be gone forever, like the good 5-cent cigar and a nickel goldfish-bowl of beer.

Sound brought a demand for dialogue, as you may have heard by now. Playwrights were imported by the carload lot to the West Coast studios and precious few of them are women. Take a glance at the statistics, if a little skeptical.

Of 74 writers at Paramount, only 9 are of the feminine gender. The Warner Brothers-First National combination at Burbank has 38 writers, 4 of them women. Of Universal's 46 writres, 8 are women; 4 out of RKO-Radio's 26.

What has happened to the stronger sex, anyhow?

Back in 1929, from May 17 to August 16, Herbert Rawlinson was master of ceremonies at Loew's Palace Theater, Loew's, Inc., not yet having nominated the Fox as an outlet for its stage entertainments. Mr. Rawlinson since that time has been seen on local stages in touring productions of the first rank, notably as leading man in "When Ladies Meet." This week he is visible on the screen at Loew's Fox Theater as the chief of the Bureau of Criminal Investigation of the Department of Justice, in "Men Without Names," latest of the gangster pictures approached from the point of view of retributive justice. Mr. Rawlinson in his present assignment looks fit as a fiddle and hard as nails. There is, it seems, a reason. When he was given the role, he was in New York. Instead of flying to the Coast, or traveling by one of those new streamlined trains, he signed on as a member of the crew of a cargo steamer bound for the Coast through the Canal. All the way out he chipped rust and otherwise comported himself after the manner of an able-bodied seaman. Not only did he arrive in Hollywood in the pink, as we say in the rubbing room, but also convinced that his trip West had been one of the most invigorating experiences of his life. So now you know.

Those Wives Again!

Those wives of Henry VIII who assisted so generously in manufacturing a completely new renown for Charles Laughton when he starred in the British-made film, "The Private Life of Henry VIII," simply will not play dead!

They keep bobbing up all over the place in assignments that are making them almost as famous as their celebrated boy friend with the cold chop complex.

The latest of these charming ladies to reach distinction individually is Wendy Barrie, who will be seen at the Warners' Earle on Friday in "College Scandal." She merely adds one more name to a list that steadily grows longer.

Merle Oberon, one of the most talked-of of recent leading women, was one of Henry's harassed wives who made good in American films and Binnie Barnes was another.

Not the least among these royal consorts is Elsa Lanchester, in private life Mrs. Charles Laughton, who has been seen numerously on American screens since her first appearance as the Flander's Mare with her husband. Her last local appearance was with Boris Karloff in "The Bride of Frankenstein," in which she appeared in a dual role.

Henry married a lot of nice girls, if he'd only had perception enough to realize it!

Yesterday's final luncheon of the summer of the Variety Club, held in the small ballroom of the Hotel Willard, was one of the most generously attended of the season, with Arthur Godfrey and Arthur De Titta acting as "Kings for the Day." Mr. Godfrey had his radio band on hand to furnish music and added zest to the occasion by batting one of Col. Harry P. Somerville's public address system microphones off the rostrum and doing it no good whatever. Funny thing about that is that I assured him just a moment or two before that there is really nothing about a microphone to be afraid of. Look at me! I should tell HIM!

Otherwise, it was a jovial and genial occasion, utilized largely to accentuate the desirability of getting your tickets for the Variety Club's showboat cruise, next Saturday night, not later than Thursday. What a sail that is going to be!

Such a nice sail—what with Ina Ray Hutton and Her Melodears and Jolly Coburn and his Rainbow Room Orchestra along—as a matter of fact, that it deserves a nice sale.

Fox Running in High.

With the completion last week of "Curly Top," latest of the pictures starring Shirley Temple, the Fox production schedule for 1934-35 was brought to a close. Sam Wheeler, local branch manager for Fox Films, and Carter Barron, division manager for Loew's, Inc., in whose theaters the Fox product is presented, point out that the completion of a year's product does not at all mean cessation of activity at the West Coast plant. The studios are going ahead at full blast with 18 new pictures in various stages of completion or work.

"The Farmer Takes a Wife," with Janet Gaynor and Henry Fonda, is in its final stages of cutting, while "Redheads on Parade," with John Boles and Dixie Lee; "In Old Kentucky," with Will Rogers; "Dressed to Thrill," which will introduce Tutta Rolf, Scandinavian star; "Thunder in the Night," with Edmund Lowe and Karen Morley; "Welcome Home," with James Dunn and Arline Judge, and "Steamboat Round the Bend," another for Will Rogers, are in the cutting room.

"Way Down East," with Henry Fonda and Rochelle Hudson; "Here's to Romance," with Nino Martini; "The Gay Deception," with Frances Lederer, and "Meal Ticket," with Jane Withers, are nearing completion.

"Bad Boy," "Ball of Fire," "Beauty's Daughter," "Charlie Chan in Shanghai," "Fly by Night" and "Romona" are completely scripted and will go into production within a fortnight.

The "dramatic evening" to be celebrated at the Arts Club of Washington tonight will open with a short play revealing the characteristics that make women popular with women. The evening will be under the direction of Hester Walker Beall. Meriam Truesdell, whose poetry has been published from time to time in this journal, will read her latest original poem. Maurice Jarvis, well known in Washington theatrical circles, will play Wolsey in the trial scene from Shakespeare's "King Henry VIII," with Hester Walker Beall as the queen. Others taking part in the program will include Eleanor Farr, Tahminah Arani, Elizabeth Cassell, Louise Mayo, Ruth Dabroe, Dorothy Simpson, Ella Stowell, Elizabeth Finn, Daphne Anderson, Gertrude Goodman and Mae Williams.

Meet Mr. Taylor.

When "College Scandal" opens on the Earle screen Friday, Kent Taylor will be prominently cast. Mr. Taylor is the good-looking young leading man who appeared opposite Evelyn Venable so many times in comparatively rapid succession, beginning 'way back yonder in Dorothea Wieck's "Cradle Song."

Mr. Taylor, by the way, was a young man who would not take "no" for an answer when it came to being an actor. He says now that he followed so many vocations and avocations trying to wrangle his way into Thespianism as a profession that he probably would feel at home in any character he possibly could be called upon to play.

Meat—But Not Ham.

Taylor started out in the industrial world as a shipping clerk in a meat-packing house in Waterloo, Iowa, continued as a cowhand on a large cattle ranch, carried cement on a concrete-mixing job, tended burners in a bolt factory and finally wound up in Los Angeles doing house-to-house canvassing for an awning company.

Having finally reached that close to the studios he crashed a few gates—and there he is!

"College Scandal," not that it matters, is being screened today for the drama desks by the Warner Brothers executives. Since it is a murder mystery story with a college background, six or eight reels are to be unfurled, I am given to understand, then the machines will be stopped and the drama desks present will be asked to name the murderer. That done, the screening will be concluded, just to show us up!

Tonight will be "Tennessee night" at the Earle—since we are on the subject. Members of the Tennessee delegation in Congress will be guests at Grace Moore's performance in "Love Me Forever" upon the invitation of John J. Payette, general manager of the Warner interests in the Washington territory. In the group will be Speaker J. W. Byrns of the House, Senator Kenneth McKellar, Senator Nathan Bachman, Representatives B. Carroll Reece, Sam D. McReynolds, and Walter D. Chandler and Justice Clark McReynolds.

Identification Card.

In Mr. Sullivan's "Broadway" column today you will note that Miss Theo Phane, dancer, has clicked in a Will Rogers film under another name.

It is, of course, transparent that, being a dancer, she is a sister of the well-known Cello Phane!

Her Screen Debut Approaches

Already established as a star of the Metropolitan Grand Opera Co., and radio, Gladys Swarthout, whose likeness appears above, is about to make her debut as a star of the screen in a new musicalized version of "The Rose of the Rancho," the former stage success produced by Belasco as his initial starring vehicle for Frances Starr, the present Mrs. R. Golden Donaldson, of Washington. Paramount is filming "The Rose" on a scale that insures its being one of the "big" musical films of the forthcoming season—as it would have to be to justify Miss Swarthout's presence in it.

Taxpayers to Collect As Law Is Dropped

By the Associated Press.

Salisbury, Md., July 16.—The Wicomico County treasurer's office is about to reverse the usual tax procedure—it is going to pay certain taxpayers instead of being paid by them.

It all came about due to dog taxes. The county received fees from 555 dog owners. Then the board of county commissioners decided not to enforce the dog tax law.

So the 555 payees will receive refunds. In addition, the county will lose more than $800, that amount having been spent in attempting to enforce the law before the commissioners decided to let it drop.

10,000 Public Enemies

By Courtney Ryley Cooper.

Chapter III.

Time was when the politician found other ways of making a living than by feeding on the proceeds of robbery and murder. Today, however, the control of a police department is a prize to be sought by any possible means.

I am reminded of a town, changed by prohibition, when a mobster politician had been slaughtered a few days before by the machine guns of an opposing faction. The chief of police was discussing the matter.

"You know, when you come to think of it, Johnny gave his life for the good of this city," he said, with a degree of sentimentality. "He was killed because he wouldn't let the hoodlums take over the town. I've got the information that bunch of big-time crooks went to Johnny and told him that they wanted to work here. But he wouldn't have it. He told them he'd run them all in the river. So they machined-gunned him."

It is the belief of the average citizen that a police chief controls the life of a city as concerns crooks. The naivete of the official's statement, however, reveals a different system. In at least one town, the big crook goes to see the ruling politician, and the police have nothing to say. That, sadly enough is the condition of officials in other cities as well. Their jobs are dependent upon the whim of a man who controls them; they can merely obey orders.

It might be interesting, for instance, if figures could be published, setting forth just how much stolen money was put up by a certain gang of bank robbers for their year or so of comparative immunity after a prison escape, during which they reported almost daily to a ruling politician. That, of course, would necessitate the opening of this gangster-politician's b o o k s, something no one ever has been able to bring about. It would be more interesting to name the city, except that it would cause so many unpleasant denials which, incidentally, would not come from the police. In fact, those law-enforcement officers might relish an upheaval. After all, it is the politically protected crook who sometimes kills policemen—and gets away with it The loud outcry would come from those good friends of criminality, the best citizens in town. Provided, of course, that they belonged to some high-minded civic organization dedicated to making the name of their fair city known round the world.

Bootleggers Were New To General Crime.

Most of the cities which are now bound and gagged, as concerns law enforcement, were centers of bootleg activities for large contributing territories during prohibition. The system enforced there spread to the Nation, a tremendous massing of underworld information coupled with the welding of criminal elements, until now the paths of crime encompass America. Most of it came about through the development of the "fix."

No matter what else may be said of prohibition, the violation of liquor laws could not possibly have succeeded without the wide use of bribery or political pressure.

Many of the men who had taken up bootlegging were new to general crime. True, they were fixers, pay-off men, hi-jackers, racketeers, rod and machine gunners, but at heart, they considered themselves business men, in the trade of supplying a certain well-defined want. Many of them were highly intelligent; numerous college educated persons turned to bootlegging during the fat years. In prison these men met persons of lower intelligence who boasted of their success in robbing banks or sticking up pay rolls. The idea appealed to the newcomers.

The two types of criminality mingled and exchanged views. Again the intelligent learned from the slower witted—for until prohibition—the average criminal was below par in mentality.

Now new types of men have taken up crime—men who began by dealing bottles off the hip and who have graduated to robbing banks. Time was when a petty larceny thief could be listed as that for the rest of his life—crime ran according to the grade of intelligence. But with the resort-loving, gambling-mad, race-track-following criminal of the new type, there is a diversity bounded only by the criminal's intelligence. It is this situation which the country faces today and which the average citizen discusses by asking what can be done when the police departments are full of crooks.

In that, the average citizen, as usual, is thoroughly wrong. Police departments are not full of crooks. They are mainly full of honest men who resent the burdens under which they labor but are powerless to do anything about it. Within the last two years it has been my privilege to examine certain confidential information which has led me backstage into the workings of nearly every large police department in America. These were the records of a vast power which slowly has been building, to a great degree in comparative secrecy, until it now can take its place as a stanchion to strengthen the local law-enforcement agencies of the Nation. It is the Federal Bureau of Investigation of the United States Department of Justice.

There are no politics in this organization. During its ten years of life under its present administration, there has not been even a hint of scandal. Largely an investigative unit until a few years ago, it achieved great growth with the passing of the national kidnaping laws, following the tragedy of the Lindbergh baby.

In 30 strategic points in the United States and others in its possessions, one can find the outposts of the Bureau of Investigation. Sometimes the "field office," as it is called, will be in a Federal building; more often it will be found tucked away in a business block, with no apparent connection with crime save the lettering on the door. Within the offices one finds no uniforms, no visible display of guns, no persons of the police type. Instead, there are only the evidences of the usual business office; young women at typewriters and busy young men working over desks, upon which sometimes are stacked heavy, loose-leaf files, bound in Manila wrappers. Innocent enough looking, these files. Yet they often represent the reports from Nation-wide band of investigators, whose inexorability rapidly is becoming a national tradition.

A tour of the field offices would reveal comparatively few persons more than 40 years old. Thirty would be nearer the average age; men with color still left in their cheeks, and a certain air of youthful enthusiasm. Few of them are burly, although many are athletes. All are pleasant-mannered, polite, well-poised, engaging; you will find among these young men dozens who are proficient in foreign languages, others who can take a plane aloft at a moment's notice, still others who can discourse authoritatively on botany or chemistry economics, history, mathematics or physics, because once they led classes in these studies.

You will find football and baseball coaches, and men who won their college letters in every sport from basket ball to rowing; there are even wrestlers, among them a champion. Or their past may reveal a history of truck driving, work in lumber camps, experience in mines; you will find newspaper reporters, painters, railroad workers, restaurant men, telegraphers and even a baker. There are radio operators, swimming instructors and life guards.

Or here is a man who knows all about customs requirements because he once was an examiner, half a dozen or so who know the psychology of the foreigner through experience as immigration inspectors; still others know every trick and dodge of men in penitentiaries, gained while prison workers. There are former postoffice clerks, mine foremen, electricians, motor experts, mechanics, telegraph and telephone linemen, printers, salesmen, and hospital workers. Much of this experience came coincidentally with academic learning, for the background of the special agents shows that many of them worked their way through college.

Among the sprinkling of older men, it is possible to find an Indian expert when one is needed, for there are several. There are former United States marshals, former sheriffs, men who have served as successful chiefs of police and heads of detective bureaus. There are former cowboys and men who once rode the desert stretches of the Mexican border as Texas Rangers. Out of this wide range of dissimilarities, there is one description applicable to every man. Whether he be a former Texas Ranger or former postoffice clerk, seaman, aviator or student of botany, he is deadly with firearms of all sorts, from pistols to rifles, and no gangster ever manipulated a submachine gun with more accuracy than these men of the Department of Justice.

Moreover, concealed in these quietly business-like orders are evidences that the United States has accepted the challenge of the underworld to shoot it out. There are sawed-off shotguns, machine guns, gas-riot guns, high-powered rifles, automatic pistols with special magazine attachments, bullet-proof vests, protective steel shields behind which men may creep up on some outlaw, barricaded and determined to die fighting. There are powerful searchlights to flood the scene of a crime chase, flares with which to signal for assistance. In near-by garages await super-geared automobiles capable of roaring out upon a crime chase at a speed of 85 miles an hour.

Controlling this vast network of men and armament is a comparatively young executive, who sits at a desk in Washington, his vigilance constantly asserting itself through the long-distance telephone. In the course of a day, it often links him to every State in the Union. Serious-minded only because crime allows him so few opportunities to laugh, he gives practically every waking moment to the job before him. Early morning finds him at his desk, midnight and dawn may see the lights of his office still burning, while the plugs click in the switchboards of a nation and a crime chase moves onward to its conclusion. This is J. Edgar Hoover, the man who built up the Bureau of Investigation from comparatively few duties into its present status, equalled nowhere in the world for efficiency and swiftness of punishment. At 40 he is the most feared man the underworld ever has known.

Bess McComb....Lavina Merrick

Another brilliant chapter in the short but eventful history of the Roadside Theater was written last evening as the troupers of the "barn theater" resurrected "To Die at Dawn," and gave it a lusty and rousing reading which marked a new high in their presentation of "sensational melodrama" of generations ago.

Laid in Kentucky, peopled variously with good old Southern stock, counterfeiters, murderers and a Federal detective, the play presented many a "fat" role, each of which was, in the large view, played to the utmost limit. Here, as in any good mellerdrammer, the hissable villain is the center of interest, and Harold Stepler drew from his part all the venom, all the devilish heinousness with which it was so heavily charged. Indeed, Mr. Stepler might even be said to excel the estimable Eugene Kressin for sheer enthusiasm of diabolical performance.

The heroine, fragile and Dresden-like, was Gail Dennis, the perfect flower of Southern womanhood. John Edwards played the collar-ad hero smoothly and nicely. The progenitor of the G-man was commendably carried by Ralph Fowler.

Of the work of Elinor Cox Karsten, as the Roadsiders' first villainess, much praise should be written. The other members of the company were no less satisfactory than these!

Admirably staged and expertly directed "To Die eat Dawn" leaves little to be desired in the way of summer diversion.

Seventh Summer Festival of the Community Center Department at Sylvan Theater, featuring dances by the Bekefi-Deleporte Group, under direction of Theodore Bekefi, Maurice Deleporte and Billy Lytell.

Dancing feet, tripping over the greensward of the Sylvan Theater stage last evening, interpreted in fresh and lively style several musical works that are concert hall favorites.

Although written as a ballet, Chaikovski's "Nutcracker" Suite appears most frequently on symphonic programs. DeFalla's "Fire Ritual" dance, while the title is a giveaway, finds its way to pianists' recitals more often than it does to ballet floors. And few are the orchestras, especially of the little symphony group, that let dust gather on their scores of Glazunov's "Bacchanale."

This picturesque m u s i c was brought to its home ground by the Bekefi-Deleporte dancers and the bizarre rhythms and melodies were the stage drops converting the Sylvan greensward into many different scenes. Once it was the land of the snowflake dancers. Then it was the ballet hall of the Nutcracker, then the throne of the god of fire, and with a slight change in lighting effects it was transformed into a den of hilarious revelry.

With all this widely known music as a background, the young dancers brought life and gayety to the scenes. They were graceful and thoroughly entertaining. Mr. Deleporte, appearing in the DeFalla number as Shiva, god of fire, furnished the evening's most dramatic acrobatics.

But the program was not entirely classical. There were tap dances, in which Virginia Barry tapped in military style to the Notre Dame "Victory March." Susan Hall and Walter Doe made a hit number out of their routine to the popular "Doll Dance."

The musical background, on which all the dancing was based, was contributed by a battery of three pianists, Nan Doe, Richard Bell and Victor Neal. The lighting effects, most helpful contributions, were engineered by Harold Snyder, of the Community Center Department.

Preceding the dancing, the Washington Gas Light Co. employes' band, directed by Otto Siebenichen, played a half-hour concert, featuring a cornet solo by Musician J. Maughn.

The department's next program will be Thursday night. The United States Marine Band will play and the Estelle Wentworth Opera Group will present Gilbert and Sullivan's "Trial by Jury."

Kathleen Lawler, a newcomer to Washington, will sing the leading feminine role, Miss Wentworth announced yesterday. Other outstanding singers will be Ira P. Meyer, Ray Baine, Harry E. Yeide, Walter Perry, Thomas Zepp, Margaret Horn, Alice Deckman, Lillian Killian, Alice Murphy and Virginia Weedon.

Chair tickets for this performance are available at the Willard and Hotel Washington newsstands, the A. A. A. ticket bureau and the Community Center office. J. W.

Work on Water System To Start at Hagerstown

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Hagerstown, Md., July 16.—Construction of a 12-inch pipe line from the Edgemont Reservoir, a distance of 1,800 feet, to give Hagerstown an additional 1,000,000 gallons of mountain water daily will get under way Monday, Albert Head, superintendent of the municipal water line, announced.

Head said the heavy growth of algae in the Smithsburg Reservoir is responsible for the taste in the water here, which has resulted in numerous complaints this summer. With the new pipe line, the Smithsburg Reservoir will be used only to supply Smithsburg and consumers along the Cavetown pike.

Nat Misplays Costly as Browns Win Second Straight, 6 to 4

This Morning...

With Shirley Povich

IT seems that they are putting the blast on my friend, Charley Reynolds, the District's best fight referee, who counted out Bob Wilson and raised Harry Dublinsky's hand in token of victory at Griffith Stadium the other night. For the heinous offense of seeing his duty and doing it, Reynolds was roundly booed by the 3,000 in the stands and mildly taken to task in the public prints by the young man up the street who is also my friend.

POVICH.

I know how I'd feel if I paid $1.10, $2.20 or $3.30 for less than three minutes of action. I'd be tempted to work up a fine Bronx cheer myself for any referee who took it into his hands to call things off in the first round, even if he had the rules with him. But the next morning I rather think I'd get around to thinking that there wasn't much else for the referee to do.

This department finds it rather easy to absolve the squawkers. Heaven knows the fight fans rarely get a fair shake, what with promoters foisting young business men upon the public who pay to see a prize fight. And the Dublinsky-Wilson affair was just beginning to shape up as a fine, old-fashioned slaughter when Reynolds discovered that Wilson's glove was still on the floor at the 10 count. That was too bad.

But it was Reynolds' only course. The former Knights of Columbus Boys Club director hasn't been getting the refereeing plums hereabouts because he's good to his mother. In the year and a half that fighting has been legalized hereabouts, Reynolds has demonstrated that he is a man apart among local referees—the best of the crop. He knew what he was doing in there.

SUPPOSE, just f'r instance, that Reynolds had taken into consideration the success of the entertainment from the crowd's viewpoint and permitted Wilson to continue as he had pleaded after bouncing to his feet a fraction of a second too late. And suppose, further, that Wilson had got up and belted Dublinsky out of there in the next round. Where would the justice to Dublinsky be in that?

No, in fairness to Dublinsky, Reynolds had only one course. Under the universal rules of the prize ring, Wilson was considered down when his glove still rested on the floor even though he was on his knees, and when the count of ten caught him in that position he was knocked out just as emphatically as if he had thrown in the towel.

Reynolds could have been a popular fellow with the crowd if he had given Wilson a long count, but that's one of the nice things about a refereeing job under the District Boxing Commission. A fellow isn't beholden to the crowd, the fighters, or the commission—only to the rules. And the rules are very specific on the point at issue.

Anyway, Wilson should have no complaints. Reynolds' ruling came as a blessing to his continued good health. Against the clever, hard-hitting, sharp-shooting Dublinsky, Wilson was overmatched and the rules saved him only from a worse beating—thanks to Reynolds' courage of his conviction that the end had come. When they gave Reynolds the job, they didn't tell him to keep one eye on the crowd. He was pretty busy in there watching the fighters.

In Short.

Catcher Rollie Hemsley was fired from the Reds for breaking training and suspended by Manager Rogers Hornsby of the Browns for getting in a fighting scrape with some Philadelphia policemen . . . he's known as the tough guy of the league . . . but when Second Baseman Al Bejma rushed to the Washington bench for first aid after being severely spiked on the arm day before yesterday, Hemsley looked at the wound and fainted . . . Bejma was sent home to St. Louis yesterday by Manager Hornsby to recuperate . . . Promoter Joe Turner says he will offer Jimmy McLarnin a $10,000 guarantee to fight Harry Dublinsky at Griffith Stadium . . . Opinion on the fistic talents of young Bobby Goldstein will be reserved until he meets up with other than hand-picked opposition . . . If any blame is attached to anybody for the Dublinsky-Wilson affair it belongs to Wilson's manager, Patsy Donovan, who ordered him to stay down when his man started to rise at the count of eight . . . Buddy Myer is performing these days with a sore toe that makes every step excruciating . . . especially in spiked shoes . . . and young Dee Miles can hardly hold a bat as a result of bruising his right thumb in batting practice . . . Leon Pettit is rapidly winning some kind of fame as the worst fielding pitcher on the Washington staff . . . Dave Harris is out of the Atlanta line-up with a bruised hand suffered when he collided against a concrete fence while chasing a fly ball . . . the fence, strangely, was uninjured.

Last 2 Runs Are Handed To Victors

Infield Aids Pettit in Presenting Game to St. Louis.

Early Attack on Cain Nets Locals 4-3 Lead in 8th.

By Shirley Povich.

WITHOUT the aid of a legitimate hit, but with the assistance of some characteristic Washington pitching and some Washington fielding that wasn't so good either, the Browns wiped out a 1-run deficit yesterday and snatched another ball game from the Nats.

The last full measure of grief for the Washington club in a grief-strewn season—two straight beatings by the last-place St. Louis club—was visited on the Nats in the eighth inning when they presented the Browns with the tying and winning runs of a 6-4 contest.

Washington held a 5-4 lead, going into the eighth, because of an early attack on Merritt Cain. Irving Hadley had departed the scene in the seventh, and Leon Pettit was not long in beckoning the Browns to come ahead and win the ball game.

Coleman Starts Trouble.

It wasn't Pettit's fault when Big Ed Coleman's innocent-looking grounder took a freak hop over Joe Kuhel'h head into right field for a single, but Pettit was no particular help when he walked Sammy West to put the winning run on base with none out. Neither was he of any great assistance to the Nats when he momentarily fumbled Rollie Hemsley's sacrifice bunt and missed an easy force play at third base, but he did throw Hemsley out at first. And he didn't ease the situatoin any a moment later by hitting Clift on the back and filling the bases.

Manager Bucky Harris reneged on Pettit and dispatched Buck Newsom to the mound when Ray Pepper was sent in to pinch hit for Burnett. Newsom was the victim, not of the Browns, but of shoddy fielding by Cecil Travis and Buddy Myer.

Pepper hit a slow grounder to Travis near third and, after starting to step on third for a force play, Travis reconsidered and threw to the plate, but not before Coleman had crossed with the tying run. Thus the bases still were full with only one out.

Myer Boots Double Play.

Buddy Myer was the next to come to the assistance of the Browns. On Pinch Hitter Hornsby's perfect double-play ball near second base, Myer fumbled and barely recovered in time to touch Burnett as the runner neared second, but the slow-running Hornsby reached first safely as West crossed the plate with the winning run.

The Browns picked up another run off Elden McLean in the ninth when Hemsley dropped a Texas Leaguer into left field, but the rookie who was making his first start in the majors did not look unimpressive, withal.

The Nats had given Hadley a

Macks Assault Crowder to Top Tigers

Detroit Bows, 8-2, to Slip Game Lower Into Second Place.

By the Associated Press.

PHILADELPHIA, July 16.—The Athletics jolted the Detroit Tigers farther back into second place in the American League standings today by bombarding Alvin Crowder and Elon Hogsett for an 8-to-2 victory.

The defeat tumbled the Tigers to 2½ games behind New York in the standings.

Jimmy Foxx's seventeenth homer of the season, Pinky Higgins' three doubles, and a single by Eric McNair scoring two runs were the factors that sent the A's off the field in front.

The Tigers touched George Blaeholder for 15 hits, but the former St. Louisian was steady in the pinches and got admirable fielding support from his teammates.

Allen, of Yanks, Holds Chicago to 2 Safeties

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, July 16.—Johnny Allen, the man who came back, turned in his best pitching performance of the season today as he shut out the third-place Chicago White Sox with two hits as the New York Yankees took the final game of the series, 2 to 0.

The victory, coupled with the defeat of the Tigers by the Athletics, boosted the Yankees' lead to two and one-half games.

In hanging up his ninth victory of the season, the last three in a row, Allen not only limited the Sox to singles by Luke Appling and Rip Radcliff but fanned nine to increase his number of strike-outs for the season to 84.

Only 29 Face Allen.

With the exception of the second and the sixth, when Appling and Radcliff cracked out their hits, Allen set the Sox down in order. He did not issue a walk and only 29 men faced him during the game.

The Sox gave the Yanks a close fight, however, "Silent" John Whitehead yielding only six hits. Two of them, singles by Saltzgaver and Combs, coupled with an error and wild throw by Whitehead and a base on balls, gave the Yanks both of their runs in the fifth. The defeat was the young right hander's eighth as compared to nine victories, eight of them won in succession at the start of the season.

Whitehead passed six Yankees, two intentional, but none of these scored. Three double plays and some fine defensive playing on the part of Tony Piet helped him out of several tight spots.

Duel of Maxes Held Certain By Garden

Schmeling Is Tied Up By Contract, According to Johnston.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, July 16.—Apparently holding the whiphand for the time being in the scramble for the next big heavyweight match in New York, Matchmaker James J. Johnston regarded with complacency today the latest word from Germany, indicating Max Schmeling prefers to meet Max Baer next September, under Madison Square Garden's auspices, instead of tackling Joe Louis, the "Brown Bomber."

"Why not?" asked Mr. Johnston. "Schmeling is smart. He wants a title shot. He knows he can get it only by fighting for the Garden. Besides, he's under contract, notwithstanding anything else you hear."

Will Meet Jacobs.

Nevertheless Johnston said he would rush down to meet Joe Jacobs, Schmeling's American manager, upon the latter's arrival next week, just to avoid any chance of Joe falling into the hands of the Garden's opposition.

"I'll put handcuffs on him, if necessary," warned Johnston, in serving notice he will fight any attempt by the Twentieth Century Club's promoter, Mike Jacobs, to obtain Schmeling's services for a bout with Louis.

In Germany, Schmeling indicated he had empowered Joe Jacobs to accept the "best offer." It was disclosed abroad that Max had demanded a $150,000 guarantee, deposited in Berlin, to fight Louis.

Joe McCarthy Signed for 1936-37

Yankee Manager Is Due to Continue Post at $35,000 Salary.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, July 16.—The answer to any and all conjecture about the future leadership of the front-running New York Yankees, including talk of a comeback by Babe Ruth at the old stand, was furnished today by the reengagement of Joe McCarthy as manager.

McCarthy, who took charge of the Yankees in 1931 after closing a stormy session with the Chicago Cubs, signed a two-year extension of his contract, covering 1936 and 1937, following a conference with Col. Jacob Ruppert before today's game. It was understood Joe will continue under the same salary, $35,000 annually.

Ruppert's surprise action was accepted as a complete vote of confidence in the McCarthy regime. It not only disposed of any lingering idea that the Yankees might take Ruth back, but ended the idea that McCarthy's future in the job depended on winning the pennant this year.

Ruppert Is "Satisfied."

"McCarthy has done a good job for me," said Ruppert. "I'm completely satisfied with him and this is my way of showing it. There is no special reason for action at this time, otherwise, except that I probably won't be around New York this winter and I wanted to get things settled, especially as my mind was made up."

The fact that the Detroit Tigers again are snapping at the heels of the Yankees in the pennant race was not considered by observers to be a factor in Ruppert's decision. On the other hand, recent visits to the stadium by Ruth had revived talk of the Babe's future. By signing McCarthy at this time, Ruppert forestalls possible embarrassment for his manager in the event of subsequent appearances of the old slugger in "the house that Ruth built."

Goes Back to Ruth's Visit.

It all goes back to last winter when Ruth paid a visit to his boss and bluntly asked: "Are you satisfied with McCarthy?"

"Absolutely," replied the colonel.

"That's all I wanted to know," shot back the Babe. "I'm telling you now that I never will sign another player's contract with the Yankees."

It has been no secret that the Babe and McCarthy were at loggerheads.

McCarthy has high hopes of landing his second pennant with the Yankees this year. He landed the club on top in 1932 and won the World Series from Chicago. The Yankees have been runners-up three times under "Marse Joe."

Ladies See Game As Griffs' Guests

Extra Day Added to Atone for Rained-Out Fray.

Women fans of Washington will be the guests of the management today, when the Browns and the Nats conclude their five-game series at Griffith Stadium. The game has been designated as "Ladies Day" in compensation for the game rained out last week.

Thus the Nats will play before two "Ladies Day" crowds this week. Owner Clark Griffith has announced that today's dispensation to women fans will not interfere with the regularly-scheduled "Ladies Day" game on Friday, when the Nats play the White Sox.

With the series tied at two games each, Manager Bucky Harris will send Ed Linke to the mound today in an effort to gain an edge. Jack Knott will pitch for the Browns.

Zachary Scores Again, Breaks Dodgers' Luck

Pittsburgh, July 16 (AP).—Tom Zachary retained his spell over the Pittsburgh Pirates today and the Brooklyn Dodgers broke their six-game losing streak with a 9-to-3 victory.

The veteran southpaw yielded ten hits, five in the first three innings when the Pirates scored two of their runs, but in the pinches he kept the Bucs away from the plate. The Dodgers held only a 3-to-2 lead going into the sixth, but then they started scoring, finding Swift and Weaver for six runs in the next three frames. Sam Leslie led Brooklyn's 12-hit attack with three singles.

Phils Blast Henshaw; Win Over Cubs by 7-5

Chicago, July 16 (AP).—Knocking young Roy Henshaw out of the box with a four-run blast in the second inning, the Philadelphia Phillies defeated the Cubs, 7 to 5, today to end their five-game losing streak and at the same time snap the Chicagoan's string of eight straight victories.

Twenty-four hits, all singles, were peppered over the field in the free-hitting game, 13 of them by the Cubs, but excellent pinch pitching by John Pezzullo and Jim Bivin protected the Phils' early lead.

Little, Displeased With Woods, Returns From Defense of Title

By Stuart Cameron.

United Press Sports Editor.

NEW YORK, July 16.—Only golfer in the world ever to have won three successive national amateur golf championships—Lawson Little, of San Francisco—returned from the successful defense of his British title today.

The husky Stanford undergraduate, traveling third class on the Majestic "because it's a damned sight cheaper" spent most of the time during the trip in from Quarantine correcting reports about him sent from overseas.

For another, Lawson did not tell London reporters that he was dissatisfied with his showing in the British open. "Golly, I finished fourth. I was lucky and plenty thrilled."

Further, the amateur king of both sides of the Atlantic denied whispered rumors that he intends to turn professional if he retains his United States title at Cleveland in September. "I'm never going to turn pro and that's final."

Little's plans are indefinite except for two things. He will spend a week under the tutelage of Tommy Armour at the Medinah Club, Chicago, en route to his home in San Francisco. He will start serious training and practice for the 1935 amateur a fortnight before it starts.

"Except for those things," Little said, "I just haven't any plans. I'd like to visit with a couple of friends here for a week and then go West. It's about time I paid some attention to my business. It's also about time I did something about my long game."

Lawson, lolling lazily in the third class salon while tugs pushed the giant Cunard-White Star liner up

Gallico Mulls Over Peculiar Problem of Cards and Deans

By Paul Gallico,

A Special Correspondent.

NEW YORK, July 16.—One of the most curious relationships in the world of sport is that between employer and employe in the baseball leagues, and particularly the majors. I imagine in no other field is it so strange, or so important. I guess there isn't a job in the world where at one time or another the hired hand isn't mad at his boss, or considers himself ill paid or ill used. There are then two things he can do—get over it, or get out. In baseball there is only one to get over it, because he can't get out.

I was thinking over Dizzy Dean and Brother Paul, and the Cardinals and Sam Breadon the other day, and wondering over the strange situation in which these men found themselves. Here is what would ordinarily be a relatively simple relationship between employer and employe all muddled up by the human factor. Dean doesn't like Sam and his method of running his ball club, and I guess by this time Sam is pretty well fed up with Dizzy.

But Breadon holds one of those one-way major league contracts over Dizzy, and Dizzy can say—"Boss, you and I don't see eye to eye any more, I think I will quit and go elsewhere." Dizzy can quit, but he can't go elsewhere. If he wants to throw baseballs at batters he must throw them for Breadon, or wait until Breadon trades, or sells or asks waivers on him.

But Breadon's problem is just as curious, and in many ways he is bound as tightly to his temperamental pitcher as Diz is to him. There is no business in the world, I imagine, where immediate competition is so keen, and where mistakes in the handling of personnel is as important or can have such quick and disastrous results.

Dean isn't a free agent, but in the matter of competition, neither is Breadon. For there is no possible way for Breadon to get the Deans out of the National League and into the American League, where there can not be a commercial and competitive menace. Or rather there is one way, as you know, by the waiver route, which means that all of the other seven clubs in the National League wuold have to waive on the Deans. And there isn't a club in the senior league that wouldn't give its right eye, figuratively, to pick up a $100,000 pitcher for the waiver price.

May Go to Cubs.

According to the latest story the Deans will go to the Cubs of Chicago next year. Millionaire Wrigley, the owner of the Chicago team, can afford to pay for them. And if the Cubs had the two Dean boys they would win the pennant.

Reds Whip Giants; Sam Byrd Is Star

League Leaders Drop 3d Straight, 7 to 5.

By the Associated Press.

Cincinnati, July 16. — Samuel Dewey Byrd, who spent much of his time with the New York Yankees sitting on the bench, came up to bat twice with the bases loaded today and each time he delivered to lead the Cincinnati Reds to their second straight victory over the New York Giants. The score was 7 to 5 with Byrd driving in five of the Reds' runs.

The victory, Cincinnati's seventh straight, boosted the Reds within four games of the fourth-place Pirates. The defeat ran the league leaders' consecutive losses to three, their longest losing streak of the season.

Byrd hit his first damaging blow in the fourth when, with the Reds trailing, 1 to 0, and Paul Derringer and Leroy Parmelee locked in a pitching duel, he came through with a double to clear the loaded sacks.

Wise Prince Takes Three-Year-Old Event at Suffolk Downs

Charlie Allen Rides Colt Cleverly

Trainer and Jockey Take New England Feature for 2d Day in Row.

By the Associated Press.

SUFFOLK DOWNS, Boston, July 16.—The combination of Charlie Allen and Earl Trueman captured the feature for the second successive day when F. Spatola's Wise Prince, ridden by Allen and saddled by Trueman, took top honors today in the Cape Cod, six-furlong event for three-year-olds. The veteran Allen turned in a sparkling performance on the Wise Counsellor colt, holding him off the pace well until within sight of home and then shooting him in without any trouble.

Time Flight, the high-priced horse of Percy M. Pike, which has not showed a lick in New England, took the lead out of the gate and stayed on top in the going to the stretch turn. For a time Albuquerque was in the contention, but he stopped early. The favored Song from the stable of C. V. Whitney, ran with bandages on behind in the heavy going. This proved to be too much of an impediment and the filly did not finish in the money.

Empire City, N. Y., July 16 (AP).—Willie "Smokey" Saunders, the lad who guided the 3-year-old champion Omaha to victory in the Derby and Preakness and later was forced on the sidelines by an extended illness, returned to action here today under anything but auspicious conditions. Saunders had the leg up on William Woodward's even-money favorite, Sir Beverley, in the featured Inverness Purse. The unreliable colt finished a shockingly bad third in the field of four 3-year-olds.

Rust, a 4-to-1 shot in the silks of L. Strube, galloped first home by four lengths. Mrs. A. A. Baroni's Ann O'Ruley was second, another five lengths before Sir Beverley. Kungsholm was a distanced last. The time for the mile and 70 yards was 1:43 3-5.

Sir Beverley, on the inside, gained a head advantage over Rust around the clubhouse bend. The Belair colt could not shake off his pursuer and finally collapsed after rounding out of the backstretch as Rust drew into a long lead. Ann O'Ruley assumed the runner-up position but was unable to threaten the easy-going Rust.

SAN RAFAEL, leaving from the outside, displayed speed all the way, raced on the outside of SANDY MACK while disputing the lead, was carried wide at the stretch turn, disposed of SANDY MACK and, under pressure, drew clear at the end. THE HARE, restrained early, came stoutly on the outside through the last furlong. VALE OF TEARS, prominent all the way, held on willingly in the closing test. MASKED GAL went into contention on the outside down the back stretch, went to the inside rounding the far turn, showed in front before reaching the stretch and, saving ground, weakened in the last three-sixteenths. SANDY MACK, under hustling tactics all the way, faltered after going a half-mile. SIGHTING BAR tired. ABOVE BOARD was never a threat.

SECOND RACE—One mile and 70 yards. Purse, $1,000; claiming. For maiden 3-year-olds and upward. Start good from stall gates. Won easily; place, driving. Went to post at 3:01. Off at 3:04. Winner, W. Two-dollar mutuels paid—CAPPOQUIN, $5.40, $2.80, $2.60; PEEPER, $3.20, $2.80; RUTLAND, $3.20.

CAPPOQUIN, steadied along for the first half-mile, moved up on the inside when making his bid, went to the front midway of the turn and drew out steadily, winning with speed in reserve. PEEPER, on the outside while following the pace, finished going gamely though unable to reach the winner. RUTLAND, a trailer until reaching the stretch, closed a good gap in the last three-sixteenths. CAPRICIOUS showed good speed in pacemaking, faltering after going the first six furlongs. BEFITTING started dropping back after reaching the far turn. DIXIE BUD was never prominent.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—LITTLE NYMPH, $8.00, $4.00, $3.20; JUBILEE JIM, $3.40, $3.00; STE. LOUISE, $3.00.

LITTLE NYMPH, away fast and in near pursuit of the pacemaker, went to the front on the inside midway of the turn when JUBILEE JIM bore out and, hard ridden through the stretch, dominated the running to the end. JUBILEE JIM, away fast and at home in the going, moved into a clear lead, but suddenly bore out when midway of the turn, was quickly straightened away and, though closing gamely, was unable to reach the leader. STE. LOUISE was a prominent factor all the way, though unable to reach the first two. PRETTY PATRICIA was unable to reach the leaders. SEA TED closed some ground and was going willingly at the end.

FOURTH RACE—Six furlongs. Purse, $1,000; claiming. For 4-year-olds and upward. Start good from stall gates. Won driving; place, same. Went to post at 4:12. Off at 4:14½. Winner, J. T. Two-dollar mutuels paid—FANCY FLIGHT, $9.60, $5.80, $3.20; HIGHEST POINT, $8.60, $4.00; AUNT FLOR, $2.60.

FANCY FLIGHT, at home in the going, showed good speed from the start, came out in the better going and, holding on gamely, held sway to the end. HIGHEST POINT, restrained in pursuit of the leaders, came stoutly through the stretch. AUNT FLOR, in nearest pursuit of the winner, showed in front between calls, but was down in the worst going through the stretch and was unable to keep pace in the drive. LADINO, outpaced early, closed willingly. LOTTA AIRS was unable to reach the leaders. DAVOC was never a serious factor.

FIFTH RACE—Six furlongs. The Cape Cod. Purse, $1,200. For 3-year-olds. Start good from stall gates. Won driving; place, same. Went to post at 4:44. Off at 4:48. Winner, F. Spatola's blk. c. Two-dollar mutuels paid—WISE PRINCE, $7.40, $4.00, $3.20; TIME FLIGHT, $4.40, $3.40; HILLTOWN, $3.40.

WISE PRINCE followed in close attendance of the pace, moved up on the outside of the leaders to take command, and drew clear at the end. TIME FLIGHT, showing speed from the outset, drew clear after leaving the back stretch, but was down in the deeper going along the rail and was unable to cope with the closing bid of the winner. HILLTOWN moved up stoutly to enter into contention in the opening quarter-mile and held on gamely at the end. NORTH WALES II closed a good gap in the last furlong. SONG and ALBUQUERQUE both faltered badly.

SIXTH RACE—One and one-sixteenth miles. Purse, $1,000; claiming. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good from stall gates. Won driving; place, same. Went to post at 5:20. Off at 5:24. Winner, Mrs. W. CHEWAWA, under slight restraint until straightened out on the back stretch, went to the front after passing the five-furlong pole, withstood determined opposition from EDDIE WRACK and, under pressure, held him safe at the end. EDDIE WRACK, in closest attendance of the pace the entire way, held on willingly to the end. MORALIST had good early speed, but was unable to keep pace with the leaders when challenged. SANDWRACK, a trailer early, lost some ground. TEDDY CARL moved up menacingly nearing the stretch, but was down in the deeper going on the inside and faltered in the drive.

ANNARITA, well placed early, dropped back after rounding the far turn, but came stoutly through the stretch run. OUR SALLIE was in the forefront the entire way, holding on gamely to the end. SUN ENVOY, outrun early, closed an immense gap. SMEAR never could reach the leaders though making up some ground. WASWANAPPI saved ground at the stretch turn and closed going gamely. Jockey Banned For Life.

New York, July 16 (AP).—Jockey Frank McManus is banned from the turf for life under a ruling handed down by the New York State Racing Commission after an investigation of the sixth race at Belmont Park, May 24, won by Playfole.

Led by Taylor, Sleuth Squad Advances

MAURICE "GOOK" TAYLOR, now piloting the Bureau of Investigation team to a possible second-series Post Association pennant in the Government League, has made good with a vengeance but his job of managing a hand-picked all-star baseball team has not been without its trials and tribulations.

The assumption that a collection of outstanding players will of itself produce an outstanding team is a common fallacy in all sports, and well Gook knows the truth of it. No one around the Department of Justice ever admitted it, but it was as obvious as a hitch-hiker's sore thumb that Investigation's showing in the first-half of the Government League was a sad disappointment. NRA, the other all-star aggregation in the league, licked the Sleuths every time the rivals met.

Manager Taylor, however, was not entirely discouraged. During the dark two months he had been making a careful study of his players, most of whom he scarcely knew since he had been out in the "field" away from Washington during the past few years. When Gook had matters figured out pretty thoroughly, he then put his plans in action.

Harmony was the keynote in Taylor's plans, and to keep alive the winning spirit he was forced to ask for the uniforms of a few disgruntled players who were causing dissension in the ranks. Gook then made quite a few changes in the infield and was fortunate enough to have Ed Hardagen and Bob Leverton added to the roster.

NRA Is Beaten.

Things have been quite different during the present second-half series. The Sleuths have walloped the vaunted NRA stars decisively in their two encounters in second-half play and are favorites to take the present series flag.

Taylor was one of the best and most popular ball players to learn the game on the local sandlots. His position was first base and he fielded it with all the grace of George Sisler, his baseball god and idol. He received flattering offers from several clubs in the Texas League, and played with Waco for a short while. His future appeared promising, but he preferred the job of a Federal agent to the fickle fates of the baseball profession, and joined the Department of Justice. He has been in his present position for the past five years.

Investigation increased its lead yesterday by defeating Treasury, 8-7, for its sixth straight victory. The contest was a wild affair, with the losers ralllying for four runs in the ninth to nearly tie the count. Riley, Sleuths' hurler, fanned 14, but made four wild pitches and issued six walks.

Nellie Flag's Career On Turf Completed

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, July 16.—Nellie Flag, queen of the American turf in 1934, will race no more.

The sensational daughter of American Flag—Nellie Morse is going down to the green pastures of Kentucky to produce sons and daughters for the races of the future.

Warren Wright, of Chicago, owner of the filly, which, as a 2-year-old, won $57,240 last year, said today she would be retired to his Calumet Farm near Lexington, Ky. The great filly, favorite in the Kentucky Derby this year, injured her leg in her stall at Arlington Park ten days ago. While it was not serious, Wright refused to patch her up and send her back to the races again.

"We won't do that," Wright said. "She already has proved her worth as a race horse. We shall send her down to Lexington just as quickly as she is able to travel to be used for breeding purposes."

Nellie Flag's showing this year was disappointing. After finishing fourth in the Kentucky Derby, she staggered far back in the Preakness and was beaten in her other starts.

Brokers Make Offer For Cleveland Club

Cleveland, July 16 (AP).—Alva Bradley, president of the Cleveland Baseball Co., said today New York and Cleveland brokers recently made inquiries on a purchase price for the Indians.

The Cleveland offer was $750,000, Bradley said, but the brokers were informed offers of less than $1,250,000 would not be considered. Bradley said sale of the club in the immediate future was unlikely.

Outsider Gains Girls' Tennis Semifinals

Miss O'Steen Defeats Miss Lennon in Matches on Playground.

ONE dark horse was eliminated and another smashed her way through to the semifinals yesterday in quarter-final play in the annual girls' singles elimination tennis tournament sponsored by the Department of Playgrounds on the Chevy Chase playground courts.

Willie O'Steen, representing the Virginia avenue playground, defeated Eileen Lennon, Montrose, 6—1, 6—1, while Barbara Boose, Takoma, was defeated by Mary Hunter, Georgetown, 6—1, 6—1. Miss O'Steen and Miss Boose had been the unknowns who upset the dope in the early play and Miss Boose's defeat was a surprise.

The Virginia avenue entry was never in trouble. Her service had Eileen, who is 13, baffled. When the youngster did hit Miss O'Steen's service the return usually struck the net. Miss O'Steen, 17, had too much strength and her forehand drives, well placed, were too much for Eileen to handle. Another factor in the Montrose girl's defeat was her method of service. She stood far back of the base line and left the court unguarded to the almost inevitable return by Miss O'Steen.

Another upset yesterday was the defeat of Alice Sartori, Twin Oaks, who, playing her third round match, fell before the racquet of Charlotte Decker, Janney. The score was 6—3, 7—5. Miss Sartori had been regarded as a sure semifinal player.

After eliminating Miss Sartori, Miss Decker defeated Mary Gray, Happy Hollow, 6—2, 6—1, in their quarter-final match.

Helen Orme, Burroughs, defeated Irma Williard, Phillips, 6—1, 6—3, in the remaining quarter-final match.

Erratic Nats Bow To Browns, 6 to 4

1-to-0 lead in the first inning, when Stone walked, Myer singled and Manush contributed a long fly, but Hadley gave the run back to the Browns in the second, when Clift singled and Burnett doubled down the right field line with one out.

Dick Coffman, a Washington alumnus, sealed the fate of the Nats. Given the task of protecting the Browns' lead in the last two innings, he burned 'em across the plate. Buddy Myer did single off Lary's glove with one out in the ninth, but Manush and Travis couldn't get him off first base.

Once more the Nats rescued Hadley, putting him in front in the fifth, 4 to 3, after Stone and Myer doubled to left and Manush tripled against the center field wall, but Hadley was removed in the seventh inning and the lead turned over to Pettit, supposedly for safekeeping.

Repair Shop Wins.

Behind the shut-out pitching of Frank Deavers the District Repair Shop blanked the Stansbury A. C. yesterday by the score of 4 to 0.

Let's Go Fishing . . .

By M. W. Meier.

MONDAY night afforded us 214 minutes in which to test out the pet theories of a life-time—namely, that fish bite better during the light of the moon than they do in the dark. We had four phases of eclipse and a chance to check and recheck. Other night fishermen in the midbay gave us their co-operation for which we were very grateful.

Our combined records show that from dusk to what was almost a full moon, both hardhead and weakfish bit very well. Parties fishing for them off the mouth of the Patuxent did unusually well. As the eclipse started, the fishing gradually stopped and when darkness fell, nobody had any luck. Along about 2 a. m. they began striking again and kept it up until dawn.

Feed More at Night.

It is barely possible that the phenomenon itself had some effect on feeding habits. On the other hand, we are personally satisfied that fish feed more on moonlit nights than during the daytime. Additional proof of this was given by the fact that day-fishermen the past few days, landed very few and very small-sized bags, whereas those who fish from dusk on, garnered in huge catches.

To William Schneider and Bill Boyd, of Baltimore, we are keenly indebted for assistance in making our experiments. They co-operated in noble style, keeping a careful record of strikes and catches during the four phases. Until the eclipse started, they landed some 300 croaker, a few trout and several eel. As darkness settled over the bay their offerings of peeler crab and shrimp failed to work.

George Brandt, of The Post, and a party of 13 others, fished at Solomons in the good ship Kingfish during the light of the moon, and their catch was one of the largest we have yet seen. They had hundreds of fat croaker around the 3-pound mark, a flounder, an eel or two and a few nice weaks.

Nor'easter Starting.

A stiff northeaster is lashing the Chesapeake as we write this. The heaviest rainfall we have ever seen in this section is inundating the roadway and ramming holes into the flattened waters of the Patuxent.

E. S. Cormany, Keith D. and Carl Brumback, all of Clarendon, have just come into the dock after a three-hour trip outside with an even 100 croaker averaging 3 pounds and a nice weak of about 2. The bulk of these fish were caught during the rain.

Leapley, Sullivan, Garlem Win 19-Hole Duels in Junior Golf

Oliveri Gains In Municipal Title Test

Bob Leapley, one of the big favorites, was given an unexpectedly tight scrap by one Kelly Owen before Leapley knocked in a nice putt for a par and win on the nineteenth hole.

Ernie Garlem, whose 73 was one shot back of the medalist, Andy Oliveri, in the qualifying round Monday, made a remarkable second shot that paved the way for a birdie 3 and victory over little Bobby Bowers in a thrilling 19-hole duel.

Bowers Comes Back.

Garlem was 2 up and 2 to go, but Bowers, stroking the ball smoothly and methodically, finished 3-4, even par, to win the last two holes and square the battle. On the nineteenth, Garlem topped his drive, but fired his six iron second to within 2 feet of the pin and sank his putt for a 3 to beat Bowers' 4.

Medalist Oliveri finished a few shots over par in trimming Julian Murphy, 4 and 2, while Buddy Sharkey, 15-year-old Gonzaga ace, won handily from Julian Williams, 4 and 3.

Play will be resume dtoday.

Culpeper Near Valley Loop Crown

Special Dispatch to The Post.

CULPEPER, Va., July 16.—Culpeper Athletic Club further strengthened its hold for championship honors in the Valley League for the first half, by defeating Heurich here this afternoon, behind the superb pitching of Walter Beall, by the score of 3 to 0. Beall allowed only three hits until the ninth inning, when two hits and a fielder's choice allowed the only visitor to reach third base. Beall struck out 13, while James caused only 4 of the Kicaks to die in this manner.

Culpeper scored their three runs in the fourth inning, when Metheny was safe on a fielder's choice, while Lacy was being forced out at second. Metheny stole and scored on a scorching single by Lowry through the infield, who tallied when Bergman hit to left center for a home run. It was the quickest game ever played on the Culpeper diamond, being completed in one hour and 15 minutes.

Lacy, Culpeper, and Radke, Heurichs, led in hitting, obtaining two each, Lacy getting a double. Culpeper plays the twin bill which was rained out here on Sunday this Thursday.

Cheered, Then Down and Out, Silas to Try Ring Comeback

HORATIO ALGER modernized is the story of Sid Silas, orphan boy, who, with a never-say-die spirit, will go into the American Legion's Sixth street and Florida avenue ring tomorrow night to prove to Washington fans that he is far from washed up.

He starts out with a tough nut to crack—rugged Tony Rock, who was unknown to this city until he came here several weeks ago to give Fickle Phil Furr the worst pasting he has ever absorbed.

Sid has been tossed from cellar to attic by unscrupulous managers who cared only for their cut. He was made to fight when he should have been in the hospital. Neuritis from infected teeth had infected his shoulder to the extent that he was not able to raise his arm above his head. But managers must smoke 50-cent cigars and eat, so Sid had to fight.

Since his days in a Jewish Orphanage, things had been getting pretty black for Silas. But Maj. Brown, who started what is now a nationally known Metropolitan Police Boys Club, found Sid broke, sick and disillusioned, gave him a home, good food, medical treatment and a job as instructor of the newly opened No. 4 Precinct Boys Club.

Acclaimed in '33.

A little good treatment has done wonders for Silas. He's all pepped up again and ready to meet any welterweight in the world. He will have a chance to prove that he's able to dish it out as he did back in 1933 when he was acclaimed as the most promising young welter around New York.

Rock, Sid's foe tomorrow night, came here an unknown, but left with the plaudits of the fans ringing in his ears. He had defeated Phil Furr, not a great fighter, but a better than average welter. For nine out of ten rounds he outboxed, outslugged and outgeneraled the local boys.

The eight-round semi final, bringing together Carey Wright, another comeback aspirant, and Buster Brown, Baltimore, a showman and boxer par excellence, should provide plenty of leather larruping.

Another six involves Sammy Seaman and Lawrence Gunn, two bantams who will give and take without a clinch from gong to gong. A four-round tilt, probably between two rousing colored tigers, will be booked.

Boxing Benefit Planned for Hero's Kin

Monday's Fight Proceeds to Go to Colored Man's Family.

ANNOUNCEMENT of a benefit boxing program most of the proceeds of which will be presented to the widow of Sterling Calhoun, colored hero who drowned here last week while futilely attempting to save the lives of two white children, was made last night by the firm of Ahearn and Turner, promoter-matchmakers extraordinary and masters of all night activities in and about Griffith Stadium.

Ahearn has not completed his bookings for the affair next Monday night but said that many of the local contingent of punchers had volunteered to serve and that he would guarantee an entertaining card.

"We will make no effort to feature big names on this card," Turner said, "but we believe that the public will respond to this opportunity to contribute to a good cause and see some fine fighting at the same time."

Cheaper Tickets.

The only other gladsome news sneaking forth from the firm's office last night was that "we're planning to scale this show at prices calculated to reach every pocketbook," which while being a little optimistic considering the sad condition of some of us—is very heartening to those who yet jingle when they walk.

"This is a real chance to pay our respects to the passing of a brave man and we are hopeful of substantially aiding the family he left behind," Turner added.

Eagles Want Sunday Game.

The Alexandria Eagles, one of the leading teams of Northern Virginia, want a game for Sunday with a leading out-of-town club, particularly the Rockville A. C. or the Colesville A. C. Call Alexandria 510 between 6:30 and 7:30 p. m., or write 119 Summers drive, Alexandria.

Joe and Gus Tangle On Mat Tomorrow

By George Considine.

IN spite of the fact that Pooshemup Joe Savoldi is in hot water with the Illinois Boxing Commission because he failed to show up for a scheduled match with the world champeen Danno O'Mahoney last Monday, the former Notre Dame footballer definitely will work in tomorrow night's snarlfest at Griffith Stadium.

It was thought for a while yesterday that Savoldi would be barred from action anywhere in the country. But Promoter Joe Turner last night assured Washington's legion of rassle addicts that the match would go on.

Both Top-Notchers.

Unbelievable as it may sound, the Sonnenberg-Savoldi battle is a real toss-up. Both men are ranked close to the top and are box-office attractions of the first water. Maybe it it all a mistake. At least it's a novelty.

Supporting the alleged feature will be an exceptionally promising semifinal. The word "promising" is used advisedly. When a pair of pachyderms of the proportions of 320-pound Tor Johanson and 250-pound Sure Mike Mazurki square off in the same ring, the management can unflinchingly promise a mighty large evening's entertainment.

Jack Donovan, erring son of Erin, will trip the light fantastic in a special 30-minute struggle-tussle, while Ripsnorting Rube Wright and a certain Mister Middlekauf have been assigned to hoist the proverbial curtain.

Johnson Launches New Racing Craft

By the Associated Press.

Easton, Md., July 16.—The Wave, newest starboat of C. Lowdnes Johnson, veteran Eastern Shore racing boat designer and builder, will begin its first severe test this week-end in the Corinthian Yacht Club's Regatta at Betterton.

Launched yesterday on the Miles River with Mrs. Johnson breaking a bottle of wine over its prow, the Wave, under the handling of Johnson, proved its mettle in a brush with two other starboats.

Over an unmeasured sail on the river, the Wave showed its stern to the Stardust, skippered by W. Mason Shehan, jr., starboat champion of the Eastern Shore this year, and the Juno, seasoned craft of Frank Fuller.

Public Golfers Prime for National

THE four-man Harding Cup team which will represent Washington in the National Public Links Golf Championship at Indianapolis, July 29-August 3, inclusive, will play two matches against private club teams.

Arrangements were virtually completed last night for a match this Sunday with a four-man team from Kenwood Golf and Country Club at the Kenwood course, starting at 2:30 p. m. Ted Rutley, greens chairman, and Ed Olsen, golf chairman, are rounding up the Kenwood team, which will include such well-known golfers as Russ Hollebaugh, husky club champion; Maury Fitzgerald, Charlie Cole, Bernie Dennell and Rutley.

Rippy Team Captain.

Claude Rippy, who smashed all local records for a 72-hole tournament when he negotiated the Rock Creek and East Potomac courses in 282 strokes to win the District municipal championship last week, is captain of the Harding Cup team. Other members are George Malloy, former municipal title holder; Ted Burrows, another former champion, and Bobby Burton.

A week from today the Harding Cuppers will engage a four-man team from Indian Spring Country Club captained by Tom Belshe, golf chairman. Levi Yoder, Manor invitation winner; Roger Peacock, Lopis Fuchs, Sam Rice, Leroy Sasscer and Craig McKee will be among those who will see action.

Between now and next Thursday the local municipal stars plan to get in plenty of practice licks. Next Wednesday night at East Potomac they will be honored at a public reception and the next morning they shove off for Indianapolis.

Goodrich Bond War Adjourns To Count Votes

By the Associated Press.

New York, July 16.—The special meeting of stockholders of the B. F. Goodrich Co. held today to act on a proposal to authorize a $28,000,000 of new first mortgage bonds adjourned without taking action until Thursday morning.

The recess was taken to permit the counting and checking of proxies, of which more than 16,000 were in the hands of the tellers. Approval of three-fourths of each class of stockholders is required.

The meeting today, at which David Goodrich, chairman of the board of directors of the company, presided, had been widely heralded as "the show-down" in a proxy battle and court fight between the management, which proposed the new bond issue, and an opposition led by Otis & Co., Cleveland investment banking concern.

Exchanges between the two factions, however, were relatively mild. J. G. Gosling, officer of Otis & Co., contented himself with reiterating the contentions which have been made by the firm in recent court proceedings at Cleveland that insufficient information was being offered to stockholders concerning the amount of new money to be raised over and above the $17,800,000 to be used in refunding outstanding 6½ per cent debentures.

Officers of the Goodrich concern, including Goodrich and J. D. Tew, president, refused to admit that Otis & Co., represented by Gosling, which is an incorporated securities firm, was the successor to the old general partnership of Otis & Co., which claimed to have an agreement with Goodrich entitling it to specific information regarding its finances.

They further cited the fact that a court decision in Ohio earlier in the week had denied to Otis & Co., the present firm, the right to the information it sought because it was of a confidential nature, so that its disclosure might adversely affect the business of Goodrich.

Only an Agile Dollar Returns Whole Today, Says Dr. Wilson

Capitalism in This Country Is not a Profit System, Oil Executive Holds, but a Hope-of-Profit System, With the Hopes Seldom Realized.

Capitalism in America is not a profit system, but a "hope-of-profit" system, Dr. Robert E. Wilson, vice chairman of the Pan American Petroleum and Transport Co., says in a statement issued yesterday by the American Chemical Society. In support of his contention, he cites the experience of the oil industry.

It is quite possible, according to Dr. Wilson, that new inventions in the coming years will wipe out capital in certain industries more rapidly than it can multiply in other and newer industries, and a rapid and evolutionary process will actually be eating into most accumulations of capital.

"It will take an agile dollar to go out into such an evolutionary world and come back whole, to say nothing of bringing back a few extra pennies," asserts Dr. Wilson, a director of the society, and a former vice president of the Standard Oil Co. of Indiana.

Dr. Wilson protests against making the mere possession of capital a misdemeanor, pointing out that the tax collector, who does no share in the losses, should not receive an undue proportion of gains.

Oil Cited as Example.

"Capital, after all, works largely for hopes which, on the average, are seldom realized," says Dr. Wilson. "For example, the business of producing oil is considered by the layman to be one of the most profitable of enterprises denounced by the Communists as robbing the public of a great resource.

"However, a recent analysis of the total amount of money spent in the producing end of the oil business since the drilling of the Drake well indicates that the total amount of money received by the oil producer for his crude has barely equalled the total amount of money spent in hunting for oil, drilling dry and producing wells, paying rentals on leases on undeveloped land and royalties to the land owner on productive land.

"Of course, some companies have made a great deal of money during this period and such examples are what has attracted capital to this field, but on the average no net return of capital has been taken out of this end of the oil business. The wealth of the Nation as a whole has been greatly increased by these operations, but it has not come in the form of a return on the gross amount of capital invested.

"Certainly even a communistic system could scarcely develop a better method of getting service at cost. Discussing this point with men in other lines of business has indicated that this is by no means an unusual situation, but by and large over periods of prosperity and depression, the profits of successful companies in any given field have just about balanced the losses of unsuccessful companies and the obsolescence of whole industries.

Hope of Reward a Spur.

"Under the 'hope-of-profit' system the individual, whether scientist, engineer, politician, or day laborer, is spurred on by a hope of a reward which he may or may not obtain. As long, however, as the game is conducted with fairness and not determined by dishonest practices or political influence, no better system has yet been devised for keeping capital and labor hard at work and enjoying the battle, even though not all can get the prizes.

"Capital serves both to stimulate and to finance new developments into the service of the public with a speed undreamed of a few years ago. Science has a great stake in our capitalistic or 'hope-of-profit' system."

The welfare of the country and the reduction of unemployment depends largely upon the wholehearted co-operation of capital and science, Dr. Wilson holds.

"It is true that research activities may, on the whole, speed obsolescence, but the organization with an adequate research background will anticipate the new lines of development and be prepared for changes and adaptations, and thus be in a position to profit rather than suffer by the accelerating process of change so characteristic of the modern world.

"From 6 to 60 the hope of reward has always been more effective than the fear of punishment. Capital, too, has the right to demand that the rules of the game be fair—that the mere possession of capital be not considered a misdemeanor, and that the tax collector, who is unwilling to share in the inevitable losses, does not demand too large a share of such gains as may be realized. Under such conditions capital will be glad to join in the game, and enjoy it, even though the reward is highly uncertain."

Harahan Slated To Head C. & O.

Election as President of Nickel Plate and Marquette Expected.

By the Associated Press.

New York, July 16.—The new president of the Chesapeake & Ohio Railroad is expected to be W. J. Harahan, now senior vice president, it was learned in reliable financial quarters today.

Harahan, succeeding the late J. J. Bernet, it is understood, will be chosen at a meeting of directors of the road at Cleveland next Tuesday. He will also occupy the office of president of the Nickel Plate and the Pere Marquette, other units of the Van Sweringen railroad group.

Prior to his connection with the Chesapeake & Ohio, which began 15 years ago, Harahan was president of the Seaboard Air Line. He also served a previous term as president of the C. & O., which ended in 1930, when he relinquished his post to Bernet to take the senior vice presidency. He will be 67 years old next December.

Ottawa, July 16 (AP).—Canada's total trade in the month of June declined by $5,310,498, according to figures issued today by the National Revenue Department. Exports were valued at $52,787,076, and imports, $46,730,870. This compared with exports of $58,642,552 and imports of $46,185,892 for June, 1934. The greatest decline was in the export of wheat, which dropped from $14,367,142 to $5,148,692.

Local Closed Banks Report Collections

Institutions Have Repaid From 20 to 80 Per Cent.

By R. Karl von Lewinski.

Eight local insolvent banks which at the time of failure carried an aggregrate of more than $16,000,000 in deposits yesterday submitted the semi-annual reports of condition to the Comptroller of the Currency. In all cases, sizable collections and materially stronger assets were reported.

The Federal American National Bank, second largest bank to fail in the District, through its receiver, Cary A. Hardee, cited dividend payments of $4,148,322 to depositors since it was suspended in March, 1933.

Total deposit liabilities of the bank were set at $9,583,783. Cash on hand now was set at $1,005,842, while about $2,000,000 of a R. F. C. loan still remains unpaid. Total remaining good assets were set at $3,238,519, with a book value of $8,981,267.

The Woodridge-Langdon Savings & Commercial Bank through its receiver reported that 50 per cent of the deposit liabilities of $331,439 had been paid off. Cash on hand was set at $39,395, while good assets were estimated at $230,525, with a book value of $286,204.

Industrial Savings Bank through receiver W. H. C. Brown, reported that 35 per cent of the deposits of $548,796 lodged in the bank had been paid out. Remaining assets were esvalue timated at $308,548, while the book value was set at $437,017.

Receiver Frederic Young of the International Exchange Bank, which failed on July 14, 1932, reported that 31 2-3 per cent of deposits aggregating $452,850 had been paid out. Cash on hand now totals $4,668, while estimated good assets are valued at $159,954. Book value of assets is $496,312.

Bache Bond Review.

Bache's weekly bond review, distributed in the financial district yesterday by Frank J. F. Thiel, resident manager of J. S. Bache & Co., commented favorably on the reception that has been accorded the most recent Federal issues.

It cited particularly the Treasury 1⅝ notes at par that were heavily oversubscribed and are now selling at premiums. Announcement of the $100,000,000 in 2⅞ of 1955 and 1960 also was well received. Other corporates and municipals, although well taken, did not share the enthusiasm that greeted the Federal issues, the report asserted.

President E. C. Graham of the Hamilton National Bank yesterday reported to stockholders that the book value of the bank's stock had increased from $27.31 to $29.40 per share during the six months preceding June 31.

Graham reported net earnings from purely banking operations during the six months at $84,887.74, or $1.69 per share. These operating results were increased by net profits from transactions in Government bonds and other securities and miscellaneous non-operating credits, totaling $59,268.25.

The bank charged off losses and established reserves for contingencies and other purposes amounting to $16,995.40, leaving a net profit from all sources for the half year of $127,160.59.

During the first six months of 1935 branch operations as a whole resulted in net profits of $12,613.74, only one branch showing a moderate monthly loss.

B. & O. Loads.

Car loadings on the Baltimore & Ohio Railroad for the week ended July 13 totaled 33,679, of which 22,659 cars were loaded on line and 11,020 received from connections.

This was an increase of 4,108 cars over the previous week (the week ended July 6), when the total loadings were 29,571, divided 17,525 loaded on line and 12,046 received from connections.

Compared with last week, the same week in 1934 showed a total of 39,861 cars, of which 27,216 were loaded on line and 12,645 received from connections.

New York Borrows At Thirty-Year Low

New York, July 16 (AP).—The city of New York today awarded to the National City Bank and a group of underwriters an issue of $38,000,000 city corporate stock and serial bonds on a cost basis of 3.4779 per cent, the lowest at which the city has borrowed money in 30 years.

Petroleum Products, Except Gasoline, Gain

New York, July 16 (AP).—While efforts of the Federal Government to increase all commodity values have resulted in raising the wholesale price of petroleum products approximately 4 per cent during the past year, the retail price of gasoline, the principal petroleum product, has declined 3 per cent, the American Petroleum Institute says in a special report to the trade.

Phila. R. T. Orders Cars.

Philadelphia, July 16 (AP).—Philadelphia Rapid Transit Co. has ordered eight 30-passenger trackless cars from the J. G. Brill Co., a subsidiary of the American Car & Foundry Co.

Anthracite Shipments Gain

New York, July 16 (AP).—Shipments of anthracite for June, as reported to the Anthracite Institute, amounted to 4,878,738 net tons, an increase over May of 531,875 tons, or 12.24 per cent.

Highlights and Background Of Financial News and Trends

By Carlton A. Shively.

New York, July 16.—Financial markets puffed up to the dog days line without change of importance. Price fluctuations in stocks were narrow, with losses somewhat in excess of gains, and with a turnover of well under a million shares. Bonds were irregular and commodities as well were filled with indecision. September wheat closed a quarter of a cent lower at 82⅝ cents a bushel.

Stock trading was a matter of specialties, newly discovered favorites, and fresh interest in stocks that had good advances earlier in the year, interspersed with a little selling pressure here and there, most of the preferred issues were able to climb, particularly the steels. Gains of 2 to 5 points were made by Barker Brothers, Household Finance, International Silver, National Supply, Otis Steel, Ward Baking and Youngstown preferred. Franklin Simon preferred extended its gain for the past two sessions to more than 5 points.

Individual favorites included Packard Motors, Mack Trucks, Connecticut Railway, Houdaille, Hershey and National Biscuit. Packard rose strongly in active trading. Connecticut advancde into new high ground on a rise of 4 points or so. Today's turnover (at the inactive post) was the largest in any session in several years, or for the total volume of either 1933 or 1934.

Fractional losses were suffered by the majority of rails. Union Pacific could not hold the greater part of its early gain. Westinghouse Airbrake broke new high ground, but others were easier. Car & Foundry preferred dropped 3 points. Telephone was firmer but narrow, and most of the utilities and oils weakened. With the exception of National Biscuit, which brought a new high price, foods were lower. Cuban American preferred found little support.

Motors as a group failed to follow Packard's lead, but the accessory group was higher. Bohn and Collins & Aikman forged ahead. Amusements were firm. Chemicals, stores and mail orders softened. Toward the close Steel, General Electric and other issues on the durable goods side pulled ahead a bit.

Inactivity.

Much the same old story is told by the weekly statement of Federal Reserve member banks in 91 leading cities. For the week of July 10 the banks show a sharp decline in brokers' loans (total security loans now are more than half a billion under a year ago) and another small decline in commercial loans. The banks heavily sold Government securities but increased their holdings of other securities by an equal amount, which was a backwash from the window-dressing operations at the midyear, and reserves climbed by the unusually large figure of $160,000,000.

On the other important side of the picture the usual rise in demand deposits is depicted. Government deposits of the banks now are virtually three billions greater than at the same time last year. That means money ready for spending; and inflation on a huge scale, provided a start could only be made and no brakes were applied.

So long as bank deposits climb, without much increase in their turnover, it may be taken for granted, without other evidence, that no rapid recovery in business is taking place. Much has been done of a futile nature to start money and credit to moving; but the spending has been done in consumption goods by individuals in receipt of relief and higher wages imposed by the codes. The bulk of bank deposits are held by corporations, and obviously they haven't been using them; until they do, business may not get worse but it won't get a good deal better.

Capital Outlet.

Spending by corporations would go mostly to the depressed industries, namely, those producing machinery and construction material, the durable and capital goods section, where unemployment hurts the most. Banks are not refusing credit, but those industries sell mainly to users of long-term loans. Improvement awaits, on the other hand, spending of cash on hand by business concerns for expansion and improvement, new construction, new machinery installation, and general activity in building construction, and, on the other spending of funds to be borrowed from the new capital market.

Both forms of spending await in turn greater confidence with regard to this country's monetary policy, which probably will rest less on statements of public officials than on their acts designed to reduce Government extravagance and to balance the Federal budget, removing the danger of inflation, repudiation and crushing taxation. In addition, corporations would like more assurance that they will be allowed to earn, and partly to keep, a profit.

Finally, the new capital market must be reopened before any large scale help will come to the durable goods industries. Constomers of the heavy industries, even with confidence restored, won't do a great deal until they can borrow freely at long term, which they can't do under present restrictions of the new securities act and the banking act. One important step in that direction can be taken with the return of permission to the banks to underwrite new issues. Much has been written of revival in company finance, but the bulk of the business has been confined to refunding, and much of that to producers of consumption goods.

Heavy Industry Holds Its Own

New York, July 16.—Despite the recent decline in steel production, the heavier capital goods industries generally have been holding their own in the past few months. The sharp drop in industrial production this month reflects almost entirely slower operations in consumers' goods fields, according to the Standard Statistics Co.

At this time a year ago, the survey says, the relationship was reversed. Needless to say, this relative resistance of heavy lines to the business reaction is definitely favorable. Activity in consumers' goods will recover with a turn in public sentiment or exhaustion of consumers' or distributors' inventories.

Activity in the machinery, steel, building, lumber and similar trades, on the other hand, is not so directly affected by superficial factors. Trends normally tend to be longer sustained. Furthermore, the present depression is largely one of durable goods industries, so that favorable trends in them merit constructive general interpretation.

Corn Advances, Wheat Droops In Grain Pits

Canadian Officials Say Surplus Wheat Will Not Be Dumped.

By the Associated Press.

Chicago, July 16.—Wheat futures here today paralleled the rise and fall of values in the Liverpool market. An early gain of about a cent a bushel was erased by orderly liquidation after midsession, with profit-taking sales conspicuous.

The late decline was in the face of a firm cash market and generally bullish crop news. The budget of rust reports from the spring wheat belt on both sides of the Canadian border was large and there was increasing talk of damage possibilities.

The net result of a day of rather erratic price fluctuations was a ⅝ cent loss to ⅛ cent gain at the close, with September wheat 82⅝-⅞. Corn, however, displayed independent strength, finishing ¼-1¾ higher, September 75⅞-76. Oats closed unchanged to ⅛ off, rye unchanged to ⅝ off and barley unchanged to ¾ down.

Much nervousness among traders was ascribed to uncertainty as to plans which may be adopted in connection with disposition of the Canadian wheat surplus. Ottawa dispatches said that until the new Canadian wheat board begins to function no announcement is expected. Dominion officials, however, have asserted the carry-over would not be "dumped" into international trade.

Pronounced strength in July corn dominated the corn market. Sentiment was largely on the constructive side, based on lightness of movement and offerings of old corn and improved shipping demand. Corn and provisions were affected by the rise of hog prices to a new four-year top, with lard futures firm.

U.S. Cup Squad Ignores Vines And Tilden

Net Team Captain Plans to Drill Men Without Aid of Pros.

By the Associated Press.

LONDON, July 16.—Big Bill Tilden and Ellsworth Vines sat around their hotel lobby today, expectant as ambulance drivers awaiting a call to action, but the summons never came.

America's foremost two professionals had been assured indirectly that their services were earnestly desired to help whip the United States Davis Cuppers into fighting trim for the interzone matches with Germany at Wimbledon this weekend.

Capt. Joseph W. Wear, although previously in favor of a series of tune-up matches between his proteges and the professionals, changed his mind.

"I decided there would be nothing gained by such practice," Wear said.

"Vines and Tilden have entirely different styles from our opponents. Playing against them might only unsettle our players."

Pros Are Disappointed.

The professionals obviously were disappointed.

"I'm sorry we can't help, because I believe the more work they get the better chance our boys will have against Germany," said Tilden. "They have a tough match on their hands. All this talk about being over-tennised is pure bosh. Every player on the squad ought to be playing at least five sets every day."

In direct contradiction to Big Bill's theories only Wilmer Allison and Gene Mako visited the practice courts today. The entire squad plans to engage in an hour's workout Wednesday and Thursday on the No. 1 court, where the Davis Cup matches will be plyed, starting Saturday.

Allison, Budge to Play.

The draw, to be made Thursday, is expected to find Allison and 19-year-old Donald Budge, California sensation, named for the singles assignments. Allison and John Van Ryn appear to be the logical doubles choices. This would leave Sidney B. Wood, of New York, the second ranking American, on the sidelines.

Americans hope Budge, inexperienced in cup play, will draw Heiner Henkel, youthful German, instead of Baron Gottfried von Cramm, the Teuton ace, for opening singles competition. They figure this would take some of the pressure off Budge, whose confidence might be shaken if he runs into Von Cramm at the outset.

Cricket Match Drawn.

Leeds, Eng., July 16 (AP).—After victory appeared in England's grasp, the third test match with South Africa ended in a draw today. Darkness stopped the play before the South Africans, trailing by a wide margin, could be dismissed for their second innings.

Little, Back Home, Worried by Woods

the bay, explained that his woods and long irons have bothered him ever since the day before the U. S. Amateur was started at Brookline last fall.

"I know what the matter is, I think. I'm not working my hands right. I'm getting my right too far under. Maybe my left, too. Anyway, I'm hitting with the face too much closed and I'm getting some awful hooks. I can get some straight ones, but only when I stop and think about five or six things. So I work golf now instead of play it."

Lawson nearly fell out of his chair when the writer told him of the story published abroad and cabled here that he spent $10,000.

Saved $22 a Day.

"They must have mixed up pounds and dollars. Why I started over with just under $1,000 and I've still got a few dollars. I don't see how anybody could spend dough like that without throwing it away. As for traveling third class, why not? Its perfectly nice and there's a difference of about $132. That's $22 a day for the six days. I figure I've been earning that much coming over."

Little said that the Helen Wills Moody-Helen Jacobs tennis match at Wimbledon was the "darnedest show I ever saw. I'll never forget it. Hell, when they were at 5—5 in the final set they should have stopped the contest and given each of them a cup. Jake played those last two games in a daze and she didn't really come to for nearly 45 minutes."

Little admitted that he is "plenty keen to win the American Amateur again. But hell, I've been lucky enough to win three now, and I can't keep up that kind of luck forever."

Little expects to go to Washington within a few days to be presented to President Roosevelt.

Illinois Fight Body Suspends Rasslers

Savoldi Doesn't Appear; Zaharais Incites Riot.

By the Associated Press.

Chicago, July 16.—Joe Savoldi, heavyweight wrestler from Three Oaks, Mich., today was suspended by the Illinois State athletic commission for one year for failure to go through with a match with Danno O'Mahoney, newly crowned champion, at Mills Stadium last night.

Savoldi wired the promoters yesterday from New York, advising them he had been injured. George Zaharias, Pueblo, Colo., substituted for Savoldi.

Zaharias was suspended for 30 days for inciting a riotous disturbance after O'Mahoney conquered him last night. Zaharias took a punch at the Irishman when the latter extended his hand, causing a free-for-all fight to ensue.

Rematch for Klick And Canzoneri Set

Lightweight Champ Meets Foe Again in Frisco.

By the Associated Press.

San Francisco, July 16.—Tony Canzoneri, world's lightweight boxing champion, and Frankie Klick, a leading challenger, will mix over ten rounds here August 19 in a non-title renewal of their recent Washington, D. C., bout.

The announcement was made today by Chris Lykke, president of the San Francisco Press Club, under whose auspices the fight will be staged.

Duke of Kent Loses Shirt in Golf Match

By the Associated Press.

Portsmouth, England, July 16.—The Duke of Kent lost his shirt today playing golf against his elder brother, the Prince of Wales.

The two prince met on the links at Hayling Island before the jubilee naval review. Wales was in good form and Kent was losing. The latter peeled off his shirt and the game went on. They quit two holes short with Kent far down and with little time left to get to the review.

Lack of Competition 'Plaint Of Ballston After 15 Victories

THE fellow who was all dressed up and had no place to go was in no sadder plight than that in which the Ballston A. C. baseball team now finds itself. Winner of 15 straight games, most of them by tremendous margins, the Virginians, rarin' to play ball, are looking anxiously around for an opponent which can give them some opposition. In fact, they issue a bristling challenge to this effect, claiming the sandlot championship of Washington and surrounding territory.

The Ballston boys won the first half of the Northern Virginia - Post Association League by such a rapid succession of overwhelming scores that the sweep of the Giants in the National League looks like a neck-and-neck race in comparison.

Not content with smothering one team after another, the bombarding Ballstonites stalked the Bureau of Investigation club, super-team of the sandlots. The net result was a 7-to-3 victory for Ballston and the first defeat of the season for the G-Men.

Between other league frays, the Ballston battalion took on the Ross Jewelers, fast Washington unlimited team. By the time the close of the second game came, they had taken so much shine out of the Jewelers that the latter looked like so many pawnbrokers.

teams thinking they could give the Ballston Club a tough row to hoe, either Labor Day or any other time, are asked to answer the challenge. Ballston has one of the finest enclosed ball parks in the section with facilities for 4,000 spectators.

Len Owens, formerly with the New York Yanks, has been coaching most of the players as well as handling some of the pitching. Calvin Hill, an old fireman and "Horse" Duff, formerly of the Valley League, complete the mound corps. The infield includes such stars as the veteran Gordon Ball, first base; Charlie McQuinn, brother of George, now a big-leaguer, at second; Joe Miller, shortstop, and Leroy spitzer at third.

A heavy hitting outfield of Carl Woldvetar, George Biggs and Howard King, all powerful sluggers, gives the team a punch much like that of Joe Louis.

Following their conquest of the G-men, the heavy-batting boys of Ballston took on another higly respected Government unit namely the Treasury, which they proceeded to humiliate in two straight games. Since then, opposition has shown little or no inclination to come forth.

Ballston especially directs its challenge at NRA for a game to be played Labor Day. Other strong

On the Air Today

The real low-down on G-Men and their operations will be aired to the wide world—law-abider and criminal alike—at 3:30 p. m. today when John B. Kennedy and George Hicks make a tour of the many departments of the Federal Bureau of Investigation, broadcasting through WMAL and the Blue network.

Bureau Chief J. Edgar Hoover will escort the two N. B. C. men through the fingerprint room, a class in crime detection, shooting range, laboratory, press room, etc.

Also on the itinerary is "Oscar's Room," named for the dummy corps which figures in re-creations of crimes.

* * * *

Gracie Allen's new boy friend, Harry, is to be introduced to WJSV listeners at 9 p. m. Ferde Grofe, leader of the band, also figures in the "Great Sandwich Mystery," a skit in the show . . . Oscar Shaw will make three more appearances as master of ceremonies of Broadway Varieties filling out the period until Guy Robertson returns, heard through WJSV, at 7:30 p. m. . . . Jim Harkins again will divide his amateurs into two divisions instead of three when Town Hall meets at 8 p. m.

* * * *

Jerry Belcher and Parks Johnson, who conduct the Voice of the People street interviews Sunday nights (WMAL) from the sidewalks of New York, said at the end of their first airing that they were hopeful they would learn of a real one-armed paperhanger before their next broadcast. They were successful. But last Sunday night exactly 23 had been reported to the "vox poppers."

* * * *

Wayne King will receive a medal emblematic of winning the popularity poll for radio dance music in his broadcast tonight, WRC, at 7:30. Its the second year he has won the Radio Guide honor.

* * * *

Our own poll of listeners' program preferences continued yesterday to form one of the most interesting studies of radio entertainment that has come to our attention in many a month.

Several dozen poll forms have been received thus far (the form appeared in Sunday's Post, radio page) and with few exceptions no program has been named for first preference by more than two persons.

* * * *

Listeners' preferences range from Amos and Andy to the New York Philharmonic series; from Jack Benny to Seth Parker. Maj. Bowes at this point seems to be well up in the voting and the dependable Benny has several first places.

Many of those who sent in the forms also asked questions pertaining to certain programs.

Crissinger, individual trustee, dated November 1, 1928, and recorded November 23, 1928, in Liber 6254, folio 285 et seq., of the land records of the District of Columbia (under which said first and refunding mortgage David H. Blair is now successor trustee) directed by said decree to be sold and therein described as follows: All that certain lot or piece of land situate in the District of Columbia, described as follows: Lot numbered forty-three (43) in Morris Cafritz's subdivision of square numbered twenty-six hundred eighty-eight (2688) as per plat recorded in the office of the surveyor of the District of Columbia in book 81, page 120, together with any and all buildings, improvements and appurtenances now standing upon said land, or any part thereof, and all furnishings, fittings and fixtures of every kind, which the trustee is authorized to sell and convey. The property, both real and personal, in and by the decree directed to be sold shall be sold as an entirety, subject to all taxes and assessments constituting a lien upon the mortgaged property, to the lien of a certain underlying deed of trust or mortgage and of certain bonds issued pursuant to and secured thereby, and to the rights of the American Security & Trust Company, as successor trustee thereunder, said deed of trust and said bonds being described as follows: Deed of trust dated the 1st day of April, 1926, executed by Hilltop Manor Co., unto G. Bryan Pitts as trustee, securing an authorized issue of one million four hundred thousand ($1,400,000) dollars first mortgage six and three-quarters (6¾) per cent gold bonds, said mortgage having been duly filed and recorded among the land records of the District of Columbia on the 9th day of April, 1926, in Liber 5728 at folio 264. Of said $1,400,000 principal amount of first mortgage bonds, $1,360,000 principal amount are outstanding. The property in and by the decree directed to be sold does not include any of said Hilltop Manor first mortgage bonds held by said David H. Blair, successor trustee, as additional security for the bonds of the first and refunding mortgage issue. The property shall be sold to the highest bidder. The highest bid for the property shall be received and noted. The successful bidder for the property shall, at the time and place of sale, sign a memorandum of his purchase. The trustee shall receive no bid from anyone offering to bid who shall not at or before the hour of sale, or any adjournment thereof, present to the agent of the trustee conducting the said sale, cash or a certified check on some Washington, D. In case within thirty (30) days after entry of the order confirming the sale, or such additional time as may hereafter be allowed by the Court, the successful bidder shall fail to complete his bid by making the additional payments required on account of the purchase price, or shall fail to comply with any order of this Court with respect thereto, then the sum deposited by such bidder as hereinbefore provided, whether in cash or in bonds, shall be forfeited as a penalty for such failure and shall be applied toward the payment of the expenses of any re-sale and toward making good any deficiency or loss in case the property shall be sold at a less price on such re-sale, or to such other purpose as the Court may direct.

THE TERMS OF SALE shall be one-third of the purchase money to be paid in cash and the balance in two equal installments, payable in one and two years from the date of sale, to be represented by promissory notes of the purchaser bearing interest at the rate of 6% per annum, payable semi-annually, secured by a deed of trust on the property sold, or all cash, at the option of the purchaser. The Garble Sisters.

"Well, I see where Russia has signed the Kellogg Pact to buy $3,000,000 worth of goods from the United States."

"I'm glad of a peaceful gesture like that. I was afraid Stalin might get sore over that message from Secretary Hull protesting against a war between Russia and that Ethiopian ruler, Haile—what's his last name?"

"Haile Passamaquoddy."

"That's the fellow. Do you think there'll be a war there?"

"I dunno. Everything's so mixed up. I see where the Abyssinians have recalled the Hapsburgs and given Sir Thomas Hoare his passport."

"That was too bad about that stratosphere balloon collapsing the other day, wasn't it?"

"Yes, and especially after it had been flown clear across the United States by Laura Ingalls, a woman flier."

"Was anybody hurt?"

"Only some fellow from Maine named Brewster, I think. Say, what do you think of that congressional investigation into lobbying in the Virgin Islands?"

"I didn't read all the details. All I remember is that Senator Corcoran called a judge a liar when he denied voting for control of queen bees."

"It's been quite a month in the sporting world, hasn't it?"

"Yeah. I saw where Helen Wills won the British amateur over Babe Didrickson."

"And she now meets Miss Schmeling of New York in September."

"It was good to hear that Gene Hagen has been elected captain of the American golf team that will meet France this year."

"He's a great player. I'd like to see him come back and prove that Col. Ruppert made a big mistake in releasing him."

"Did you read about Herbert Hoover, the head of the G men, taking a sock at criminal lawyers and sob-sister judges as public enemies?"

"And, say, what do you make of that Max Baer marriage to that Corbett girl?"

"I think they'll get along all right and I hope he will take her advice and give up wrestling."

Things are so bad with Elmer Twitchell that he had had to give away his dog. And he sighs heavily for the days when every home had a two-cur garage.

After they mend the broken bones in Max Baer's hands possibly something will be done about mending the bones in his head, suggests S. E. C.

Teachers Told To Co-ordinate CCC Studies

Assistant Director Taylor Addresses Instructors' School at U. of M.

The second day of summer school for educational instructors of the Third Corps Area CCC camps opened yesterday at the University of Maryland with an address by Charles H. Taylor, assistant director of emergency conservation work.

Speaking on "The Educational Program's Part in the CCC Camp," he stressed the need for a co-ordination of all departments within the camps.

Col. Elvid Hunt, welfare officer for the camps in this area, which includes Maryland, Pennsylvania, District of Columbia and Virginia, spoke on the army's part in the educational program.

Oxley Explains New Set-up.

Dr. Howard W. Oxley, national educational director of the CCC camps, told of the Office of Education's part in these activities. He explained the new set-up in the CCC educational program.

He said there was a new series of books which will be used in the camps throughout the country. These are designed to prepare the young men for a career after leaving the camps, he declared.

Dr. T. G. Bennett, educational adviser for the camps of the Third Corps Area and director of the school, presided over one group meeting. Dr. Arthur J. Jones, professor of secondary education at the University of Pennsylvania, presided at another group meeting.

Study Vocational Guidance.

Under Dr. Jones the men studied methods of educational and vocational guidance, taking up particularly the principles upon which such a program might be built.

Dr. S. E. Kraemer, assistant superintendent of the Washington Schools, was speaker at the luncheon in the university dining hall.

The afternoon was taken up with a panel discussion and at 8:30 p. m. a reception for the men was held in the university gymnasium.

Board Studies OldAgePension

Prince Georges County Has No Funds to Match State.

Prince Georges County's board of commissioners yesterday authorized the county welfare board to study methods of using outpensioner's funds as old-age pensions.

Since the nearby Maryland County has no appropriation in its budget to match Federal funds in setting up the pension system, various ways of raising the money have been suggested.

Money appropriated for the outpensioner fund has so far proven the only method. This appropriation was made in the budget to aid widows and those unable to support themselves.

If the welfare board, newly reorganized under the Board of State Aid and Charities, decides in favor of using the outpensioner funds, the matter will revert back to the commissioners for final action.

The board of commissioners, at a meeting in Upper Marlboro yesterday, heard a request for scraping and oiling of Eastern avenue from Second street, Takoma Park, to Sligo Mill road.

They referred the request, submitted by citizens of Pinecrest, Md., to the State roads commission.

Appeal Promised In Convict's Trial

Brother Plans U. S. Plea If Hart Is Condemned.

By the Associated Press.

Gate City, Va., July 16.—With a brother of the defendant promising to take the case to the United States Supreme Court if a conviction was obtained, testimony in the trial of Thomas Cole Hart for the murder of Alton Leonard was completed in Scott County Circuit Court today. Instructions and arguments will be heard tomorrow.

Hart is accused of striking Leonard, chain gang guard, a fatal blow during an escape with two other convicts near here in September, 1932.

A virginia statute prescribes the death penalty for a prisoner convicted of slaying a guard during an escape. H. E. Hart, the brother, said he was prepared to appeal to the highest court on the ground the statute in question is unconstitutional.

Ex-Mayor Seeks Lost Revenues For Mt. Rainier

In an effort to recover revenue lost to the town because of a legislative act in 1933, the mayor and council of Mount Rainier have named former Mayor William H. Vanneman as a committee of one to take the matter up with the proper authorities.

Prior to the 1933 act, the county levied a special road tax of 20 cents on each $100 assessed valuation of property for the maintenance, construction and repair of county roads and bridges. Three-fourths of all taxes thus collected in the town of Mount Rainier was rebated to that community.

By the 1933 act, provision was made for a portion of the State gasoline tax funds to be turned over to the county for this purpose and also certain allotments were granted the incorporated towns. By this act the county was enabled to drop its road tax at a great savings to the taxpayers.

In framing their tax levy for 1933 the county commissioners did not include the road tax, thus eliminating the revenue expected by the town from that source for that period.

Inasmuch as the fiscal year of the State Road Commission is from October 1 to October 1 its budget for the fiscal year 1933 had been made up ahead of the legislative act and there was naturally no provision made for allotments to the incorporated towns.

The matter has been discussed by the town officials for several weeks and the naming of former Mayor Vanneman Monday night forecasts a determined drive on the part of the town to find out whether it is the responsibility of the county commissioners or the State roads commission to make good the lost revenue, and at the same time to see what the prospects are for recovering it.

Parking Regulations.

The town officials also announce that because of congested traffic conditions and the complaints of citizens regarding the all-day parking of automobiles in front of the property, parking regulations have been adopted effecting Thirty-fourth street, between Rhode Island avenue and Bunker Hill road, and Perry street, between Thirty-fourth and Thirty-third streets.

A one-hour parking restriction between the hours of 8 a. m. and 6 p. m. have been adopted by the officials which carries with it a fine of not less than $2 and costs or more than $10 and costs for such violations. Failure to pay fines will bring a jail sentence of not more than ten days.

School Reports Show Decline In Attendance

Prince Georges Finds Colored Pupils Are Decreasing.

A steady decrease in the colored population of Prince Georges County has taken place during the past year, it was announced yesterday.

Miss Kathrine Shears, county attendance officer, in submitting her annual report to the State Board of Education, noted a decrease of 34 colored pupils over the preceding year.

This substantiated an earlier census of all children in the county which, according to Nicholas Orem, county school superintendant, showed a decided falling off of the colored race.

In the face of a steady increase in the county's general population, an increase of 280 white school pupils, and a heretofore steady increase of colored pupils, the new figures were taken as significant.

Emigration Censured.

The colored school figures show that from 2,619 elementary school pupils (and no high school students) in 1921, the number increased to 2,901 elementary pupils and 297 high school students in 1933-34.

Then, during the last school session the figure dropped to 279 in the high schools and 2,885 in the elementray schools. No reason has been advanced for the unusual circumstance. It is possible the colored population is migrating to the large colored settlements across the line in the District of Columbia.

In striking contrast, the figures submitted by Miss Shears showed that the white schools had increased their enrollments from 680 high school and 6,136 elementary school pupils in 1921 to 2,207 high school and 8,494 elementary school pupils in 1933-34.

Average Attendance.

During the last school session these figures increased to 2,347 pupils in the high schools and 8,642 in the elementary schools.

In 1921, 571 for the high schools and 4,658 in the elementary schools; in 1933-34, 1,904 in the high schools and 7,072 in the elementary schools, and during the last session, 1,995 in the high schools and 7,307 in the elementary schools.
